By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Americans in and out of uniform here have received the word: Win the war in Viet Nam by 1967, or else.

The word, of course, has come from Washington, where casualties of 100 Americans killed each week are becoming increasingly unacceptable. Bringing the war to the point at which these heavy casualties stop is now the prime (although unspoken) objective here.

The heat is on from top to bottom, and it is obviously coming directly from the White House.

No official in Viet Nam would ever publicly admit the existence of a timetable of victory. Too many officials in the past have had their fingers burned by making overoptimistic predictions about the collapse of the Viet Cong.

All the same, a timetable exists.

The big hope is that within one year the Viet Cong will no longer be able to deploy large units and therefore will lack the ability to inflict heavy American casualties.

That is Phase One.

Phase Two involves bringing the land under government control to the extent that free general elections can be held without fear of a Communist victory. Saigon's leaders have exacted a promise from lower officials that at least 76% of the nation's population will be under government control by then. Currently, Saigon claims control of only 50%.

From that time on, American troops supposedly will be able to phase slowly out of Viet Nam, and five years or so of mopping up will effectively end the Viet Nam conflict, and bring a new life of pros-

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas White House Saturday branded as "absolute fiction" a war correspondent's report that presidential orders have been issued to win the Viet Nam war by 1967 "or else."

"The President wants the end of hostilities tomorrow, if possible, but this story is made up out of whole cloth," acting Press Secretary Robert Fleming said.

The story was a free-lance article written by Malcolm W. Browne, former bureau chief in Saigon for the Associated Press. The dispatch was carried by the Associated Press out of Saigon.

DEATH FOR FLIGHT 911

BOAC jetliner, bound for Hong Kong with 124 aboard, leaves trail of smoke in fatal plunge toward slopes of Japan's holy Mt. Fuji near Tokyo. Picture was snapped by a photographer of Japanese magazine Heibon Punch as the four-engine Boeing 707 transport was losing a wing in its death throes.

FUJI'S FREAK WINDS TORE AT DEATH JET

GOTEMBA, Japan, Sunday (AP) — A British jetliner with 124 persons — at least 89 of them Americans—broke up in the freakish air over Mt. Fuji Saturday and fluttered like a leaf down to disaster on the sacred mount's slopes.

Aviation experts, probing the wreckage, said today freak air currents and sudden severe winds may have ripped the British Overseas Airways Corp. Boeing 707 apart minutes after takeoff from Tokyo's International Airport.

Japanese soldiers working under a full, predawn moon carried down the bodies of all 124 victims and placed them in wooden coffins in a Buddhist temple in Gotemba, 70 miles south of Tokyo.

Among the Americans were 75 persons on an Asian tour sponsored by the Thermo King Corp., of Minneapolis, Minn., a refrigeration equipment firm. Three top company officials and many of the firm's key dealers in the United States and their wives were among the dead.

There was Charles Galbo, 52, of Cheektowaga, N. Y., who told a friend back home before he left: "I don't think I'll see you any more."

Japanese witnesses said they saw the plane break apart, then swirl down like a leaf, trailing fire and white smoke. Its wreckage scattered over a wide area on the rugged slopes and set fire to trees and brush in some places.

It was Japan's second major air disaster within 19 hours and the third in a month. In history's worst commercial air disaster involving a single plane, 133 persons perished in a Japanese Boeing 727 jetliner that plunged into Tokyo Bay Feb. 4.

Ironically, as the doomed BOAC jet taxied out for takeoff Saturday afternoon it passed the wreckage at Haneda Airport of a Canadian Pacific DC8 jetliner that crashed while landing in a fog Friday night, killing 64 of 72 persons on board.

The three crashes took a total of 321 lives.

Officials from Britain and Canada were en route to Tokyo to investigate the causes of the last two crashes.

Death still lingered over the scene of the Japanese airline crash. A helicopter in the continuing search for bodies plunged into Tokyo Bay, killing two of five crewmen on board.

Just minutes after the BOAC 707 took off at 1:58 p.m. for Hong Kong en route to London, the Tokyo Weather Bureau reported severe winds over Mt. Fuji, noted for the freak air currents swirling around its 12,389-foot, snow-draped peak.

At noon, the Weather Bureau said the winds at Mt. Fuji were a sustained 70 miles an hour and three hours later

Torrance Women Among Victims of BOAC Disaster

A Torrance woman and her daughter were among the 124 persons killed Saturday near Japan's Mt. Fuji in the explosion of a British Overseas Airways (BOAC) 707 jetliner.

They were identified as Mrs. Hubert N. Jones Jr., of 5505 Towers St., and Toni Jones, 19, wife and daughter of a Continental Air Services official in Vientiane, Laos. They were among 17 Californians who died in the crash.

Officials of Continental Airlines in Los Angeles said Mrs. Jones and Toni were en route to Vientiane to join Jones, who went there less than two months ago as newly appointed manager of aircraft maintenance for the company's overseas subsidiary.

THE TWO women were traveling with another Continental couple also bound for Vientiane — W. Gene Williamson Jr., 43, of Woodland Hills, and Mrs. Williamson. The Williamsons also died in the air tragedy.

A Continental spokesman said Jones and Williamson, who was director of maintenance for the Air Services subsidiary in Southeast Asia, went to Laos early this year to set up headquarters operations in Vientiane.

* * * *

JONES remained at the Laotian base while Williamson returned to California to confer with company officials in Los Angeles and then return to Vientiane with his wife and Jones' family.

Another Southland victim of the unexplained air disaster was Mrs. Phyllis Ann Fischer, 33, of Los Angeles, who had been in Japan as a buyer for Broadway Department Stores and was the wife of Joseph Fischer, an official of the antipoverty program in the Los Angeles harbor area.

Fischer until recently was director of the Neighborhood Adult Participation

Blizzard-Hit Great Plains Digging Out

By United Press International

The worst blizzard in Weather Bureau history blew itself out Saturday afternoon, leaving a vast, silent sea of white through the Northern Plains states.

The storm, which raged relentlessly for three days, was blamed for the deaths of 14 persons.

At least 40 inhabitants of the snow-paralyzed area were still missing and the number of stranded travelers on roads and rails was at least 914.

A 350-MILE belt of North Dakota was blacked out because of downed power cables. The acting governor declared the state a disaster area and mobilized 1,000 National Guardsmen to help residents return to normal living.

South Dakota's governor summoned the National Guard to rescue 50 families who shivered in dark, heatless homes because of power failures.

Winds which peaked at more than 70 miles-an-hour during the blizzard's blinding fury diminished to breeze-strength Saturday afternoon. Clearing skies revealed a towering layer of snow from Montana to Lake Superior.

Mobridge, S.D., was buried under 35 inches of snow. Drifts 30 feet high were common in at least five South Dakota counties.

Enemy Is Caught in a 'Death Trap'

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops caught a North Vietnamese regiment in a valley "death trap" 330 miles northeast of Saigon and by Sunday had killed an estimated 800 to 1,000 of them, a Marine spokesman said.

The Marines and South Vietnamese hacked away at the Communist troops with machine gun, rifle and mortar fire.

The Communists tried to smash through the Marine positions but the Leathernecks hurled them back in bitter fighting.

The trap had been tightened to an area about two miles wide and two and one-half miles long in a section of rice paddles.

In some areas, the Marines pulled back slightly to let artillery and air strikes rake areas in front of them with high-explosive shells, bombs and rockets. Warplanes smashed one village in the path of the third battalion, First Marines, which moved down gentle slopes into the valley.

The Leatherneck unit that bore the brunt of the fighting throughout the night was the 2nd Battalion, Fourth Marines, which had taken up positions on the east side of the trap.

A U.S. military spokesman said five Vietnamese MIG-17 jet fighters went into action against American Air Force jets Friday. Three of the MIGs jumped four U.S. planes as they hammered a surface-to-air missile (SAM) site on the Hanoi outskirts, leaving it in flames.

The MIGs made three firing passes at the U.S. Phantom jets and then fled toward Hanoi with the Americans in pursuit. The American planes suffered no hits during the attack and lost the MIGs in a haze that obscured the area around the North Vietnamese capital.

The other two Communist MIGs sneaked in behind Air Force planes raiding a bridge and railway line 120 miles northwest of Hanoi but fled when the U.S. pilots discovered them and challenged them. The Communist pilots broke off as soon as the American pilots turned to give battle.

It was the first time since bombing over North Viet Nam resumed Feb. 1 that MIG fighters have been sighted in the air and the first time in the war that the Communist jets actually had made firing passes at armed American planes.

ALL SAFE AT MIAMI WITH PRAISE FOR PILOT

Airliner in Belly Landing With 101 Aboard

MIAMI (UPI) — A New Jersey-bound Eastern Air Lines 727 with 101 persons aboard skidded 600 feet to a safe emergency belly landing at Miami International Airport Saturday after its landing gear failed on takeoff.

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said that "as far as we know, there were no injuries." An Eastern official said, however, five passengers were taken to a hospital for precautionary checkups.

The three-engine jet, Eastern's Flight Six, took off at 1:25 p.m. with 95 passengers and six crewmen on a nonstop flight to Newark, N. J. shortly after takeoff, an indicator light in the cockpit showed landing gear trouble and pilot Eugene E. Young of Atlanta elected to return to Miami.

Young, a veteran pilot and flight captain, tried unsuccessfully to get the landing gear to retract fully.

"The landing was just beautiful . . . just beautiful," said Russell Phillips, a retired executive from Montclair, N. J.

"We got up in the air and it quickly became apparent that something was wrong and then the captain announced that we couldn't get the landing gear up all the way," Phillips said.

Young aimed the plane at Runway 27-R, held it about 10 inches above the dry, 10,500-foot-long runway and set it down.

The plane skidded about 600 feet on a straight path before it came to a stop at 4:05 p.m.

There was no fire.

The passengers and crew, shaken but calm and full of praise for the pilot, were able to leave the plane through a door underneath the tail end of the fuselage which could be partly opened.

They were taken back to the Miami Airport terminal in limousines. They jammed into the airline's lounge

RUSK, CANADIAN END CONFERENCE

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Canadian Foreign Minister Paul Martin held open Saturday the possibility the three-nation International Control Commission might one day become a channel for starting Viet Nam peace talks. So far, Rusk reported, Communist North Viet Nam has shown no interest in negotiations "through any forums or channels."

Canada, India and Poland form the International Control Commission set up to supervise Indochinese neutrality as set up by the 1954 Geneva agreements.

Rusk and Martin spoke at a joint news conference at the windup of a two-day, cabinet-level conference between the two countries dealing primarily with economic affairs.

A windup communique was coughed in a general tone of harmony overriding some specific frictions which recur between the two North American neighbors, whose $10-billion annual commerce between them makes them the world's largest trading partners.

The United States gave what Martin tremed "a most understanding reception and appreciation" of Canadian concern about possible economic harm to her from Washington moves to stem the U.S. gold drain.

Child Frozen

Her father, Eugene Welk, found her body in a field about a quarter of a mile from their farmhouse near Strasburg, N.D.

Carla, 6, had gone out to do chores with her two brothers Thursday night. She became lost in the blinding snow, and wind as they darted from the chicken coop to the barn.

The storm made a search impossible. Her father discovered her Saturday afternoon when the storm eased.

Queen Hailed

Island-hopping Queen Elizabeth of Britain arrived in Savanna la Mar, Jamaica, Saturday and nearly the entire city turned out to greet her and Prince Philip.

Police estimated the crowd at 10,000. The population is 13,000.

No Vacancy

Gov. Edmund G. Brown told a 9th-grade aspirant for his job Saturday that "there is not much of a turnover in California governors, but I hope this will not discourage you."

The Democratic governor was replying to a letter from George Saucedo, a student at Lathrop Junior High School in Santa Ana. The youth, in a letter, asked Brown a series of questions about the governorship.

Remembered

Saturday was the 13th anniversary of Joseph Stalin's death and at least one person in this de-Stalinized capital remembered. Someone put a small bouquet of flowers on his grave outside the Kremlin wall. Although it wasn't known for sure, it may have been the late dictator's daughter Svetlana who has made this gesture in the past.

Otherwise, there was no observance of the anniversary.

Appointed

Dr. Robert P. Grant, 50, Saturday was named by President Johnson to be director of the National Heart Institute.

The post has been vacant since last September when the President selected Dr. William H. Stewart as surgeon general of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Checkup

Parker, 63, was admitted after returning from a two-day trip to Tucson, Ariz. He reportedly complained of "not feeling well."

Although the chief underwent heart surgery last year, Police Inspector John Kinling said Parker's illness had nothing to do with heart trouble.

Taylor Says U.S. Mines Should Seal Viet Ports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maxwell D. Taylor, one of President Johnson's top advisers, believes that the important supply harbor of Haiphong in North Viet Nam should be closed by U.S. mines.

The opinion of Taylor, retired general and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was made in a written addition to his public testimony at the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing Feb. 17.

To date, the North Viet Nam capital of Hanoi and the main supply harbor of Haiphong have been spared bombing or action by U.S. air and naval forces.

Taylor's advocacy of closing the harbor came in answer to 26 questions by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., submitted Feb. 17 for written replies to save time during the televised hearings.

SYMINGTON, former Secretary of the Air Force, asked in writing:

"If we are really serious about curtailing the flow of war material from North Viet Nam to the south, would it not be to our interests to neutralize the port of Haiphong?"

Gen. Taylor's published reply:

"There have always been pros and cons to the use of our air power to neutralize the port of Haiphong. The question of the proper timing is always involved in this matter.

"I am inclined to believe that the time has been reached when we should mine this harbor and cut off the shipping which normally uses it."

NUMEROUS questions have been raised by members of Congress and others as to why the U.S. has not halted shipments of supplies to North Viet Nam by bombing or mining. Some of the supply ships are from allies of this country.

During the televised hearings, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., asked "why we allow some of our friends and allies to ship in supplies to Haiphong—why can't we get them to stop it?"

Taylor said he was sure many approaches have been made to these governments. He said the port could be closed by air power, "possibly by mining."

...sperity, freedom and happiness to Viet Nam.

How realistic is all this?

Even critics of current policies agree that the big Viet Cong fighting units are being fragmented.

The turning point was the battle of the Ia Drang Valley in central Viet Nam last November. In that fight, divisions faced divisions in the war's most massive deployment of forces, and the Viet Cong was roundly beaten. American officials claimed a count of about 1,300 enemy bodies.

* * * *

EVEN the Viet Cong's normally cocky "Liberation Radio" described Ia Drang as a defeat. It blamed certain Viet Cong commanders for having betrayed their forces to the Americans. Two VC commanders were shot for treason.

Since November, American forces have continued to pour into Viet Nam, and they often operate in battalion, or greater, strength. All these units are supported by enormour firepower, including 8-inch howitzers and air power. B52 bombers from Guam have saturated some forested areas with bombs.

Indications are tht all this has forced the Viet Cong to decentralize.

And, many military and civilian officials feel, there is a very good chance that one year from now there will no longer be any Viet Cong operations of battalion strength or more.

* * * *

THE optimists reason that this will end heavy American casualties.

The pessimists feel that this will be the beginning of even heavier American casualties. As the Viet Cong splinters into more company and platoon-size units, American forces also will have to split up to chase the enemy. And this will leave American units relatively exposed to the main weapon in the Viet Cong arsenal—ambush.

The 173rd Airborne Brigade got a taste of this Feb. 26, a scant 18 miles north of Saigon. In a jungle-hopping "eagle flight" helicopter operation, Alpha Company, 2nd Battalion of the 173rd, dropped onto a suspected Viet Cong concentration.

The Viet Cong was prepared for the 200 or so Americans.

* * * *

AS THE Americans charged through thick secondary growth, enemy mortar shells rained into the treetops, showering them with deadly fragments. The Americans moved back to allow an air strike against their entrenched enemy. The Viet Cong moved along with the Americans, maintaining contact all the way.

The air strike that followed killed Viet Cong and Americans too, as cluster bombs exploded.

When it was over, the Americans had lost more than half their number in killed or wounded. A relief force sent after the enemy guerrillas failed to find them. Their force of several hundred had melted away.

This may be the future shape of war here.

Rain Traps 3 Boys in Drain Line

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Police rescued three boys Saturday who were trapped for several hours in a storm sewer after two downpours. A fourth boy swam to safety.

All the boys were taken to Nazareth Hospital, and aides said they seemed in good condition. They are Richard Slack, 12, son of a Philadelphia police lieutenant, Mitchell Cooper, 14, Arnold Knable, 13, and Gary Burgman, 12.

The four had entered the sewer in northeast Philadelphia about 1:30 p.m. and were walking along a ledge above the water, which was only a few inches deep.

Fleming issued the following statement to newsmen:

"The White House does not make a practice of discussing individual news stories. But I want to make an exception here. I have seen a report distributed by the Associated Press that civilian leaders in Viet Nam are under White House orders to win the war by 1967 or else.

"We have not been asked for comment but I have talked with the President about this story. He has never heard of such an order. It is absolute fiction. The President wants the end of hostilities tomorrow, if possible, but this story is made up out of whole cloth."

Viet War Like Ring Bout, LBJ Told

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—A combat general told President Johnson Saturday "the enemy is groggy" in Viet Nam and likened the war to a "10-round boxing match and we are in the 5th round."

The Texas White House also made public an optimistic report on Viet Nam from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The report reiterated what Humphrey has already told Johnson and members of Congress, "the tide of battle . . . has begun to turn for the better."

Humphrey concluded the report predicting a "long and costly struggle" ahead, but asserting, "I am confident that we can prevent the success of aggression in South Viet Nam."

A series of recommendations to help the "Vietnamese people defeat aggression and to carry on a social and economic revolution" was also listed by the Vice President.

Brig. Gen. Ellis Williamson gave Johnson a broad review of the Viet Nam war picture —including troop morale and a prognosis of victory. When asked later when the "knock-out punch" would come, Williamson replied, "I don't know."

Williamson reassured the President no shortages have ever hampered the combat troops on the front line.

"I can truthfully say that I, and no other commander that I can think of, have ever been forced to slow down, stop or modify because of shortages," he said.

"As far as the front line combat soldier is concerned, he is getting what he needs to get the job done."

When asked if he anticipated a long war, Williamson replied, "I have a teen-age son and I hope he never sees Viet Nam as a soldier."

GEN. WILLIAMSON
We're in 5th Round

Williamson, who commanded troops in the Normandy landing in World War II and in Korea, said "in my year of experience I am convinced that the morale of the troops is the highest I have ever seen."

On the tide of the war, Williamson said, "the civilians are beginning to withdraw their voluntary support of the Viet Cong."

Williamson pointed out that last November 53 Viet Cong soldiers had surrendered and brought their weapons with them. He said that was the first surrender by any Viet Cong troops.

"Now if we can just get units to surrender," he said. "I think things are going well."

Snow Stuns Plains at End of Blizzard

Weather experts said the current storm may well eclipse the fabled blizzard of 1888, which denuded the Plains of people and livestock. Comparisons were difficult because few official records were kept of the 1888 blast.

* * * *

NORTH DAKOTA — Two dead, 35 missing, at least 445 travelers stranded. Three high school basketball coaches were rescued from their stalled car Saturday 38 miles south of Mandan, where they had been stranded since Wednesday. Acting Gov. Charles Tighe, who mobilized the National Guard and declared the state a disaster area, ordered all motorists to stay off roads and streets. The Air Force sent six helicopters to aid in rescue work.

SOUTH DAKOTA — Two dead, three missing, at least 344 stranded. Fifty families rescued by National Guardsmen from heatless homes at Pierre were housed in an armory. Telephone communication with Pierre, state capital, was cut. A power failure extended from Pierre in central South Dakota northward to a point near Bismarck. Power failures were reported at McIntosh, Bowdle, Hills View, Hosmer, Hoven, Java, Gettysburg, McLaughlin and Lebanon, S.D., and Selfridge, N.D.

MINNESOTA — Four dead. A Duluth theater was opened to families whose homes had no heat. International Falls reported 38 inches of snow on the ground.

NEBRASKA — Two deaths, two missing, 25 persons stranded. Seventeen persons were rescued Saturday from stalled cars near Harrison.

A 19-year-old San Francisco sailor was injured seriously late Saturday night when he fell or was pushed from a second-story balcony during a fracas at a new apartment complex.

Doctors at Community Hospital said Joseph M. Certo Jr., assigned to the U.S. Naval Construction Station, San Francisco, sustained severe head and internal injuries when he plummeted 20 feet to the concrete pool deck at 3317 Wilton St.

Patrol Sgt. Frank Shaw said officers were investigating a fight which reportedly took place in an apartment adjoining one where Certo and some friends were visiting. Officers were questioning at least one suspect and quizzing several other party-goers in an effort to determine why Certo fell.

ope, but would not identify himself.

Shrednik was arrested along with Michael A. Dinel, 20, of 221 Nieto Ave., Friday on suspicion of robbing Cole's Market, 1131 E. Wardlow Road.

Detectives said $1,400—about half the sum taken in the market robbery—was found in a paper sack under the seat of Dinel's car when he was arrested.

They said Shrednik had about $1,200 plus a pistol, rifle and shotgun in his lavishly furnished apartment.

Both suspects are being held without bail pending further investigation of a two-month string of armed robberies in the Long Beach-Orange County area which netted some $40,000.

RUSK, CANADIAN END CONFERENCE

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Canadian Foreign Minister Paul Martin held open Saturday the possibility the three-nation International Control Commission might one day become a channel for starting Viet Nam peace talks. So far, Rusk reported, Communist North Viet Nam has shown no interest in negotiations "through any forums or channels."

Canada, India and Poland form the International Control Commission set up to supervise Indochinese neutrality as set up by the 1954 Geneva agreements.

Rusk and Martin spoke at a joint news conference at the windup of a two-day, cabinet-level conference between the two countries dealing primarily with economic affairs.

A windup communique was coughed in a general tone of harmony overriding some specific frictions which recur between the two North American neighbors, whose $10-billion annual commerce between them makes them the world's largest trading partners.

The United States gave what Martin tremed "a most understanding reception and appreciation" of Canadian concern about possible economic harm to her from Washington moves to stem the U.S. gold drain.

Child Frozen

Her father, Eugene Welk, found her body in a field about a quarter of a mile from their farmhouse near Strasburg, N.D.

Carla, 6, had gone out to do chores with her two brothers Thursday night. She became lost in the blinding snow and wind as they darted from the chicken coop to the barn.

The storm made a search impossible. Her father discovered her Saturday afternoon when the storm eased.

Queen Hailed

Island-hopping Queen Elizabeth of Britain arrived in Savanna la Mar, Jamaica, Saturday and nearly the entire city turned out to greet her and Prince Philip.

Police estimated the crowd at 10,000. The population is 13,000.

No Vacancy

Gov. Edmund G. Brown told a 9th-grade aspirant for his job Saturday that "there is not much of a turnover in California governors, but I hope this will not discourage you."

The Democratic governor was replying to a letter from George Saucedo, a student at Lathrop Junior High School in Santa Ana. The youth, in a letter, asked Brown a series of questions about the governorship.

Remembered

Saturday was the 13th anniversary of Joseph Stalin's death and at least one person in this de-Stalinized capital remembered. Someone put a small bouquet of flowers on his grave outside the Kremlin wall. Although it wasn't known for sure, it may have been the late dictator's daughter Svetlana who has made this gesture in the past.

Otherwise, there was no observance of the anniversary.

Appointed

Dr. Robert P. Grant, 50, Saturday was named by President Johnson to be director of the National Heart Institute.

The post has been vacant since last September when the President selected Dr. William H. Stewart as surgeon general of the U.S. Public Health Service.

Checkup

Parker, 63, was admitted after returning from a two-day trip to Tucson, Ariz. He reportedly complained of "not feeling well."

Although the chief underwent heart surgery last year, Police Inspector John Kinling said Parker's illness had nothing to do with heart trouble.

Taylor Says U.S. Mines Should Seal Viet Ports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maxwell D. Taylor, one of President Johnson's top advisers, believes that the important supply harbor of Haiphong in North Viet Nam should be closed by U.S. mines.

The opinion of Taylor, retired general and former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was made in a written addition to his public testimony at the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing Feb. 17.

To date, the North Viet Nam capital of Hanoi and the main supply harbor of Haiphong have been spared bombing or action by U.S. air and naval forces.

Taylor's advocacy of closing the harbor came in answer to 26 questions by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., submitted Feb. 17 for written replies to save time during the televised hearings.

The Silent Patrolmen Balk Thugs

Story and Photos
By BILL HAZLETT

There was a chill nip in the air, and even though it still was early in the evening, the streets seemed almost deserted as the elderly woman turned north on Cedar Avenue from Broadway.

She hardly noticed the two young men on bicycles who rode slowly under the streetlight at the next corner. She didn't even see the outline of a man crouched behind some shrubbery near the alley ahead.

SUDDENLY, without warning, she was struck from the side and shoved roughly to the sidewalk. Her tiny sack ripped, spilling its meager contents onto the parkway. She felt a hard jerk on her purse, and heard the plastic strap snap as it gave way.

She screemed in terror.

Although stunned by the unexpected attack, and shocked by being thrown to the sidewalk, she managed to catch sight of the youth—about 15 or 16—as he darted toward the alley, her purse tucked under his arm like a football.

What she didn't notice was the arrival of help. The two bicycle riders who'd been pedaling slowly along the next street, quickly wheeled into action.

PEDALING furiously, one cyclist spun into the alley, scant yards behind the running youth. The other bike rider backtracked along the street and turned into the alley from the other end, blocking the purse-snatcher's escape.

Officers of the Long Beach Police Department's bike patrol had scored again.

Moments later the two officers reappeared from the mouth of the alley. Both were pushing their bikes. One had the slender youth in custody, the other carried the recovered purse.

The victim, who by this time had gotten painfully to her feet and was gathering her spilled groceries, smiled her appreciation as the officers approached and identified themselves.

Her smile widened as her purse was handed back. The pocketbook, for which she had been attacked and thrown to the sidewalk, contained $7.43, plus a few personal belongings.

But even that small sum is important to someone on a pension-tightened budget.

The bicycle has long been a mode of transportation for police officers, both in this country and Europe, but the bicycle patrol brainchild of the Long Beach Juvenile Division, has proved an effective new approach to the prevention and control of street crime.

Every evening, as darkness settles over the downtown streets, two juvenile officers dressed in plain clothes check out nondescript bikes for their routine patrol.

The effectiveness of the patrol has been proved at least 50 times since the bicycle officers went into operation in November of 1964. During that period the two-wheeler teams have rounded up more than 35 felony suspects and made nearly a score of misdemeanor arrests.

THE CRIMES cleared by bike riding police officers have ranged from homicide through armed robbery, burglary, auto theft, narcotics and escape, to possession of alcohol by teenagers and purse-snatching.

In one recent series of purse thefts, even the thieves went mobile. Using bicycles, the young thugs would ride past elderly women on either side, stealing purses on the move.

As a patrol vehicle, the bicyle has many advantages.

"The bike is quieter, and not as conspicuous as either the patrol cars or the unmarked undercover cars," Officer Heath, veteran of many leg-tiring miles said.

"Besides, we can ride between houses and down passageways where a car could never go. It gives us a big advantage in making quick and thorough neighborhood searches," he added.

Of course, despite all the advantages, the bicycle has several disadvantage in police work.

"We ca't carry a radio, becaue it would be a dead give-away, so we have to use call boxes and telephones to call the station for help.

"And sometimes, when the weather really gets bad, a guy could freeze out there on a bike," Patrolman Fabarez pointed out.

ALL ARRESTS by the bicycle patrol aren't as routine or as easy as catching a purse-snatcher.

A few months ago, Heath and Officer Terry Cofield were riding bike patrol in an alley near Long Beach Boulevard and Tenth Street.

A car, carrying two suspected bandits, suddenly roared into the alley without lights, catching the two officers by surprise. Heath piled off his bike a split second before it was crushed under the wheels of the speeding auto.

The two officers fired a fusillade of slugs at the fleeting car, but it disappeared onto the next street.

Stopping a moving automobile from a bicycle is a tough job, but Heath and Fabarez managed it recently when a car pulled away from the curb without lights and roared into an alley.

The two police cyclists managed to pull alongside the moving car—showed badges and identification cards—and ordered the driver to the curb.

The three teen-age occupants—quizzed about the beer they'd been drinking—seemed dumbfounded to see police officers riding bikes in sweaters, tennis shoes and wash trouer. One could hardly find word—he just kept staring at the officers' guns, handcuffs and badges.

BUT HE FOUND enough words when a patrol car with uniformed officers and hustled him and his two companions off to the station for questioning about drinking beer while under age.

Even more surprised were the celebrators at a loud teen-age party Friday night in a downtown apartment.

As the two youthful-looking officers climbed the stairs to check on the activities, they were greeted by loud shouts to share in the beer and fun.

The loud invitations disappeared in a sudden hush as the officers produced their badges and began checking ages and addresses of the youthful party group. Beer cans and cigarettes dropped from teen-age hands as though they'd suddenly grown red hot.

"We could hear the party from almost a block away as we were riding past," Heath explained.

"YOU NEVER know what you'll find at one of these unsupervised blowouts — drug pills, marijuana — figured it was worth checking," he added.

As a selective enforcement tool, the bicycle patrol is paying big dividends for the Long Beach Police Department. Riding varied routes which criss-cross the downtown area, the cycle officers add an important factor to routine walking and cruiser patrols.

Long Beach, plagued by a drastic upsurge in street crime, found a needed tool in the two-wheel patrol. And the mugger, petty thief or purse-snatcher will never know if that guy down the block on a bike is a policeman or not—until he's collared.

AIRLINER AFTER 'BEAUTIFUL' SLIDE

Firemen stand by Eastern Air Lines 3-engine jet on Miami International Airport Saturday after it skids safely to stop with 101 persons aboard. All passengers praised pilot for his skillful landing.

The passengers crowded around Young, who tried to meet and talk to each one of them and congratulated him for "a beautiful landing."

An Eastern spokesman said there would be a special flight leaving for New York City at 6:55 p.m. for any passengers who wanted to continue their trips north.

Capt. Young, who has been flying 21 years, said this was the first wheels-up landing he ever had made.

Mrs. Rose Catanzaro of Clinton, N.J., said the pilot told the passengers they could have one smoke before the landing.

"I quit smoking 10 days ago, but I'm back on it again now," she said.

Other crewmen aboard the plane were First Officer Bert Stockstill, Second Officer Steve Britt and Stewardesses Sandra Rodgers, Linda Sigman and Elaine Sheppard, all of Atlanta.

Mrs. Lewis Hicks of Lawrenceville, N.J. called the landing "better than some wheel landings I've been in."

She was en route home with her two daughters, Martha, 5, and Ginny, 7, and their nursemaid, Pat Drakesford of Tylorstown, Wales. Mrs. Hicks said her husband had done some flying.

"I'd say that you couldn't have had a better landing than that," she added and called the pilot "fabulous."

Mrs. Drakeford, who has been in the United States since November, said she was "a little nervous but happy that everything came out all right."

Airport Fire Chief John F. Sharpe also praised the pilot.

It was the most beautiful belly landing I've ever witnessed," Sharpe said.

"I went to the touchdown spot and so help me there was nothing but pencil marks—that's how steady he had that thing."

13 Firms Leveled in 2 Texas Fires

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Two separate fires destroyed 13 business firms Saturday and sent nine firemen to the hospital.

Another blaze destroyed a greeting-card warehouse and an adjacent two-story building housing an aircraft accessories firm.

• • • •

A DOZEN firemen narrowly escaped serious injury when the warehouse roof caved in. Six firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

While the warehouse fire was at its height, the second fire broke out in North San Antonio. The blaze was controlled within two hours. Three firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

Officials said cause of the fires had not been established. They would make no estimate of the damage, they said, until Monday.

Soldiers' Conviction Reversed by Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Military Appeals has reversed the conviction of Army Pvt. Lowell Traweek Jr. of Pasadena, Calif., of having negligently destroyed a helicopter he was assigned to guard.

A court-martial at Ft. Bragg, N. C., convicted Traweek in November 1964. The Army said he made a statement that he entered the helicopter while on guard duty because he was cold.

He tried to turn on the heater, he was quoted as saying, and inadvertently turned on the engine instead. The machine rose into the air and then crashed on its side.

Traweek, 24, said he had never operated a helicopter and contended that agents of the Army's criminal investigation detachment had extorted a confession from him and had denied him the right to see a lawyer.

The agents disputed his contention, and after a review board confirmed that conviction in January, 1965, Traweek served a sentence of eight months at hard labor.

The Court of Military Appeals held that the confession was admissible. But it held that a law officer had instructed members of the court-martial wrongly by failing to note that the government was obligated to prove there was no denial of counsel.

Consequently, the appellate court said, either a new court-martial must be convened to try the case again or the charges should be dismissed.

If he is convicted again, it was explained, he would not have to serve more time.

Man Hurled Into Sweeper Path, Killed

A Wilmington man hurled from his overturning car in Hawthorne was injured fatally Friday when a street-sweeper truck ran over him.

Dead is Erling Soren Johnson, 45, of 431 E. 230th St. He died at Hawthorne Community Hospital about 45 minutes after the 12:35 p.m. accident on the southbound on-ramp of the San Diego Freeway.

The California Highway Patrol said Johnson veered out of control on the freeway approach and his car struck a guardrail. As he fell out, officers said, the street-sweeper driver was unable to avoid him.

7 Attacked As Crashers Mar Party

SAN JOSE (AP)—Party crashers armed with knives and tire irons fatally wounded two guests and injured several others early Saturday.

Hostess Miss Roxanne Haney, 22, opening the door to repeated banging at 2 a.m., was slugged with a tire iron.

Andrew Sotel, 19, a guest, was stabbed fatally in the chest.

Guests ran screaming into the yard where Henry Silvas, 20, also was stabbed fatally.

At least four other guests were injured in varying degrees.

Policeman Larry LeFall was knocked down in a rush of relatives of the injured into a hospital emergency room. His back was wrenched.

All of the party crashers escaped.

AIRLINER AFTER 'BEAUTIFUL' SLIDE

Firemen stand by Eastern Air Lines 3-engine jet on Miami International Airport Saturday after it skids safely to stop with 101 persons aboard. All passengers praised pilot for his skillful landing.

The passengers crowded around Young, who tried to meet and talk to each one of them and congratulated him for "a beautiful landing."

An Eastern spokesman said there would be a special flight leaving for New York City at 6:55 p.m. for any passengers who wanted to continue their trips north.

Capt. Young, who has been flying 21 years, said this was the first wheels-up landing he ever had made.

Mrs. Rose Catanzaro of Clinton, N. J., said the pilot told the passengers they could have one smoke before the landing.

"I quit smoking 10 days ago, but I'm back on it again now," she said.

Other crewmen aboard the plane were First Officer Bert Stockstill, Second Officer Steve Britt and Stewardesses Sandra Rodgers, Linda Sigman and Elaine Sheppard, all of Atlanta.

Mrs. Lewis Hicks of Lawrenceville, N. J. called the landing "better than some wheel landings I've been in."

She was en route home with her two daughters, Martha, 5, and Ginny, 7, and their nursemaid, Pat Drakesford of Tylorstown, Wales. Mrs. Hicks said her husband had done some flying.

"I'd say that you couldn't have had a better landing than that," she added and called the pilot "fabulous."

Mrs. Drakeford, who has been in the United States since November, said she was "a little nervous but happy that everything came out all right."

Airport Fire Chief John F. Sharpe also praised the pilot.

It was the most beautiful belly landing I've ever witnessed," Sharpe said.

"I went to the touchdown spot and so help me there was nothing but pencil marks—that's how steady he had that thing."

13 Firms Leveled in 2 Texas Fires

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Two separate fires destroyed 13 business firms Saturday and sent nine firemen to the hospital.

Another blaze destroyed a greeting-card warehouse and an adjacent two-story building housing an aircraft accessories firm.

* * * *

A DOZEN firemen narrowly escaped serious injury when the warehouse roof caved in. Six firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

While the warehouse fire was at its height, the second fire broke out in North San Antonio. The blaze was controlled within two hours. Three firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

Officials said cause of the fires had not been established. They would make no estimate of the damage, they said, until Monday.

Ban 3 Groups From Diamond Area

Soldiers' Conviction Reversed by Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Military Appeals has reversed the conviction of Army Pvt. Lowell Traweek Jr. of Pasadena, Calif., of having negligently destroyed a helicopter he was assigned to guard.

A court-martial at Ft. Bragg, N. C., convicted Traweek in November 1964. The Army said he made a statement that he entered the helicopter while on guard duty because he was cold.

He tried to turn on the heater, he was quoted as saying, and inadvertently turned on the engine instead. The machine rose into the air and then crashed on its side.

Traweek, 24, said he had never operated a helicopter and contended that agents of the Army's criminal investigation detachment had extorted a confession from him and had denied him the right to see a lawyer.

The agents disputed his contention, and after a review board confirmed that conviction in January, 1965, Traweek served a sentence of eight months at hard labor.

The Court of Military Appeals held that the confession was admissible. But it held that a law officer had instructed members of the court-martial wrongly by failing to note that the government was obligated to prove there was no denial of counsel.

Consequently, the appellate court said, either a new court-martial must be convened to try the case again or the charges should be dismissed.

If he is convicted again, it was explained, he would not have to serve more time.

Man Hurled Into Sweeper Path, Killed

A Wilmington man hurled from his overturning car in Hawthorne was injured fatally Friday when a street-sweeper truck ran over him.

Dead is Erling Soren Johnson, 45, of 431 E. 230th St. He died at Hawthorne Community Hospital about 45 minutes after the 12:35 p.m. accident on the southbound on-ramp of the San Diego Freeway.

The California Highway Patrol said Johnson veered out of control on the freeway approach and his car struck a guardrail. As he fell out, officers said, the street-sweeper driver was unable to avoid him.

7 Attacked As Crashers Mar Party

SAN JOSE (AP)—Party crashers armed with knives and tire irons fatally wounded two guests and injured several others early Saturday.

Hostess Miss Roxanne Haney, 22, opening the door to repeated banging at 2 a.m., was slugged with a tire iron.

Andrew Sotel, 19, a guest, was stabbed fatally in the chest.

Guests ran screaming into the yard where Henry Silvas, 20, also was stabbed fatally.

At least four other guests were injured in varying degrees.

Policeman Larry LeFall was knocked down in a rush of relatives of the injured into a hospital emergency room. His back was wrenched.

All of the party crashers escaped.

Volunteers Out for 'Y' Funds

Nearly 100 volunteer workers have kicked off a campaign to raise $20,000 for support of the Wilmington-Carson-Dominguez YMCA.

Guy Ley, general chairman, said the drive to raise money to carry on the program for the coming year will continue through March 23.

Freak Winds Battered Jet

a sustained 86 miles an hour, with gusts likely to be higher.

Officials at the scene said the winds and air currents could have overcome the plane, then braced its fall.

The plane had a crew of 11. Of the 113 passengers, 106 boarded in Tokyo and the remainder came from San Francisco. Nearly all were bound for Hong Kong, with eight bound for Rangoon, Burma; one for Karachi, Pakistan, and one for London.

One of those who saw the disaster was Shizuaoka Serizawa, a weather observer near Mt. Fuji.

"I saw the plane rising perpendicularly and then saw two thirds of one wing tear off," he said. "Then there were flames, with both segments burning. I saw small dots, which might have been fragments. Then the plane went down."

A Japanese military cadet said he watched through binoculars as both wings tore from the plane and the body spiraled down.

* * * *

CHO-O IKEYA, a fireman, reported the plane seemed to plunge rapidly at first, then slowed down.

"It began to sway from side to side, like a leaf," he said. "The air currents seemed to catch it up."

Nearly 1,000 rescue workers struggled through the brushy area to begin bringing out the bodies. Police said many bodies were badly mangled, but were not burned. Apparently the plane did not explode, although it was aflame.

The soft volcanic ash of Fuji hampered disaster teams. Trucks sank hub deep into the mire. Soldiers on foot had slow going.

In Gotemba, a town of 46,000, streets bustled with activity through the early morning hours. Many residents wandered about the town or gathered at the temples where the bodies were being brought.

* * * *

THE Gotemba telephone exchange was flooded with long distance calls from the United States and elsewhere as relatives sought information about the crash. Police brought in interpreters who had served at the Olympics.

In Minneapolis, a spokesman for the Thermo King Corp., said:

"This has got to be the most disastrous thing a company could experience." He added that every one of the firm's top dealers was on the plane.

Early reports from military sources that a Japanese defense force plane might have collided with the passenger jet were discounted as soon as eyewitnesses told their stories, and photographs were released, showing that it had not.

Plane Tire That Folds Perfected

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Airplane tires that are self-folding and take from half to one-fourth less storage space when the landing gear is retracted have passed preliminary tests, B. F. Goodrich Co. said Saturday.

Goodrich said it began work on foldable tires in 1962 and that the new tires were developed by joint effort with the flight dynamics laboratory at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

Sidewalls of the new tire are folded under the tread, which has a circumference only slightly larger than that of the wheel on which it is mounted, Goodrich said. The tire inflates automatically to proper size when the landing gear is lowered, with an expansion of about 30% in diameter of smaller sizes and by about 50% in larger tires.

Ghana-Britain Link Restored

COTONOU, Dahomey (AP)—Ghana decided Saturday to reestablish diplomatic relations with Great Britain, Radio Ghana announced.

Ghana's decision had been expected since Great Britain recognized the new regime in Ghana Friday.

'Is God Dead?' Speaker's Topic

John Flack, national coordinator of the Campus Crusade for Christ, will speak Wednesday at Long Beach State College from the speakers' platform in front of the bookstore. Flack will discuss "Is God Dead?"

The appearance is one of several the former college professor and Princeton football player will make on campus next week.

Tells U.S. Space Goal

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The U. S. goal in space is to insure that no other nation gains a military superiority there, says the director of the Apollo program.

Maj. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips told a space conference here the United States "must have the ability to deal with a nation which certainly will exploit space to military advantage. This is a point on which we cannot be caught short."

HOW WOULD THEY BE TOLD?

63 Tots Left By American Couples in Mt. Fuji Crash

By United Press International

At least 63 American children Saturday were told or will someday learn their parents died in a plane crash halfway around the world.

The crash of a British Overseas Airways Corp. Boeing 707 on Mt. Fuji in Japan took the lives of at least 27 American couples who left their children behind on a trip to the Orient. There were two known sets of grandparents aboard the plane.

Mr. and Mrs. David Havlik, Columbus, Ohio, left seven children at home, most of any couple aboard.

Two couples with five children were killed in the crash. They were the Robert E. Lubbers of Milwaukee, Wis., and the Joseph H. Richings of Buffalo, N.Y.

Five couples, including the Porters, were parents of three children, 13 had two children and five couples left one child.

BARRINGTON, Ill., (AP) — For the second time in three years the press of business saved the life of an executive and his wife who live in this Chicago suburb.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Sirotek Jr. were all set to accompany 75 dealers and executives of Thermo King Corp. and their wives on a tour of the Orient when Sirotek decided he was too busy.

Sirotek's firm distributes Thermo King products.

On Feb. 12, 1963, after a Thermo King convention in Miami, the Siroteks switched to an earlier flight because Sirotek had "too much work back in the office."

HENRY KOLBO
Glendoran Killed

MRS. HENRY KOLBO
Dies With Husband

Project (NAPP) operating out of San Pedro. He is on the program-development staff of Operation Head Start in Los Angeles County. Before joining NAPP in April, 1965, he served for several years in the harbor area as a representative of the L. A. County Department of Community Services.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Fischer is survived by two young sons.

Also killed was a Los Angeles man renowned as one of the nation's leading designers of women's sportswear. Philip Rosenberg, 52, who operated the firm known at Phil Rose of California, died, along with two members of his staff, Bascom F. Stanley, a designer, and Barbara Stuckey, a publicist.

Rosenberg, who used the name Phil Rose, was en route to Hong Kong where he had a factory in which his sweaters and some other sportswear were made.

Other prominent Southern Californians among the dead include Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kolbo of Glendora. Kolbo was national account manager for Thermo-King Corp. of Minneapolis, Minn., and was on a vacation trip to the Orient with many other employes of the company.

Another Thermo-King executive killed was Reginald F. Freestone, of South San Francisco, vice president and general manager of the San Francisco office. His wife died with him.

A California newspaperman also was killed. He was Neil K. Hulbert, 37, chief photographer for the Humboldt Standard and Times at Eureka in Northern California. His uncle, Don O'Kane is publisher of the two newspapers.

Plane Tire That Folds Perfected

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Airplane tires that are self-folding and take from half to one-fourth less storage space when the landing gear is retracted have passed preliminary tests, B. F. Goodrich Co. said Saturday.

Goodrich said it began work on foldable tires in 1962 and that the new tires were developed by joint effort with the flight dynamics laboratory at Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

Sidewalls of the new tire are folded under the tread, which has a circumference only slightly larger than that of the wheel on which it is mounted, Goodrich said. The tire inflates automatically to proper size when the landing gear is lowered, with an expansion of about 30% in diameter of smaller sizes and by about 50% in larger tires.

'Is God Dead?' Speaker's Topic

John Flack, national coordinator of the Campus Crusade for Christ, will speak Wednesday at Long Beach State College from the speakers' platform in front of the bookstore. Flack will discuss "Is God Dead?"

The appearance is one of several the former college professor and Princeton football player will make on campus next week.

Tells U.S. Space Goal

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The U. S. goal in space is to insure that no other nation gains a military superiority there, says the director of the Apollo program.

Maj. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips told a space conference here the United States "must have the ability to deal with a nation which certainly will exploit space to military advantage. This is a point on which we cannot be caught short."

By United Press International

At least 63 American children Saturday were told or will someday learn their parents died in a plane crash halfway around the world.

The crash of a British Overseas Airways Corp. Boeing 707 on Mt. Fuji in Japan took the lives of at least 27 American couples who left their children behind on a trip to the Orient. There were two known sets of grandparents aboard the plane.

Mr. and Mrs. David Havlik, Columbus, Ohio, left seven children at home, most of any couple aboard.

Two couples with five children were killed in the crash. They were the Robert E. Lubbers of Milwaukee, Wis., and the Joseph H. Richings of Buffalo, N.Y.

Five couples, including the Porters, were parents of three children, 13 had two children and five couples left one child.

BARRINGTON, Ill., (AP) — For the second time in three years the press of business saved the life of an executive and his wife who live in this Chicago suburb.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Sirotek Jr. were all set to accompany 75 dealers and executives of Thermo King Corp. and their wives on a tour of the Orient when Sirotek decided he was too busy.

Sirotek's firm distributes Thermo King products.

On Feb. 12, 1963, after a Thermo King convention in Miami, the Siroteks switched to an earlier flight because Sirotek had "too much work back in the office."

The later plane crashed in the Everglades, killing all 4[illegible] abroad.

HENRY KOLBO
Glendoran Killed

MRS. HENRY KOLBO

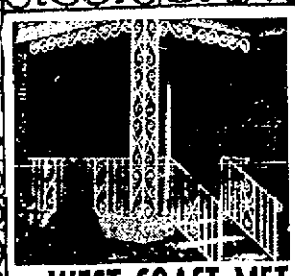
Project (NAPP) operating out of San Pedro. He is on the program - development staff of Operation Head Start in Los Angeles County. Before joining NAPP in April, 1965, he served for several years in the harbor area as a representative of the L. A. County Department of Community Services.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Fischer is survived by two young sons.



Also killed was a Los Angeles man renowned as one of the nation's leading designers of women's sportswear. Philip Rosenberg, 52, who operated the firm known at Phil Rose of California, died, along with two members of his staff, Bascom F. Stanley, a designer, and Barbara Stuckey, a publicist.

Rosenberg, who used the name Phil Rose, was en route to Hong Kong where he had a factory in which his sweaters and some other sportswear were made.

Other prominent Southern Californians among the dead include Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kolbo of Glendora. Kolbo was national account manager for Thermo-King Corp. of Minneapolis, Minn., and was on a vacation trip to the Orient with many other employes of the company.

Another Thermo-King executive killed was Reginald F. Freestone, of South San Francisco, vice president and general manager of the San Francisco office. His wife died with him.

A California newspaperman also was killed. He was Neil K. Hulbert, 37, chief photographer for the Humboldt Standard and Times at Eureka in Northern California. His uncle, Don O'Kane is publisher of the two newspapers.

Prison Official Wants Military to Accept Felons

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A former president of the American Correctional Association urges the armed forces to open enlistments to men who have served prison terms for felonies.

The recommendation came from Harry C. Tinsley, Colorado's chief of corrections who headed the national organization in 1964. He now is one of its directors and is a veteran of more than a quarter century in the penal field in the state. He formerly was warden of the penitentiary.

Tinsley said many persons who have served terms in penal institutions would be assets to the armed forces and that the chance to serve would help in their re-integration into civilian life.

His comments were prompted by a petition signed by 419 inmates of the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City asking to be released from their prison sentences to join the American forces in Viet Nam. The petition was addressed to President Lyndon B. Johnson and to Gov. John A. Love of Colorado.

The Coloradans' petition, Tinsley said, cannot be granted because "military service must not be a substitute for serving a prison sentence."

He commended the patriotic spirit shown by the men and added that at present "the military looks reluctantly at anyone even with an arrest record."

Urging that men who have completed prison terms be considered for the armed forces, Tinsley said these persons "need a chance to prove themselves."

He emphasized close screening of applicants would be essential and said enlistments should be accepted on an individual basis, rather than a blanket basis.

The correctional chief predicted that if the armed forces' demands for manpower increase, there may be a relaxation of the present restrictions such as occurred during World War II.

Assembly Panel to Probe State Park Acquisitions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assemblyman John C. Williamson said Saturday he wants lawmakers to take a close look at Gov. Brown's proposed $44 million park acquisition program.

The Bakersfield Democrat said approval of the entire 25 project package would "virtually exhaust" the $85 million earmarked for acquisition in the 1964 bond act approved by voters.

Williamson said his Assembly ways and means subcommittee on capital outlay will make a "close and searching" probe of the Brown parks program.

Last year, the Legislature approved $41 million for 10 park projects but only after much squabbling.

Earlier this year, Sen. George Miller Jr., D-Martinez, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, criticized the Brown program for concentrating too much on acquisition and not enough on development of presently owned state lands.

"I think we must determine whether the state is buying the best set of new parks for its money and not foreclosing purchase of other good potential parks just because they are not ready for consideration at this time," Williamson said in a statement.

Williamson criticized state officials for not moving fast enough to obtain federal funds for the state's park bond program.

He said he had been informed that if last year's 10 park projects were approved, the state would be entitled to "upwards of $10 million" in federal cash.

"My information is that as recently as a month ago, not a single application on a park bond project had yet been filed with the federal government," he said.

Prison Official Wants Military to Accept Felons

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A former president of the American Correctional Association urges the armed forces to open enlistments to men who have served prison terms for felonies.

The recommendation came from Harry C. Tinsley, Colorado's chief of corrections who headed the national organization in 1964. He now is one of its directors and is a veteran of more than a quarter century in the penal field in the state. He formerly was warden of the penitentiary.

He emphasized close screening of applicants would be essential and said enlistments should be accepted on an individual basis, rather than a blanket basis.

The correctional chief predicted that if the armed forces' demands for manpower increase, there may be a relaxation of the present restrictions such as occurred during World War II.

Rules for Antipoverty Board Election Kept Any Real Issue From Being Raised

By CHARLES SUTTON

Antipoverty officials, now probing the wreckage of last week's poverty election for clues to its failure, are bound, sooner or later, to be struck by the fatal irony of their original decision to bar all but the poor from the race.

As it turns out, it was precisely because the candidates themselves were poor and inexperienced—and largely uninformed—that they failed to raise issues that might have engaged the interests and the passions of the low-income groups in the county.

No Conflict

In the end, some observers now believe, it was this very sterility in the election that helped lead it to the slaughter.

It may not be an axiom of politics, but it seems reasonable to assume that any election, to mean anything, must have an element of conflict in it. The poverty election had none to speak of, and so the apathy that was so widespread to begin with simply set in like rigor mortis.

All of which is not to say that even an issue-oriented contest would have brought the poor out in droves. That would have been too much to expect under a poverty program that has yet to make any appreciable dent on the county's hard - core poverty pockets. Yet a live campaign probably could have resulted, say, in a 10% turnout, which is anything but paltry as poverty elections go today.

That the election was run in an intellectual and political vacuum is seen in the harmless simplicity of the candidates' statements.

Vacuous Talk

"I seek to serve the community since I have a sincere interest in the poor—especially the poor on the East side," declared one earnest aspirant.

The others were no different. Some made vague references to employment and education. But when it came to issues that could have been raised with meaning, they weren't touched. Yet there are such issues, whatever one may think of them.

No one, for example, thought to bring up a strategy for making jobs. No one bothered to raise the possibility, say, of diverting poverty funds for a campaign to improve housing in the slums. No one challenged what, from the poor and the old folks' point of view, might seem like stinginess and officiousness on the part of welfare agencies and the state.

No Challenge

No one suggested that perhaps the poverty war here might tackle such things as high rents in low-income neighborhoods, or high food prices. No one offered any thoughts of revamping the 23-member antipoverty board itself, which is weighted—justifiably or not—in favor of government and public agencies. No one, indeed, dared to challenge any of the policies of the Economic and Youth Opportunities Agency.

The closest any of the candidates came to waging a genuine struggle was within the framework of a narrow provincialism. ("I can do most for the district" type of thing.)

Philosophically and practically, say some who've had dealings with the poverty war, the gulf between the "establishment" and the poor is wide enough to have generated a blazing controversy.

Leaders Aloof

On the other hand, asks a poverty-war official, would it be asking too much of minority leaders to plunge into the election themselves? Couldn't they and other "spokesmen" for the poor, he says, have run their own candidates for the board, and used the election as a platform for their views?

Assuming it might have been possible under the election ground rules, it's a question minority leaders may have to face in a future election (if there is one).

At this point, they view the whole poverty setup here as a tool of the "establishment." As far as they're concerned, the balloting was—and would have been with their involvement—an exercise in futility.

Because it was bereft of issues, the election looked and sounded hollow.

The only meaningful split in the votes—and it may be an unfortunate one—appeared to be along ethnic lines. The Mexican-Americans voted for Mexican-Americans, and the Negroes voted for Negroes. (The results were four and three seats, respectively.)

Feudists Mum

The one place where politics seemed certain to intrude—but didn't—was in the area defined by the bitter feud over the poverty war between Los Angeles Mayor Samuel W. Yorty and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, the Negro congressman from Watts. Hawkins and Yorty, it was thought, were trying to push hand-picked candidates for the board. But the preponderance of evidence indicates that neither did much if anything, which, in a way, is a fair measure of the election's importance.

Had the two men, in fact, gone out of their way to influence the election, the campaign might have generated the very heat it needed. As it was, the election looked like a harmless game played by political babes in the woods.

Russ, Japan Plan Joint Air Service

It will be called a joint service of Russian and Japanese lines. The plane will be a TU114, its pilot a Russian. Other crewmen can be Japanese, under the agreement.

This agreement makes no promises, but it says the Soviets acknowledge Japan's desire to use its planes within two years. The Japanese say their American Douglas-built DC8 jets could make it in 10 hours, while the Russians' turboprop takes 12.

The distance is charted as 4,928 miles. A route through Manchurian skies would cut this about 250 miles, but it seems likely the planes will shun Chinese air.

Beauty Quest Takes Udall to Munich Dump

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — U.S. Interior Secretary Steward L. Udall's study tour on how to make America more beautiful took him to the Munich city dump Saturday.

Udall donned a protective helmet and sat at the controls of Europe's most modern refuse incinerator.

The dump was the first stop of a Bavarian swing in Udall's hunt for tips on battling air and water pollution and preserving natural resources back home.

The Munich trash incinerator is almost entirely automatic. It burns the refuse of this city of more than a million persons. It is "smokeless."

Silverthorne Out on $15,000 Bail for Mental Test

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One-time bank president Don Silverthorne and his co-defendant, William S. Bennett, 36, were freed on $15,000 bail each Saturday, after being ordered to jail for 90 days for psychiatric examination.

Federal Judge Charles L. Powell, Spokane, Wash., Friday, also gave each the maximum sentence, as required by law when psychiatric tests are made. He then stayed execution but will re-sentence them after the examination report is completed.

The two report Tuesday at 10 a.m. at which time attorneys said they would file motions for appeal.

Morse-Taylor Viet Classic for Sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The transcript of last month's torrid Fulbright Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on Viet Nam soon will be available to the public, and readers will find that Sen. Wayne Morse has been censored.

For $2.25 a copy, available from the government printing office, readers will find Morse saying "I don't intend to get down on that level and engage in that kind of debate, General."

* * * *

MILLIONS heard Morse, D-Ore., on television that day tell Taylor, "I don't intend to get down in the gutter with you and engage in that kind of debate, General."

Morse's reference to "smear artist" during the exchange also was deleted.

A staff assistant of the Foreign Relations Committee, who declined to identify himself over the telephone, said he had changed the text because he "just felt like the permanent record should be toned down."

* * * *

HE SAID Morse had not seen the transcript before it was printed. Morse was in Oregon Saturday.

The committee has had hundreds of requests for the 743-page hearing record. A committee spokesman said it will be several days before enough copies will be available for the public.

New York Water Reserves at 50%

NEW YORK (UPI)—Water reserves in the city's upstate reservoirs reached the 50% mark Saturday as a result of runoff from recent snow and rain, water officials announced.

Storage was estimated at 241.4 billion gallons, 50.7% of capacity as compared to normal storage for the date of 77.5%. Reserves were down to 35.5% on the same date last year.

1 of Nine Juveniles Face Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One out of every nine American youngsters will find himself in juvenile court before reaching the age of 18, the government reported Saturday.

A total of 686,000 juvenile delinquency cases were handled by the courts during 1964, the Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said. This was a 14% increase over 1963.

* * * *

IN A REPORT, the Bureau said the increase might be attributed to the face that the ranks of teen-agers are being swelled by children born in the late 1940's when the birth rate was high.

It also said the greatest increase was in semi-urban communities despite the fact that urban courts handle more than two-thirds of the cases.

And, the report said, about one third of the cases involved children who had previous juvenile court records.

Udall donned a protective helmet and sat at the controls of Europe's most modern refuse incinerator.

The dump was the first stop of a Bavarian swing in Udall's hunt for tips on battling air and water pollution and preserving natural resources back home.

The Munich trash incinerator is almost entirely automatic. It burns the refuse of this city of more than a million persons. It is "smokeless."

Silverthorne Out on $15,000 Bail for Mental Test

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One-time bank president Don Silverthorne and his co-defendant, William S. Bennett, 36, were freed on $15,000 bail each Saturday, after being ordered to jail for 90 days for psychiatric examination.

Federal Judge Charles L. Powell, Spokane, Wash., Friday, also gave each the maximum sentence, as required by law when psychiatric tests are made. He then stayed execution but will re-sentence them after the examination report is completed.

The two report Tuesday at 10 a.m. at which time attorneys said they would file motions for appeal.

Morse-Taylor Viet Classic for Sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The transcript of last month's torrid Fulbright Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings on Viet Nam soon will be available to the public, and readers will find that Sen. Wayne Morse has been censored.

For $2.25 a copy, available from the government printing office, readers will find Morse saying "I don't intend to get down on that level and engage in that kind of debate, General."

* * * *

MILLIONS heard Morse, D-Ore., on television that day tell Taylor, "I don't intend to get down in the gutter with you and engage in that kind of debate, General."

Morse's reference to "smear artist" during the exchange also was deleted.

A staff assistant of the Foreign Relations Committee, who declined to identify himself over the telephone, said he had changed the text because he "just felt like the permanent record should be toned down."

* * * *

HE SAID Morse had not seen the transcript before it was printed. Morse was in Oregon Saturday.

The committee has had hundreds of requests for the 743-page hearing record. A committee spokesman said it will be several days before enough copies will be available for the public.

New York Water Reserves at 50%

NEW YORK (UPI)—Water reserves in the city's upstate reservoirs reached the 50% mark Saturday as a result of runoff from recent snow and rain, water officials announced.

Storage was estimated at 241.4 billion gallons, 50.7% of capacity as compared to normal storage for the date of 77.5%. Reserves were down to 35.5% on the same date last year.

1 of Nine Juveniles Face Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One out of every nine American youngsters will find himself in juvenile court before reaching the age of 18, the government reported Saturday.

A total of 686,000 juvenile delinquency cases were handled by the courts during 1964, the Children's Bureau of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said. This was a 14% increase over 1963.

* * * *

IN A REPORT, the Bureau said the increase might be attributed to the face that the ranks of teen-agers are being swelled by children born in the late 1940's when the birth rate was high.

It also said the greatest increase was in semi-urban communities despite the fact that urban courts handle more than two-thirds of the cases.

And, the report said, about one third of the cases involved children who had previous juvenile court records.

HHH Mission: Summertime Jobs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson directed Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Saturday to combat summertime unrest among young people by helping them find 1,750,000 jobs.

This broad assignment was given to Humphrey in a Presidential memorandum which said "unrest is typically greatest during the summer months." The memo was made public at White House press headquarters here.

Johnson, who flew to his ranch home near Johnson City Friday night for a weekend visit, told Humphrey he thinks that "with adequate prior planning, the federal government can make a significant contribution" toward avoiding summer woes.

Humphrey will head a high-level task force ordered to present recommendations by April 1 on ways to keep young people busy and out of trouble next summer.

Nothing on Venus

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet authorities said Saturday that the "descending apparatus" of its Venus spaceship had been sterilized to prevent any contamination of the earth's sister planet.

At the same time, the Soviets admitted that both Venus-3, which crashed into the planet, and its sister, Venus-2, which bypassed it, had failed to radio back any information on Venus.

The Russians also disclosed they tried and failed to make a parachute landing on the mysterious planet — now 36 million miles from earth. The Russians made a gentle touch-down on the moon early last month with an unmanned spaceship.

SYMBOL in shape of Earth, with Soviet medal inside sphere, is believed to be the first man-made object to reach another planet. Russians say it was carried to Venus aboard unmanned satellite.

Guatemala Polls

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI)—About one million persons were expected to vote for a new president Sunday in the first national elections this turbulent Central American country has seen in 15 years.

Despite reports here and abroad of a possible coup attempt, the final stages of the campaign Saturday appeared calm.

President Enrique Peralta Azundia, leader of the military regime which ousted President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes on March 31, 1963 for "mismanaging the government," promised his troops "shall go back to their barracks once the national opinion has been respected."

Castro Slay Plot

HAVANA (AP) — The government accused two former Cuban army majors Saturday of plotting to assassinate Prime Minister Fidel Castro. It charged the plot was hatched in Spain with the help of exile leader Manuel Artime and the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

An interior ministry communique said the plot went awry because of the Dominican crisis, a defect in the alleged assassination weapon and the failure to line up a boat for purposes of escape.

The two majors, who were arrested last Monday, are Rolando Cubelas Secades and Roman Guin Diaz. The communique claimed Cubelas was designated as the assassin and it alleged he was to be rewarded by sharing power with Artime after Castro's death.

Love Triangle

POMONA (UPI) — An about - to - be - divorced schoolteacher and his estranged wife's boyfriend fought early Saturday with a knife and a gun and fatally wounded each other as the woman looked on, police reported.

Chester Warden, 34, Chino, a teacher in the Montclair School District, went to the apartment of Benjamin Wicher, 34, an employe at General Dynamics Corporation.

He apparently wanted to see his estranged wife, Patricia, who was sleeping in a back room of Wicher's apartment, police said.

Officers said Warden knocked on the door, and Wicher opened it and shot him twice—once in the chest and once in the abdomen—with a revolver. Warden did not die instantly, but pulled out a four-inch knife and plunged it into Wicher's chest, officers reported.

Subandrio Flayed

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Indonesian troops fired warning shots Saturday as a screaming mob of some 3,000 anti-Communist students tried to sack the offices of the Indonesian 1st Deputy Premier.

El Toro Open House on 23rd Anniversary

El Toro will celebrate its 23rd anniversary as a Marine Corps Air Station Saturday and next Sunday with an open house and air show featuring the Blue Angels.

Gates will open at 10 a.m. and identical shows will be given both days and admission is free.

Headlining the air shows at 1 p.m. will be the U.S. Navy's precision flying team — the Blue Angels.

In addition to the 50-minute Angel flights, elements of the 3rd MAW will demonstrate the Marine Corps' tactical aircraft in a series of maximum performance take-offs, short field landings, helicopter rescue operations and aerial refueling techniques.

Cameras will be permitted in the demonstration area.

Nkrumah Wife Claims Villa

CAIRO (AP)—The Egpytian-born wife of Kwame Nkrumah who fled here from Accra with their three children when Nkrumah was deposed last week as president of Ghana has claimed a villa in suburban Maadi as personal property of the Nkrumahs. Ghana's embassy disputed her claim, contending the place was bought with government funds, but a relative reported it has yielded and given her the keys. Nkrumah has taken refuge in Guinea.

THE NAVY'S Blue Angels, precision flying team, will perform at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station's 23rd anniversary open house March 12-13.

El Toro Open House on 23rd Anniversary

El Toro will celebrate its 23rd anniversary as a Marine Corps Air Station Saturday and next Sunday with an open house and air show featuring the Blue Angels.

Gates will open at 10 a.m. and identical shows will be given both days and admission is free.

Headlining the air shows at 1 p.m. will be the U.S. Navy's precision flying team — the Blue Angels.

In addition to the 50-minute Angel flights, elements of the 3rd MAW will demonstrate the Marine Corps' tactical aircraft in a series of maximum performance takeoffs, short field landings, helicopter rescue operations and aerial refueling techniques.

Cameras will be permitted in the demonstration area.

Nkrumah Wife Claims Villa

CAIRO (AP)—The Egyptian-born wife of Kwame Nkrumah who fled here from Accra with their three children when Nkrumah was deposed last week as president of Ghana has claimed a villa in suburban Maadi as personal property of the Nkrumahs. Ghana's embassy disputed her claim, contending the place was bought with government funds, but a relative reported it has yielded and given her the keys. Nkrumah has taken refuge in Guinea.

ARTESIA MOTHER NOW SEES SACRIFICE NEED

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
I. P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Fear gripped Mrs. Margaret Oswald each time she saw or heard accounts of the fighting in Viet Nam.

Dread nearly overwhelmed her whenever a telegraph messenger came into her modest neighborhood, lest he be bringing dire tidings of her only son, Marine Pfc. Sammy Lee McDonald, 19.

Sammy had been in action near Viet Nam's Da Nang Air Base for nearly four months when Mrs. Oswald last November sought the help of her Congressman, Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif.

* * * *

IN HALTING penmanship, she wrote to Holifield and asked that her Sammy be given a "humanitarian" transfer back to the United States. He was needed at home, Mrs. Oswald wrote, because she is diabetic and her husband has a serious heart condition.

But the crux of her plea may have been in one sentence,

"I'm very scared."

Holifield's office consulted the Marine Corps on Mrs. Oswald's request and an application for

SAMMY LEE M'DONALD

transfer was initiated. The corps gave little encouragement and ultimately the request was denied.

On Jan. 5, Mrs. Oswald received word that Sammy had been wounded—struck by a bullet that shattered the thigh bone. The lad's right leg was amputated above the knee.

Sammy was transferred to the Oakland Naval Hospital and Mrs. Oswald visited him there for three days last month. Then she sat down in her home at 12041 186th St., Artesia, Calif., and wrote Holifield an account of the reunion.

"Our son is recuperating very nicely. He has a very good outlook and real desire to get well and prove himself when he is home. . . He's a real man, a wonderful person.

"When I went to visit with him, I saw so many more who are in much worse shape than our son. It makes you stop and thank God for his kindness to our son.

"It would be a good place for some of our people in this country to visit — that amputation ward. It would stir their hearts for sure. . .

* * * *

"AND I REALIZE now I was just one more scared, nervous mother in our great country. I'm sure the Marine Corps did the best thing they knew and acted as they should have.

"Now I have a job to do . . . to help him find a place in this great country of ours and to get his education finished and training he will need."

Deeply moved, Holifield wrote Mrs. Oswald of his sympathy. "I know that Sammy will always have the knowledge in his heart that he answered to his country's call and was part of the sacrifice which we have to make to preserve freedom and liberty in the world."

INFLATION, VIET WAR

Bliss Sees GOP Prospects Gaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Ray C. Bliss said Saturday inflation and Democratic differences over Viet Nam policy are improving Republican election prospects.

"The Republican position has improved materially in recent weeks," Bliss said at a news conference held during a meeting of big-city GOP chairmen.

Bliss declined to predict how many seats in Congress Republicans might pick up in November but said he expected "substantial gains."

He said the "Democratic in-fighting" over President Johnson's Viet Nam policy has been a major cause of the improved Republican prospects, with inflation right behind it.

* * * *

"I HOPE the Democratic in-fighting continues," he said. "It's bound to help us."

The inflation issue is of particular importance, Bliss said, because it can be related directly to an individual as he sees prices rising and his money buying less.

Bliss said he was heartened by the AFL-CIO's recent expression of displeasure with Johnson's wage-price policy.

"For the first time," he said, "we see dissatisfaction by labor groups with a Democratic president. This is a significant change over the situation in the past."

Bliss acknowledged that the political climate which he said now seems to favor Republicans could be changed drastically by events in the future.

* * * *

FOR THIS reason he said he did not want to make any long-range predictions about Republican election pickups.

"When I make a prediction," he said "I want to have the facts to back it up. A situation that seems favorable now could be entirely changed in a month."

RAY C. BLISS
Hails Demo Rift

The meeting was one of three Bliss is holding with Republican leaders from the major U.S. cities. The final one will be held in Denver April 1 and 2 with chairmen from cities west of the Mississippi.

Malcolm Epley Guest Speaker

Malcolm Epley, associate editor of The Independent, Press-Telegram and author of the popular Beach Combing column, will address the Institute of Lifetime Learning's "For Your Information" program at 2:30 p.m. Monday at the institute's headquarters, 501 E. Ocean Blvd.

He is to discuss the role of newspapers in the community, according to Gregor Ziemer, program director for the adult education center.

New Arrests Procedures Code Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's judges and lawyers were asked Saturday to support a code of police procedures that would require warning an arrested person he may remain silent and consult a lawyer, family or friends.

Prepared for the American Law Institute under a grant from the Ford Foundation, the proposed prearraignment code would, among other things:

—Require police to tape record "any questioning involving more than a few brief questions" and make the recording available to defense counsel in any legal proceeding.

—Bar the use of lie-detector tests or similar devices in questioning an arrested person unless he has consented in writing.

—Permit police to make arrests only where "the constitutionally required standard of reasonable cause was met."

—Require that an arrested person be taken before a judge or magistrate as soon as possible.

* * * *

AT THE same time, it would permit police to question persons whether or not a lawyer was present and the requirement of "reasonable cause" to make an arrest could be disregarded in certain circumstances.

In some cases police interrogation in the absence of a lawyer would be limited to four hours in less serious crimes and to 22 hours in heinous offenses.

"Some flexibility must be provided for cases where extraordinary action is necessary to save life or to protect some other urgent interest," the tentative draft of the code says.

* * * *

THE PROPOSALS are largely the work of James Vorenberg, executive director of President Johnson's National Crime Commission, and Paul M. Bator, like Vorenberg, a Harvard law professor, who worked with a committee of judges, lawyers and police officials.

The code has been approved in principle by the law institute's governing council.

Demonstration Jolts Du Bois Meet in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — About 150 persons demonstrated — some violently — Saturday in Brooklyn against a citywide meeting of the W.E.B. DuBois Club, the youth group accused by the Justice Department of being a Communist-front organization.

The demonstrators shouted such slogans as "Get Out of Here" and "We Fought for Our Country in World War II, so Why Can't You."

* * * *

A FEW tried to hang an American Flag across the meeting headquarters. Others tossed soda-pop bottles and cans, but police arrived before the demonstration got out of control.

The club opposes U.S. involvement in South Viet Nam.

U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach charged in a petition Friday that a substantial number of club officers belong to the Communist Party. The petition was made under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, which describes Communist-front groups.

The club's New York representatives sent a telegram Saturday to Katzenbach protesting his action. They called it "government harassment and trial by press."

Mills Raise Price

MONTREAL (AP)—Two major Canadian newsprint-producing companies Saturday announced that, beginning April 1 the basic price of newsprint marketed in the United States will increase to $144 from $134 per ton in U.S. funds.

ARTESIA MOTHER NOW SEES SACRIFICE NEED

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
I. P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Fear gripped Mrs. Margaret Oswald each time she saw or heard accounts of the fighting in Viet Nam.

Dread nearly overwhelmed her whenever a telegraph messenger came into her modest neighborhood, lest he be bringing dire tidings of her only son, Marine Pfc. Sammy Lee McDonald, 19.

Sammy had been in action near Viet Nam's Da Nang Air Base for nearly four months when Mrs. Oswald last November sought the help of her Congressman, Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif.

* * * *

IN HALTING penmanship, she wrote to Holifield and asked that her Sammy be given a "humanitarian" transfer back to the United States. He was needed at home, Mrs. Oswald wrote, because she is diabetic and her husband has a serious heart condition.

But the crux of her plea may have been in one sentence.

"I'm very scared."

Holifield's office consulted the Marine Corps on Mrs. Oswald's request and an application for

SAMMY LEE M'DONALD

transfer was initiated. The corps gave little encouragement and ultimately the request was denied.

On Jan. 5, Mrs. Oswald received word that Sammy had been wounded—struck by a bullet that shattered the thigh bone. The lad's right leg was amputated above the knee.

Sammy was transferred to the Oakland Naval Hospital and Mrs. Oswald visited him there for three days last month. Then she sat down in her home at 12041 186th St., Artesia, Calif., and wrote Holifield an account of the reunion.

"Our son is recuperating very nicely. He has a very good outlook and real desire to get well and prove himself when he is home. . . He's a real man, a wonderful person.

"When I went to visit with him, I saw so many more who are in much worse shape than our son. It makes you stop and thank God for his kindness to our son.

"It would be a good place for some of our people in this country to visit — that amputation ward. It would stir their hearts for sure. . .

* * * *

"AND I REALIZE now I was just one more scared, nervous mother in our great country. I'm sure the Marine Corps did the best thing they knew and acted as they should have.

"Now I have a job to do . . . to help him find a place in this great country of ours and to get his education finished and training he will need."

Deeply moved, Holifield wrote Mrs. Oswald of his sympathy. "I know that Sammy will always have the knowledge in his heart that he answered to his country's call and was part of the sacrifice which we have to make to preserve freedom and liberty in the world."

INFLATION, VIET WAR

Bliss Sees GOP Prospects Gaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Ray C. Bliss said Saturday inflation and Democratic differences over Viet Nam policy are improving Republican election prospects.

"The Republican position has improved materially in recent weeks," Bliss said at a news conference held during a meeting of big-city GOP chairmen.

Bliss declined to predict how many seats in Congress Republicans might pick up in November but said he expected "substantial gains."

He said the "Democratic in-fighting" over President Johnson's Viet Nam policy has been a major cause of the improved Republican prospects, with inflation right behind it.

* * * *

"I HOPE the Democratic in-fighting continues," he said. "It's bound to help us."

The inflation issue is of particular importance, Bliss said, because it can be related directly to an individual as he sees prices rising and his money buying less.

Bliss said he was heartened by the AFL-CIO's recent expression of displeasure with Johnson's wage-price policy.

"For the first time," he said, "we see dissatisfaction by labor groups with a Democratic president. This is a significant change over the situation in the past."

Bliss acknowledged that the political climate which he said now seems to favor Republicans could be changed drastically by events in the future.

* * * *

FOR THIS reason he said he did not want to make any long-range predictions about Republican election pickups.

"When I make a prediction," he said "I want to have the facts to back it up. A situation that seems favorable now could be entirely

RAY C. BLISS

changed in a month."

The meeting was one of three Bliss is holding with Republican leaders from the major U.S. cities. The final one will be held in Denver April 1 and 2 with chairmen from cities west of the Mississippi.

Malcolm Epley Guest Speaker

Malcolm Epley, associate editor of The Independent, Press-Telegram and author of the popular Beach Combing column, will address the Institute of Lifetime Learning's "For Your Information" program at 2:30 p.m. Monday at the institute's headquarters, 501 E. Ocean Blvd.

He is to discuss the role of newspapers in the community, according to Gregor Ziemer, program director for the adult education center.

New Arrests Procedures Code Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's judges and lawyers were asked Saturday to support a code of police procedures that would require warning an arrested person he may remain silent and consult a lawyer, family or friends.

Prepared for the American Law Institute under a grant from the Ford Foundation, the proposed prearraignment code would, among other things:

—Require police to tape record "any questioning involving more than a few brief questions" and make the recording available to defense counsel in any legal proceeding.

—Bar the use of lie-detector tests or similar devices in questioning an arrested person unless he has consented in writing.

—Permit police to make arrests only where "the constitutionally required standard of reasonable cause was met."

—Require that an arrested person be taken before a judge or magistrate as soon as possible.

* * * *

AT THE same time, it would permit police to question persons whether or not a lawyer was present and the requirement of "reasonable cause" to make an arrest could be disregarded in certain circumstances.

In some cases police interrogation in the absence of a lawyer would be limited to four hours in less serious crimes and to 22 hours in heinous offenses.

"Some flexibility must be provided for cases where extraordinary action is necessary to save life or to protect some other urgent interest," the tentative draft of the code says.

* * * *

THE PROPOSALS are largely the work of James Vorenberg, executive director of President Johnson's National Crime Commission, and Paul M. Bator, like Vorenberg, a Harvard law professor, who worked with a committee of judges, lawyers and police officials.

The code has been approved in principle by the law institute's governing council.

Demonstration Jolts Du Bois Meet in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — About 150 persons demonstrated — some violently — Saturday in Brooklyn against a citywide meeting of the W.E.B. DuBois Club, the youth group accused by the Justice Department of being a Communist-front organization.

The demonstrators shouted such slogans as "Get Out of Here" and "We Fought for Our Country in World War II, so Why Can't You."

* * * *

A FEW tried to hang an American Flag across the meeting headquarters. Others tossed soda-pop bottles and cans, but police arrived before the demonstration got out of control.

The club opposes U.S. involvement in South Viet Nam.

U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach charged in a petition Friday that a substantial number of club officers belong to the Communist Party. The petition was made under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, which describes Communist-front groups.

The club's New York representatives sent a telegram Saturday to Katzenbach protesting his action. They called it "government harassment and trial by press."

WEDDING

A Golden Coach for Princess

By ORRE DE JONG

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—A golden coach will bear Crown Princess Beatrix, future queen of The Netherlands, and Claus von Amsberg, a German diplomat, to the city hall and the church where they will be married Thursday—an event which has revived memories of the savage Nazi occupation of this country in World War II.

Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard have planned a day of regal splendor for their tall, headstrong 23-year-old daughter but there will be undertones of bitterness. Many of the Dutch still mourn relatives and friends killed or victimized by the Nazis—and Von Amsberg was a German soldier and a member of the Hitler Youth.

Strong security measures will be in effect, with civil plane flights banned over the capital and with more than 1,000 police—many in plainclothes — among the crowd along a route that has been patrolled since early February by police with dogs and by Dutch Air Force reconnaissance planes.

* * * *

THE TWO chief rabbis of Holland have refused an invitation to the religious ceremony on the ground their flock, decimated in the Nazi gas chambers, still cannot forget. Nevertheless, Dutch royal circles are confident the couple will be cheered on their way to the city hall, where the civil ceremony will take place, and then to the great Weste Church, last resting place of Rembrandt.

Dutch officials believe the handsome 39-year-old diplomat's dignified bearing since the first shock of the engagement — forced into the open by a sneak photograph showing him arm-in-arm with the princess—and Beatrix's obvious happiness have won over many initially against the idea of a German consort for their future queen.

Prince Bernhard (of Lippe-Biesterfield) is German. His predecessor as consort, Ouke Heinrich of Mecklenburg, was also German. But both these weddings were before the brutal invasion of 1940. Beatrix was well aware her choice would not win unanimous approval, but her parents let her have her way because she was very much in love and willing to abide by the decision of Parliament.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH Parliament approved the match 197 votes to 14, it was the first time a marriage had been forced to a vote.

Beatrix, an intelligent girl of considerable linguistic ability who laughingly describes herself as "no beauty," met Von Amsburg on a skiing holiday in Gstaad in January, 1965. From then on the courtship moved swiftly but privately until a Dutch press photographer got a long-lens picture of the couple in Beatrix's private garden in April.

Next Thursday's events begin in the morning when the wedding procession, with kings, queens, princes and princesses from all over Europe, moves from the royal palace at Dam Square to the historic town hall, once part of a convent, for the civil rites. These will be performed by burgomaster Gysberg J. Van Hall.

Then the couple, in the golden coach of the House of Orange, will ride to the great Wester Church, the largest Protestant church in Holland, for the religious blessing. This will be conducted by Rev. H. J. Kater, representing the Reformed Church, and the Rev. J. H. Sillevis Smitt, representing the Calvinist Church.

Seek Better Water Evaporators

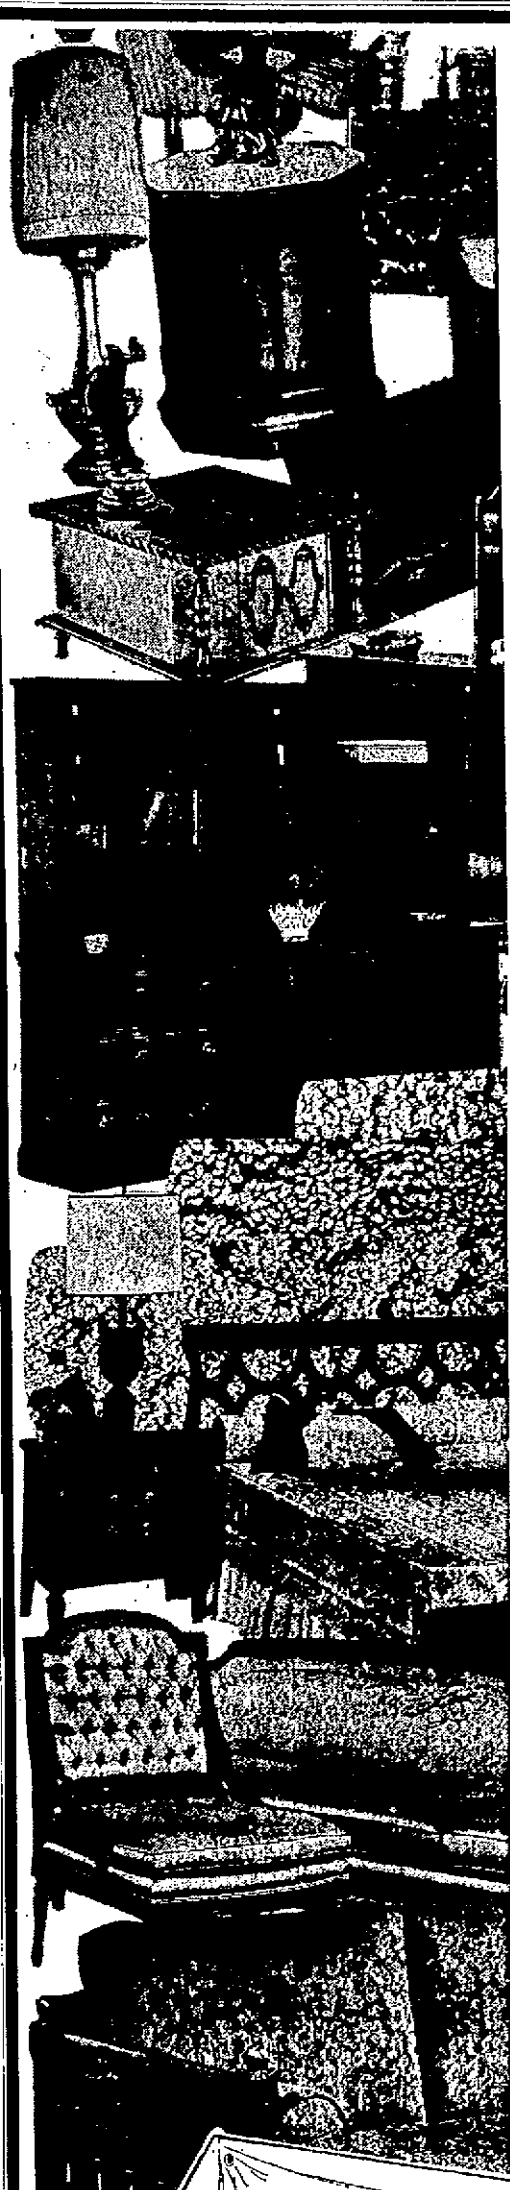
The Atomic Energy Commission said a five-year program to cost between $1 million and $2 million a year would seek to develop better water evaporators.

First Woman at Williams Gets Tenure



WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP)—For the first time in its 173-year history, Williams College has given tenure to a woman professor.

She's Doris de Keyserlink, who joined the college in Williamstown, Mass., in 1958.

Williams has two other women on its faculty but neither has tenure.

Diversifying Stressed by Pipelines

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex (AP) — Diversification and research are receiving increased attention from pipeline companies that now transport natural gas in every state except Hawaii.

Demand for natural gas continues to increase but the annual growth rates are modest when compared with the mid-1950s. Growth now is more of a matter of developing and expanding current markets than of finding new areas of development.

Diversification and research figure prominently in the 1965 financial report of two companies which transported last year a combined total of more than 2.1 trillion cubic feet of natural gas from Texas and Louisiana to midwestern and northeastern states.

Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. officials said diversification into new but related fields has caused the firm's name to be misleading. Stockholders will be asked in April to change the name to Tenneco Inc.

* * * *

OFFICIALS of the Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. emphasized the potential of such long-range research projects as total energy, liquefied natural gas, and the production of high quality synthetic gas from coal or shale oil.

Tennessee's 21st annual report placed operating revenues in excess of $1 billion, compared to only $266 million in 1956. But revenues from gas sales and transportation accounted for only 41% of the new record total, compared to 71% in 1956.

Ventures into other areas that rely at least in part upon natural resources—integrated oil operations chemicals, packaging — have over-shadowed in recent years the still impressive gains being made by natural gas.

"Earnings from our non-pipeline businesses are now in excess of those from our government regulated natural gas pipelines," said Gardiner Symonds, Tennessee board chairman. "The potential for uninhibited growth, we believe, is evident. We intend to pursue it diligently."

The 1.245 trillion cubic feet of gas Tennessee transported and sold last year represented an 8% gain over 1964. However, the 638 billion cubic feet handled in 1956 represented an 18% gain over 1955.

* * * *

TEXAS Eastern's gas deliveries increased 7.6% to 867 billion cubic feet last year. Deliveries in 1955 amounted to 496 billion.

Texas Eastern also has diversified but still considers natural gas transmission as its principal business. Other operations—liquefied petroleum gas, crude oil and petroleum products, and transportation of petroleum products — accounted for more than 20% of the 1965 operating revenues, compared to about 5% in 1956.

George R. Brown, board chairman, and B. D. Goodrich, president, believe several trends indicate an increasingly bright future for natural gas transmission.

"Adequate reserves of natural gas, the stabilization of field prices and improvements in pipeline technology are helping maintain and improve the competitive position of gas in relation to other fuels," they said.

"On the distant horizon, other developments—such as the improved economics and availability of liquefied natural gas, the gasification of coal and gas recovery from oil shale—promise the industry an adequate supply of gas at competitive prices in the decades ahead."

WEDDING

A Golden Coach for Princess

By ORRE DE JONG

AMSTERDAM (UPI)—A golden coach will bear Crown Princess Beatrix, future queen of The Netherlands, and Claus von Amsberg, a German diplomat, to the city hall and the church where they will be married Thursday—an event which has revived memories of the savage Nazi occupation of this country in World War II.

Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard have planned a day of regal splendor for their tall, headstrong 23-year-old daughter but there will be undertones of bitterness. Many of the Dutch still mourn relatives and friends killed or victimized by the Nazis—and Von Amsberg was a German soldier and a member of the Hitler Youth.

Strong security measures will be in effect, with civil plane flights banned over the capital and with more than 1,000 police—many in plainclothes — among the crowd along a route that has been patrolled since early February by police with dogs and by Dutch Air Force reconnaissance planes.

* * * *

THE TWO chief rabbis of Holland have refused an invitation to the religious ceremony on the ground their flock, decimated in the Nazi gas chambers, still cannot forget. Nevertheless, Dutch royal circles are confident the couple will be cheered on their way to the city hall, where the civil ceremony will take place, and then to the great Weste Church, last resting place of Rembrandt.

Dutch officials believe the handsome 39-year-old diplomat's dignified bearing since the first shock of the engagement — forced into the open by a sneak photograph showing him arm-in-arm with the princess—and Beatrix's obvious happiness have won over many initially against the idea of a German consort for their future queen.

Prince Bernhard (of Lippe-Biesterfield) is German. His predecessor as consort, Duke Heinrich of Mecklenburg, was also German. But both these weddings were before the brutal invasion of 1940. Beatrix was well aware her choice would not win unanimous approval, but her parents let her have her way because she was very much in love and willing to abide by the decision of Parliament.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH Parliament approved the match 107 votes to 14, it was the first time a marriage had been forced to a vote.

Beatrix, an intelligent girl of considerable linguistic ability who laughingly describes herself as "no beauty," met Von Amsburg on a skiing holiday in Gstaad in January, 1965. From then on the courtship moved swiftly but privately until a Dutch press photographer got a long-lens picture of the couple in Beatrix's private garden in April.

Next Thursday's events begin in the morning when the wedding procession, with kings, queens, princes and princesses from all over Europe, moves from the royal palace at Dam Square to the historic town hall, once part of a convent, for the civil rites. These will be performed by burgomaster Gysberg J. Van Hall.

Then the couple, in the golden coach of the House or Orange, will ride to the great Wester Church, the largest Protestant church in Holland, for the religious blessing. This will be conducted by Rev. H. J. Kater, representing the Reformed Church, and the Rev. J. H. Sillevis Smitt, representing the Calvinist Church.

Evidence Indicates Thief Was Shapely

NORTH WALSHAM, England (UPI)—Police are seeking a shapely thief who made off with loot from a women's clothing store here. Taken were: a pair of bras, size 36; slacks and shirts, size 26 waist, and pantles, size 38 hip.

Seek Better Water Evaporators

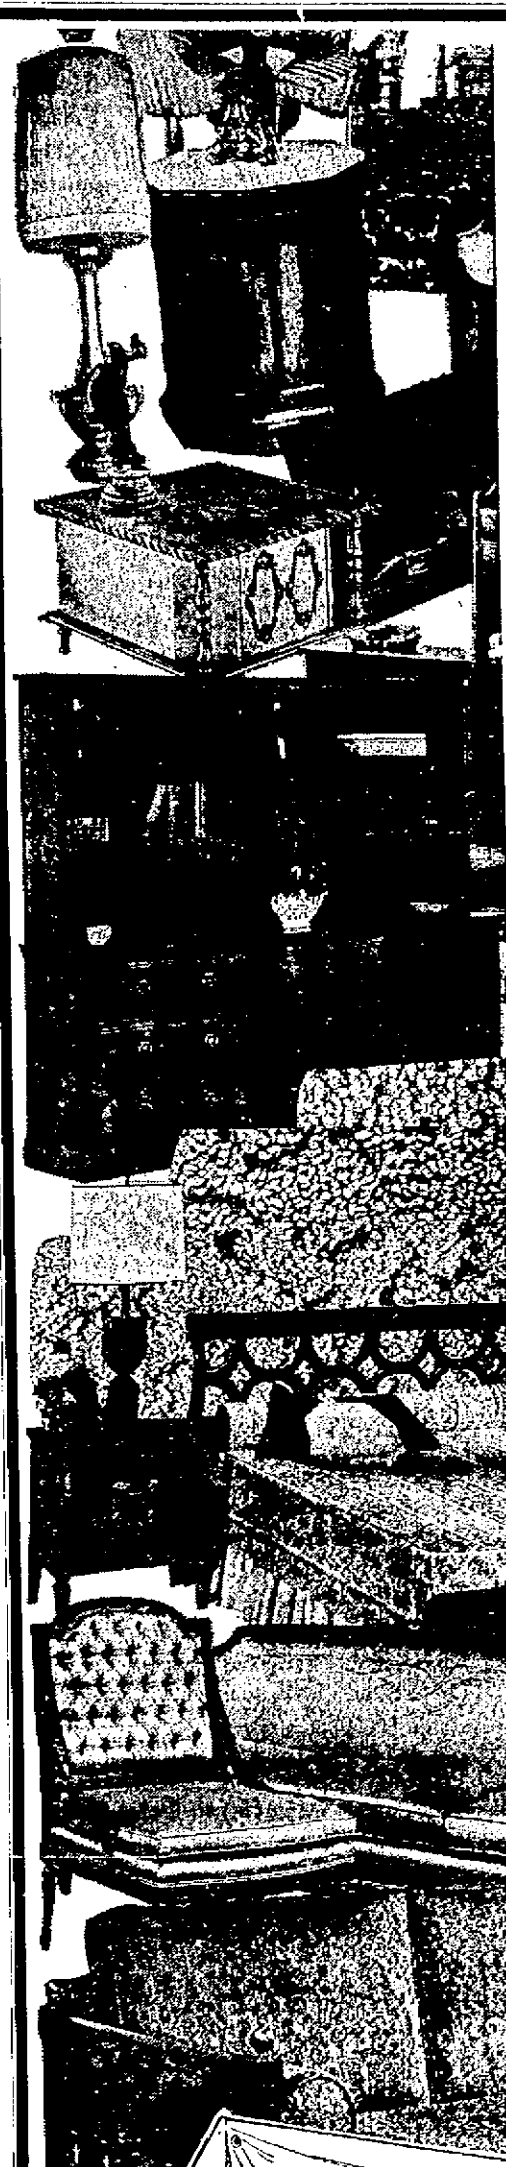
The Atomic Energy Commission said a five-year program to cost between $1 million and $2 million a year would seek to develop better water evaporators.

First Woman at Williams Gets Tenure



WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (UPI)—For the first time in its 173-year history, Williams College has given tenure to a woman professor.

She's Doris de Keyserlink, who joined the college in Williamstown, Mass., in 1958.

Williams has two other women on its faculty but neither has tenure.

How Much Wealth Does Pope Have?

By CHARLES FOLEY
Copyright, 1966, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

ROME (NANA)—How rich is the Pope? Few of his 550 million followers have ever stopped to wonder. But now the question has become a major headache at the Vatican. For the tax man is knocking on the great bronze door.

So far it is only a discreet tap, one that the custodians are trying to ignore. But if the Socialists in Italy's series of weak, center-left cabinets have their way there will be a most unholy row in this nerve-center of the Roman Catholic world.

* * * *

FOR SOME weeks I have been following the trail of fiscal agents who are probing the hidden assets of The Vatican. It has led me through ministries, banks, and the embassies of several countries.

And it has given me as sharp a picture as an outsider can hope to get of a tremendous financial empire.

Unlike other religious bodies, the holy see has always kept both revenue and spending strictly secret. An elderly cardinal told me: "If we were seen to be too rich, people would sneer. If too poor, we should lose respect." And he sighed for the frailty of mankind.

So the Vatican today is the only sovereign state which never publishes a budget. Popes, being absolute monarchs, are answerable to nobody.

* * * *

IN THE OLD days they spent prodigally on pleasure and palaces. In more recent times some have been overgenerous. The most lavish giver, Benedict XV, even kept a drawer stuffed with banknotes for his callers. When he died, after the first world war, The Vatican was bankrupt.

Luckily, help came. In return for abandoning its claims to the Papal States to Mussolini, the Holy See received $50 million.

This windfall was put into growing industries all over Italy. The three nephews of Pope Pius XII who negotiated the deal, became Papal Princes and joined the boards of leading firms to protect his investments.

Today The Vatican holds blocks of shares in booming real estate, in plastics, building, electronics, airways, chemicals, transport, radio, and TV.

Old British hands advise: "Deal with the Banco Di Santo Spirito." The "Bank of The Holy Ghost" may sound odd, but it's reliable—founded by The Vatican. The chairman is a marquis at the papal court. The same goes for the Bank of Rome.

* * * *

AND AN Anglican resident told me: "I found that my block of flats was one of dozens backed by Vatican capital. So are gas, water, and telephones. You can't buy a bus ticket without paying tribute."

My inquiries showed that the choice Papal portfolio contains a good fifth—$560 millin worth — of Italy's total stocks.

This is the tip of the iceberg. The hidden bulk of Vatican investment now lies overseas, much of it in the U.S. and Canada. These holdings have grown enormously since the war.

When the tide turned against the Axis in 1942, the Vatican opened a new bank—"The Institute for Religious Affairs."

Enjoying diplomatic privilege it could funnel church funds over hostile frontiers. Vatican holdings in the U.S. are, of course, over and above the national resources of the church there. And America's Catholic organizations are growing richer every day.

"We are already a lot bigger than Ford Motors, Shell Oil, and Bethlehem Steel put together," a U.S. prelate said.

"We are in real estate, TV, industry, and hotels. Some people were surprised at Pope Pius saying Mass in Yankee Stadium. They didn't know that's ours too."

Ired Reagan Denies Racism, Takes a Walk

SANTA MONICA (UPI)—Republican gubernatorial candidate Ronald Reagan, tears of apparent anger in his eyes, denied Saturday before a convention of California Negro Republicans that he was "a bigot or racist" and then walked out of the meeting.

Reagan, star of many movies and a television series, first told the 100 or so delegates present that one of his opponents, George Christopher, who spoke earlier, had implied Reagan was a bigot.

Reagan said:

"I've suffered in silence through this campaign. I have said in public . . . when someone's constitutional rights are imposed upon, the government should defend them at the point of a bayonet if necessary.

"No parent should have the tragedy of having to explain to his child, he is different."

* * * *

AT THIS POINT, angry tears began to flow from Reagan's eyes and he said, "I resent anyone implying that I am bigoted, and I will stand for unity, but I am not going to stand aside and let anyone imply in any way that I am a bigot or a racist."

He then left the rostrum and the hall, and the meeting broke up.

The early speakers, Christopher, and a third GOP candidate for governor, William Penn Patrick, discussed the implications of Barry Goldwater's defeat for the presidency in connection with the Republican Party.

Patrick said he was tired of talk about Goldwater because "Goldwater is in the past."

Christopher said:

"I personally think the position taken by Goldwater did more to cause minority groups to leave the Republican Party than anything else."

The former San Francisco mayor added that it was time for the Republicans "to toss this image out."

* * * *

PATRICK stated:

"If this party is to regain the stature it once had, we must prove to minority groups that the Republican Party is their hope for action. I have met with many minority groups around the state and these people are not looking for handouts. Anyone can propose higher budget increases for welfare and unemployment which do nothing more than encourage idleness. Minorities are seeking leadership to show them how they can better themselves."

Sunday the convention will hear various committee reports and is expected to discuss nominating a Negro for statewide office such as treasurer or controller.

Girl Gravely Wounded in Gun Mishap

A 20-year-old Long Beach woman was in serious condition in St. Mary's Hospital Saturday night after she accidentally was shot in the chest by her boyfriend.

Nurses said Miss Shirley Hall, of 2129 California Ave., was wounded in the left breast about 5:50 p.m. The bullet lodged near her spine.

Officer Dick Zylstra said the shooting occurred at the home of Roy Anderson, 20, of 815 E. 11th St, Anderson told Inspector G. E. McIntire he walked into his home, said hello to Miss Hall and started to show her a small, .25-calibre automatic he had found.

Anderson said the gun discharged and the slug struck Miss Hall.

Sky Eye Downed

TOKYO, Sunday (AP) — A U. S. pilotless high-altitude reconnaissance plane was shot down over central South China Saturday by an Air Force unit of the Communist Chinese army, Peking's New China News Agency claimed today.

Domingo Shooting Hurts GI

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A U.S. paratrooper, two Honduran soldiers and three civilians were wounded Saturday as new violence flared in downtown Santo Domingo.

The paratrooper was shot in the thigh as he and another U.S. trooper fled from a taxi that had been attacked by a band of rocket-throwing youths.

* * * *

LATER, three civilians attending the funeral of a daughter of a leftist politician were shot by snipers. The Hondurans were wounded by a grenade when they went to investigate the cemetery shootings.

The U. S. paratrooper, who was not identified, was reported to be in satisfactory condition. A. U. S. military spokesman said the two Americans soldiers were unarmed when the youths attacked the cab. They ran to a private home where help was summoned, the spokesman added.

Fog Shuts Down N.Y. Airports

NEW YORK (AP)—A thick layer of fog blocked most air traffic Saturday night at Kennedy and La Guardia airports, forcing postponement of more than 200 fights.

Airlines reported they were transporting 1,000 passengers here by train and bus from Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, where incoming flights were diverted.

How Much Wealth Does Pope Have?

By CHARLES FOLEY

Copyright, 1966, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

ROME (NANA) — How rich is the Pope? Few of his 550 million followers have ever stopped to wonder. But now the question has become a major headache at the Vatican. For the tax man is knocking on the great bronze door.

So far it is only a discreet tap, one that the custodians are trying to ignore. But if the Socialists in Italy's series of weak, center-left cabinets have their way there will be a most unholy row in this nerve-center of the Roman Catholic world.

* * * *

FOR SOME weeks I have been following the trail of fiscal agents who are probing the hidden assets of The Vatican. It has led me through ministries, banks, and the embassies of several countries.

And it has given me as sharp a picture as an outsider can hope to get of a tremendous financial empire.

Unlike other religious bodies, the holy see has always kept both revenue and spending strictly secret. An elderly cardinal told me: "If we were seen to be too rich, people would sneer. If too poor, we should lose respect." And he sighed for the frailty of mankind.

So the Vatican today is the only sovereign state which never publishes a budget. Popes, being absolute monarchs, are answerable to nobody.

* * * *

IN THE OLD days they spent prodigally on pleasure and palaces. In more recent times some have been overgenerous. The most lavish giver, Benedict XV, even kept a drawer stuffed with banknotes for his callers. When he died, after the first world war, The Vatican was bankrupt.

Luckily, help came. In return for abandoning its claims to the Papal States to Mussolini, the Holy See received $50 million.

This windfall was put into growing industries all over Italy. The three nephews of Pope Pius XII who negotiated the deal, became Papal Princes and joined the boards of leading firms to protect his investments.

Today The Vatican holds blocks of shares in booming real estate, in plastics, building, electronics, airways, chemicals, transport, radio, and TV.

Old British hands advise: "Deal with the Banco Di Santo Spirito." The "Bank of The Holy Ghost" may sound odd, buit it's reliable—founded by The Vatican. The chairman is a marquis at the papal court. The same goes for the Bank of Rome.

* * * *

AND AN Anglican resident told me: "I found that my block of flats was one of dozens backed by Vatican capital. So are gas, water, and telephones. You can't buy a bus ticket without paying tribute."

My inquiries showed that the choice Papal portfolio contains a good fifth—$560 millin worth — of Italy's total stocks.

This is the tip of the iceberg. The hidden bulk of Vatican investment now lies overseas, much of it in the U.S. and Canada. These holdings have grown enormously since the war.

When the tide turned against the Axis in 1942, the Vatican opened a new bank—"The Institute for Religious Affairs."

Enjoying diplomatic privilege it could funnel church funds over hostile frontiers. Vatican holdings in the U.S. are, of course, over and above the national resources of the church there. And America's Catholic organizations are growing richer every day.

"We are already a lot bigger than Ford Motors, Shell Oil, and Bethlehem Steel put together," a U.S. prelate said.

"We are in real estate, TV, industry, and hotels. Some people were surprised at Pope Pius saying Mass in Yankee Stadium. They didn't know that's ours too."

Ired Reagan Denies Racism, Takes a Walk

SANTA MONICA (UPI)—Republican gubernatorial candidate Ronald Reagan, tears of apparent anger in his eyes, denied Saturday before a convention of California Negro Republicans that he was "a bigot or racist" and then walked out of the meeting.

Reagan, star of many movies and a television series, first told the 100 or so delegates present that one of his opponents, George Christopher, who spoke earlier, had implied Reagan was a bigot.

Reagan said:

"I've suffered in silence through this campaign. I have said in public . . . when someone's constitutional rights are imposed upon, the government should defend them at the point of a bayonet if necessary.

"No parent should have the tragedy of having to explain to his child, he is different."

* * * *

AT THIS POINT, angry tears began to flow from Reagan's eyes and he said, "I resent anyone implying that I am bigoted, and I will stand for unity, but I am not going to stand aside and let anyone imply in any way that I am a bigot or a racist."

He then left the rostrum and the hall, and the meeting broke up.

The early speakers, Christopher, and a third GOP candidate for governor, William Penn Patrick, discussed the implications of Barry Goldwater's defeat for the presidency in connection with the Republican Party.

Patrick said he was tired of talk about Goldwater because "Goldwater is in the past."

Christopher said:

"I personally think the position taken by Goldwater did more to cause minority groups to leave the Republican Party than anything else."

The former San Francisco mayor added that it was time for the Republicans "to toss this image out."

* * * *

PATRICK stated:

"If this party is to regain the stature it once had, we must prove to minority groups that the Republican Party is their hope for action. I have met with many minority groups around the state and these people are not looking for handouts. Anyone can propose higher budget increases for welfare and unemployment which do nothing more than encourage idleness. Minorities are seeking leadership to show them how they can better themselves."

Sunday the convention will hear various committee reports and is expected to discuss nominating a Negro for statewide office such as treasurer or controller.

Girl Gravely Wounded in Gun Mishap

A 20-year-old Long Beach woman was in serious condition in St. Mary's Hospital Saturday night after she accidentally was shot in the chest by her boyfriend.

Nurses said Miss Shirley Hall, of 2129 California Ave., was wounded in the left breast about 5:50 p.m. The bullet lodged near her spine.

Officer Dick Zylstra said the shooting occurred at the home of Roy Anderson, 20, of 815 E. 11th St. Anderson told Inspector G. E. McIntire he walked into his home, said hello to Miss Hall and started to show her a small, .25-calibre automatic he had found.

Anderson said the gun discharged and the slug struck Miss Hall.

Sky Eye Downed

TOKYO, Sunday (AP) — A U. S. pilotless high-altitude reconnaissance plane was shot down over central-South China Saturday by an Air Force unit of the Communist Chinese army, Peking's New China News Agency claimed today.

Domingo Shooting Hurts GI

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A U.S. paratrooper, two Honduran soldiers and three civilians were wounded Saturday as new violence flared in downtown Santo Domingo.

The paratrooper was shot in the thigh as he and another U.S. trooper fled from a taxi that had been attacked by a band of rocket-throwing youths.

* * * *

LATER, three civilians attending the funeral of a daughter of a leftist politician were shot by snipers. The Hondurans were wounded by a grenade when they went to investigate the cemetery shootings.

The U. S. paratrooper, who was not identified, was reported to be in satisfactory condition. A. U. S. military spokesman said the two Americans soldiers were unarmed when the youths attacked the cab. They ran to a private home where help was summoned, the spokesman added.

Fog Shuts Down N.Y. Airports

NEW YORK (AP)—A thick layer of fog blocked most air traffic Saturday night at Kennedy and La Guardia airports, forcing postponement of more than 200 fights.

Airlines reported they were transporting 1,000 passengers here by train and bus from Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, where incoming flights were diverted.

PETER J. PITCHESS
Warns Parents

Safety Hints on Children in Brochure

By DON BRACKENBURY
I-P-T Los Angeles Bureau

In the aftermath of last week's disappearance and subsequent return of a 9-year-old North Long Beach girl, Sheriff Peter J. Pitchess has urged parents to send for free information on such cases.

Pitchess specifically referred to his department's two printed cards, "What to Do If Your Child Is Missing" and "Safety Measures for Parents and Babysitters."

He also called attention to department brochures, "Ten Rules of Safety for All Parents" and "Ten Rules of Safety for All Children."

These materials are available at all sheriff's stations, and will alert parents to hazards threatening their children and how best to act to protect the safety of the child.

* * * *

STATIONS IN the local area include Lakewood, 5130 N. Clark Ave.; Lennox, 4331 Lennox Blvd.; and Norwalk, 11801 E. Firestone Blvd.

Pitchess particularly called attention to the brochure on "What to Do If Your Child Is Missing" because, he said, he had received a number of telephone calls from parents after the disappearance of Judith Ann Reedy last Tuesday.

Initially, Pitchess offered a word of assurance:

"There are very few missing children who are not found in a few hours. There are very, very few who come to any harm."

The sheriff said the main goal of department brochures is to help law enforcement personnel find children sooner.

"Remember," he warned, "all children wander at some time or another; therefore, you should check on them frequently."

* * * *

IF A PARENT cannot find a child "within a short time," police should be notified. The longer the delay, the more difficult the search, Pitchess said.

The brochure instructs parents to "check in and under the beds. Look behind the furniture. Look under the house, in the garage, chicken house, or other out buildings. Young children often crawl in these places to hide and then go to sleep."

Pitchess also emphasized that if a child has been reported missing and then returns home, parents should remember to so inform police.

"Many times in the past, officers have continued the search long after the child was found by the parents," the brochure points out.

* * * *

THE DEPARTMENT publications on "rules of safety" emphasize that children should never accept rides, or take candy or presents from strangers.

They warn parents to know who they hire as a babysitter, to encourage their children to bring their friends home, and to teach them respect for law.

To the child, the publication says:

"All police officers are your friends. Go to them when you are scared, in trouble or need help."

Deukmejian said in Sacramento his announcement of nonsupport of Hayes in the primary was prompted by a Hayes newspaper advertisement of last week which Deukmejian felt implied his support and attempted to mislead voters.

The ad described Hayes as a "long time supporter" of Deukmejian.

Deukmejian said his office has received many inquiries asking whether he is endorsing Hayes, adding, "The content of the ad implies that I am supporting him and many persons have drawn that inference.

"I am not, at this time, endorsing any of the primary candidates," said Deukmejian, "but will support the nominee of my party in the general election. It is, however, my intention not to vote for Mr. Hayes in the primary.

"Also, to prevent any confusion, I am not retiring as was stated in the ad. I am an announced candidate for state senator in the 37th Senatorial District and am working vigorously to win that office."

LAKEWOOD CANDIDATES

All candidates for Lakewood City Council have been invited to a public open forum at 8 p.m. Monday in Jose del Valle Park Pavilion, Lakewood, sponsored by the Lakewood Democratic Club.

Each of the eight candidates in the nonpartisan race will have five minutes for a presentation, followed by a brief question and answer period. The public is invited, regardless of political affiliation.

Eight candidates are running for two offices made vacant by the resignation last year of Gene Nebeker and the death of Angelo Iacoboni. Two candidates, Charles Schweitzer and Woodrow Smith, were appointed to serve the unexpired terms. Three candidates — Mark Hannaford, Floyd Damman and Leo Cassidy — have previously run for councilmanic office. The other candidates are Richard Cannata, Daniel Glasser and Hugh Thomas.

'PRINTED POISON'

Dr. Don Cortum, of Torrance, national cochairman of Citizens for Decent Literature, will show a documentary film, "Printed Poison," discuss pornographic material, its descrtuctive influence and present a program of action, the "obscenity petition," to combat circulation of pornographic material, Wednesday noon in Bixby Park Clubhouse, 130 Cherry Ave.

The program, sponsored by the 32nd Congressional District Republican Women Federated, will also deal with the difference between the "decency petition," initiated and then withdrawn by County Supervisor Warren M. Dorn, and the "obscenity petition," which also is an initiative measure. The meeting is public and free.

The scheduled: 10:30 a.m., legislative study; 11:15, business; 12, speaker and program; 1 p.m. coffee hour.

HASTINGS PARTY

The $2 donation program includes a five-course luncheon, entertainment, games and door prizes. It is public.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Arthur Zahler, 704 Island View Dr., Seal Beach.

Dr. Don Cortum, of Torrance, national cochairman of Citizens for Decent Literature, will show a documentary film, "Printed Poison," discuss pornographic material, its descrtuctive influence and present a program of action, the "obscenity petition," to combat circulation of pornographic material, Wednesday noon in Bixby Park Clubhouse, 130 Cherry Ave.

The program, sponsored by the 32nd Congressional District Republican Women Federated, will also deal with the difference between the "decency petition," initiated and then withdrawn by County Supervisor Warren M. Dorn, and the "obscenity petition," which also is an initiative measure. The meeting is public and free.

The scheduled: 10:30 a.m., legislative study; 11:15, business; 12, speaker and program; 1 p.m. coffee hour.

HASTINGS PARTY

The $2 donation program includes a five-course luncheon, entertainment, games and door prizes. It is public.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Arthur Zahler, 704 Island View Dr., Seal Beach.

War Heats Up, Critics Stew, McNamara Burns

Combined Wire Services

At home the war of words simmered, and in Viet Nam American forces poured on the power—on land and in the air. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara disclosed 215,000 American military men were in South Viet Nam and another 20,000 on the way.

This did not include 50,000 sailors in the U.S. fleet off Viet Nam, and other thousands of American fighting men in neighboring countries. Altogether, McNamara put American forces in Southeast Asia at 300,000 men, and did not challenge a question that implied the figure might go to 400,000 by year's end.

McNamara obviously no longer could take in silence charges of critics in and out of Congress that the U.S. was short of men and weapons in Viet Nam and so over-extended military that it would be hard-pressed to meet a world emergency.

* * * *

"WE ARE fully capable of meeting our treaty commitments," McNamara declared, pounding his desk the while. He said Americans should be proud of the way the country is backing up the South Vietnamese but "instead we seem to take masochistic pleasure in flailing ourselves with some of our imaginary weaknesses."

To further dispel any misconceptions, the secretary released a seven-page statement backed by a 23-page "analysis of erroneous allegations."

His press conference was climaxed by a shouting match with one reporter who accused him of dodging questions, and a sharp admonition of a German newsman who implied U.S. forces in NATO were being weakened to strengthen Viet Nam. McNamara said he was "sick and tired of all these implications. . ."

The secretary quoted six top military leaders headed by the Viet Nam commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, in support of his statements.

McNamara later told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, headed by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., arch critic of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy, that he believes the U.S. can win the war without facing conflict with Red China.

* * * *

BY FRIDAY, the tempo of the ground and air war reached new intensities. American and South Viet Nam forces were on the offensive at a half dozen spots. U.S. planes flew more than 500 sorties in one day in the south, and sent another 55 missions against rail targets on North Viet Nam—the greatest display of American air power in the war.

American combat deaths to date in the Viet Nam War climbed to 2,335, with 11,574 wounded and 151 missing.

* * * *

CONGRESS WENT along with Johnson, notwithstanding dissident Senate voices. It voted a $4.8 billion military authorization to prosecute the war and was weighing a $6 billion tax bill with the same target. It also sent to the White House the President's Asian Development Bank program.

* * * *

"I JUST HAD my budget busted wide open, but, it couldn't be busted for a better purpose." So said President Johnson Thursday as he signed the new GI Bill, giving 5 million veterans new benefits in education, housing loans and other areas.

The President had requested the benefits for combat veterans serving since Jan. 31, 1955. Instead, Congress voted the bonus to all veterans from that date. The cost for the first year alone will be $245 million more than the $150 million Johnson had figured on.

During the week, the President proposed two new far-reaching plans — for transportation and health—both potentially expensive. He proposed a cabinet level Department of Transportation, including all types of transportation — land, sea and air.

WINS CUSTODY

Mrs. Keli Ann Forster was ruled a "fit and proper person" to have custody of Peanut, the weeper capuchin monkey she is holding, when she was granted a divorce from her husband, Harold, in Tucson, Ariz., Superior Court Friday.

The department would coordinate the work of parts of government agencies already employing 100,000 people, with budgets totaling $6 billion.

The health plan looks toward modernization of aging hospitals, improvement of health services and increase in public health services.

Presaging further money troubles, Johnson asked for cutbacks in the federal school lunch and milk programs, and the program for aid to federally-impacted areas—spots where government projects cause serious local problems. Congress showed no enthusiasm for either cutback.

"YOU COULD hear it coming for a long time. But when I finally saw it, it was just there for a few seconds. When it finally set down, it sounded like about 50 freight trains."

Not trains, but an eyewitness account of a horrifying tornado that killed at least 61 persons and injured 497 others in Jackson, Miss., and nearby areas Thursday. The worst of the storm came about dusk when the twister hit a Jackson shopping center full of women and children. Officials said the property damage would exceed $12 million.

Nature also plagued the northern plain states late in the week with one of the worst blizzards of the century. Normal life came almost to a halt throughout the Dakotas and Minnesota. Hundreds of persons were stranded on buses, trains and in rural areas. At least 24 persons were missing in the Dakotas and Minnesota with at least four known dead. Rescue efforts were blocked by drifting snow that reached the tops of buildings.

AT LAST it was official, one of our H-bombs is missing and two others blew apart, spewing radioactive material over a small area near Palomares in southeastern Spain.

The events happened Jan. 17 when a United States Air Force B52 bomber collided with a tanker plane over the Mediterranean near Palomares. The B52 crashed on land near Palomares, and within days the world knew about the missing bomb. But only on Wednesday did the United States officially announce this, explaining that the Spanish government had asked it to keep silence until then.

It was the first announcement also of the radioactive spillage. The United States said no one was injured, but disclosed that some 1,500 tons of Spanish topsoil are being carefully scooped into bags, to be brought to the United States for testing and disposal.

KWAME NKRUMAH treated the world to a bizarre political innovation. Bounced by his own army as president of Ghana, the ebullient leftist turned up as president of another country, the neighboring African nation of Guinea.

Hurrying home from Peking, where he was when the Ghana coup toppled him, Nkrumah showed up in Conakry, the capital of Guinea, to a warm welcome from President Ssekou Toure, his fellow leftist. Toure then startled diplomats around the world by declaring on radio that Nkrumah can be considered "the head of state of Guinea and secretary-general of the Guinean Democratic Party."

Fresh off the plane from Peking, via Moscow, Nkrumah told a rally in Conakry Stadium: "I have come here purposely to use Guinea as a platform to tell the world that very soon I shall be in Accra, in Ghana."

CANADIAN Pacific Airline's Flight 402, coming in from Hong Kong, was held over Tokyo International Airport for 45 minutes because of heavy fog. Finally it was given clearance to land and began its approach over Tokyo Bay. The plane came in too low and the wheels caught landing lights on the approach lane, snapped off 15 of them. The plane smashed into a retaining wall at the beginning of the runway, spewing fiery wreckage 1,000 yards down the runway. Of 71 persons aboard the Douglas DC8, eight survived.

* * * *

ANOTHER plane came out of rain and heavy overcast Monday morning and approached St. Louis Airport, but badly off course. It struck Building 110 of the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., shearing a wing, and crashed into a yard.

Killed instantly were astronauts Elliott M. See Jr., 38, one of the two civilians in the space flight program, and Air Force Maj. Charles A. Bassett 2D, 34. They had been scheduled to go into space this spring as the Gemini 9 astronauts.

THE RUSSIANS electrified the scientific world by crash-landing an unmanned space vehicle on Venus, 25 million miles from earth.

The "Venus 3" was launched last Nov. 16 but lost radio communication just before reaching its target. It was the first such vehicle to land on a cosmic body other than the moon.

Sir Bernard Lovell, Britain's leading radio astronomer, charged the Soviets endangered future studies of life on Venus by possibly contaminating its surface with organisms from earth.

An American space official described the Russian triumph as "another spectacular pay-off" or Moscow's intensive efforts to explore the moon and planets.

BELIEVING the portents good for his Labor Party, Prime Minister Harold Wilson called a general election for Britain on March 31. Wilson, who came to power in the October 1964 election with a House of Commons margin of five, was now down to a margin of three. Gamblers made Labor a favorite, and the party hoped for a gain of some 50 seats in Commons.

"WE ARE fully capable of meeting our treaty commitments," McNamara declared, pounding his desk the while. He said Americans should be proud of the way the country is backing up the South Vietnamese but "instead we seem to take masochistic pleasure in flailing ourselves with some of our imaginary weaknesses."

His press conference was climaxed by a shouting match with one reporter who accused him of dodging questions, and a sharp admonition of a German newsman who implied U.S. forces in NATO were being weakened to strengthen Viet Nam. McNamara said he was "sick and tired of all these implications. . ."

The secretary quoted six top military leaders headed by the Viet Nam commander, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, in support of his statements.

McNamara later told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, headed by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., arch critic of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy, that he believes the U.S. can win the war without facing conflict with Red China.

* * * *

BY FRIDAY, the tempo of the ground and air war reached new intensities. American and South Viet Nam forces were on the offensive at a half dozen spots. U.S. planes flew more than 500 sorties in one day in the south, and sent another 55 missions against rail targets on North Viet Nam—the greatest display of American air power in the war.

American combat deaths to date in the Viet Nam War climbed to 2,335, with 11,574 wounded and 151 missing.

* * * *

CONGRESS WENT along with Johnson, notwithstanding dissident Senate voices. It voted a $4.8 billion military authorization to prosecute the war and was weighing a $6 billion tax bill with the same target. It also sent to the White House the President's Asian Development Bank program.

* * * *

"I JUST HAD my budget busted wide open, but, it couldn't be busted for a better purpose." So said President Johnson Thursday as he signed the new GI Bill, giving 5 million veterans new benefits in education, housing loans and other areas.

The President had requested the benefits for combat veterans serving since Jan. 31, 1955. Instead, Congress voted the bonus to all veterans from that date. The cost for the first year alone will be $245 million more than the $150 million Johnson had figured on.

During the week, the President proposed two new far-reaching plans — for transportation and health—both potentially expensive. He proposed a cabinet level Department of Transportation, including all types of transportation — land, sea and air.

WINS CUSTODY

Mrs. Keli Ann Forster was ruled a "fit and proper person" to have custody of Peanut, the weeper capuchin monkey she is holding, when she was granted a divorce from her husband, Harold, in Tucson, Ariz., Superior Court Friday.

The department would coordinate the work of parts of government agencies already employing 100,000 people, with budgets totaling $6 billion.

The health plan looks toward modernization of aging hospitals, improvement of health services and increase in public health services.

Presaging further money troubles, Johnson asked for cutbacks in the federal school lunch and milk programs, and the program for aid to federally-impacted areas—spots where government projects cause serious local problems. Congress showed no enthusiasm for either cutback.

"YOU COULD hear it coming for a long time. But when I finally saw it, it was just there for a few seconds. When it finally set down, it sounded like about 50 freight trains."

Not trains, but an eyewitness account of a horrifying tornado that killed at least 61 persons and injured 497 others in Jackson, Miss., and nearby areas Thursday. The worst of the storm came about dusk when the twister hit a Jackson shopping center full of women and children. Officials said the property damage would exceed $12 million.

Nature also plagued the northern plain states late in the week with one of the worst blizzards of the century. Normal life came almost to a halt throughout the Dakotas and Minnesota. Hundreds of persons were stranded on buses, trains and in rural areas. At least 24 persons were missing in the Dakotas and Minnesota with at least four known dead. Rescue efforts were blocked by drifting snow that reached the tops of buildings.

AT LAST it was official, one of our H-bombs is missing and two others blew apart, spewing radioactive material over a small area near Palomares in southeastern Spain.

The events happened Jan. 17 when a United States Air Force B52 bomber collided with a tanker plane over the Mediterranean near Palomares. The B52 crashed on land near Palomares, and within days the world knew about the missing bomb. But only on Wednesday did the United States officially announce this, explaining that the Spanish government had asked it to keep silence until then.

It was the first announcement also of the radioactive spillage. The United States said no one was injured, but disclosed that some 1,500 tons of Spanish topsoil are being carefully scooped into bags, to be brought to the United States for testing and disposal.

KWAME NKRUMAH treated the world to a bizarre political innovation. Bounced by his own army as president of Ghana, the ebullient leftist turned up as president of another country, the neighboring African nation of Guinea.

Hurrying home from Peking, where he was when the Ghana coup toppled him, Nkrumah showed up in Conakry, the capital of Guinea, to a warm welcome from President Ssekou Toure, his fellow leftist. Toure then startled diplomats around the world by declaring on radio that Nkrumah can be considered "the head of state of Guinea and secretary-general of the Guinean Democratic Party."

Fresh off the plane from Peking, via Moscow, Nkrumah told a rally in Conakry Stadium: "I have come here purposely to use Guinea as a platform to tell the world that very soon I shall be in Accra, in Ghana."

CANADIAN Pacific Airline's Flight 402, coming in from Hong Kong, was held over Tokyo International Airport for 45 minutes because of heavy fog. Finally it was given clearance to land and began its approach over Tokyo Bay. The plane came in too low and the wheels caught landing lights on the approach lane, snapped off 15 of them. The plane smashed into a retaining wall at the beginning of the runway, spewing fiery wreckage 1,000 yards down the runway. Of 71 persons aboard the Douglas DC8, eight survived.

ANOTHER plane came out of rain and heavy overcast Monday morning and approached St. Louis Airport, but badly off course. It struck Building 110 of the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., shearing a wing, and crashed into a yard.

Killed instantly were astronauts Elliott M. See Jr., 38, one of the two civilians in the space flight program, and Air Force Maj. Charles A. Bassett 2D, 34. They had been scheduled to go into space this spring as the Gemini 9 astronauts.

THE RUSSIANS electrified the scientific world by crash-landing an unmanned space vehicle on Venus, 25 million miles from earth.

The "Venus 3" was launched last Nov. 16 but lost radio communication just before reaching its target. It was the first such vehicle to land on a cosmic body other than the moon.

Sir Bernard Lovell, Britain's leading radio astronomer, charged the Soviets endangered future studies of life on Venus by possibly contaminating its surface with organisms from earth.

An American space official described the Russian triumph as "another spectacular pay-off" or Moscow's intensive efforts to explore the moon and planets.

BELIEVING the portents good for his Labor Party, Prime Minister Harold Wilson called a general election for Britain on March 31. Wilson, who came to power in the October 1964 election with a House of Commons margin of five, was now down to a margin of three. Gamblers made Labor a favorite, and the party hoped for a gain of some 50 seats in Commons.

Queen Contest Attracts Many Lakewood Girls

Choosing a young lady to reign as the Queen of the 20th anniversary of the Lakewood Pan-American Festival—March 1 through April 24 this year—is no easy task, but the job is under way.

Some 35 charming girls from Lakewood and other nearby community high schools and colleges to date have signed up as entries. The selection process will proceed until 20 semi-finalists are chosen. From these the queen will be chosen.

Deadline for entries is Friday. The final briefing session for entrants is set for 3:30 p.m. Tuesday at Lakewood High School.

* * * *

LATER A TEA will be given in the girls' honor by the Lakewood Junior Women's Club in order that they may be presented to consular officials of foreign nations and local dignitaries.

A dance will be held to introduce the girls to the public and each semi-finalist will be awarded an engraved charm bracelet depicting the honored country.

Final decision as to the winner and her "court" will be made as part of Fiesta festivities.

Typical of the girls who have already entered are Emily Alavos and De Anna Brody.

Emily, 18, lives at 6042 Sugarwood St., Lakewood. She is 5 feet 6½ inches in height, weighs 125 pounds. Her favorite outdoor activities are water sports and hunting. Her main hobby is reading. In foods she says she likes foreign dishes.

Asked what brought her and the family to Lakewood, she replied: "My father felt we should come here and develop with this thriving community."

What foreign country would she most desire to visit? "Brazil, definitely," she said.

* * * *

What is her preferred outdoor activity? "Flying."

De Anna's hobby is interior decorating. The food she likes to cook or bake? "Cakes and pot roast."

What motivated De Anna and her family in coming to Lakewood? "So we could be close to my father's business," she said.

M'Cone Asks Board Back New Hospital

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

John A. McCone, chairman of the governor's commission which investigated the South Los Angeles riot, will address county supervisors Tuesday on behalf of a county hospital in the Watts-Willowbrook area.

Supervisors have scheduled a special item of business at 10 a.m. to consider proposals that the county build a hospital in the riot area.

L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer, has recommended construction of a $21.4 million, 438-bed hospital on a 30-acre site at 120th Street and Wilmington Avenue, now occupied by the Palm Lane Housing Project.

The basic hospital would cost an estimated $13 million, Hollinger said. Other costs include $4.5 million for site development, shops and maintenance facilities, a powerhouse and a laundry; $2.5 million for hospital equipment; demolition and site clearance; and $1.2 million for architectural and engineering services.

* * * *

STATE AND FEDERAL aid totaling $9.1 million is expected to be available, and Hollinger has recommended that the remaining $12.3 million be raised by a bond issue, to be placed before county voters in the June primary election.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who has advocated immediate action on hospital construction, announced that McCone would appear at Tuesday's hearing in support of the Watts-Willowbrook facility.

The McCone Commission was critical of hospital facilities in the riot area and recommended that a 700-bed hospital be built.

Hahn attempted last Tuesday to have supervisors appoint an architect for the project, but the majority of the board voted instead to refer the matter to the County Hospital Advisory Commission for a report.

* * * *

THE ADVISORY commission was asked to make its recommendations at this Tuesday's meeting, but commissioners complained they were being rushed into action and said they will request additional time.

Hollinger told supervisors that to qualify for 1966-67 state and federal hospital construction funds, the county would have to file an application to the State Department of Public Health by July 30.

He also is recommending that the proposed hospital be operated in conjunction with a new post-graduate medical school under direction of the Charles R. Drew Medical Society, representing doctors in the area; and the USC and UCLA medical schools.

Livestock Decrease in County

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The continued urbanization of Los Angeles County during 1965 resulted in another drop in both the number of livestock and the value of production, the county veterinarian reported this week.

Total estimated production for the year was $99,342,885, as compared to $101,801,560 during 1964 and $113 million in 1963, according to Dr. Robert J. Schroeder.

Dr. Schroeder explained that the production figure is an estimate of the value to the farmer of such products as milk, beef, chicken and eggs.

* * * *

DURING THE year, he said, about 30 dairies left Los Angeles County, moving to San Bernardino or Riverside counties, or north to the San Joaquin Valley.

As of last Jan. 1, there were an estimated 100,000 dairy cattle and 47,800 beef cattle in Los Angeles County, Dr. Schroeder reported. As of Jan. 1, 1965, the comparable figure were 106,050 dairy cattle and 49,600 beef cattle.

Estimated production value of dairy cattle dropped from $66.5 million in 1964 to $62.4 million last year, but beef cattle production rose from $7.5 million in 1964 to $9.4 million last year.

Poultry dropped in numbers during 1965, but showed an increase in value, Dr. Schroeder said.

UNIQUE GRADUATION

What may be the most unique graduation ceremony in California takes place in Long Beach March 18.

First graduates of the Institute of Lifetime Learning, 501 E. Ocean Blvd., will receive their certificates of completion.

What's so unique about that?

All of the graduates are over 65 years old, and they range up to 95.

The ceremony, marking the end of the second semester, will take place in the Institute auditorium at 10:30 a.m. The students have finished courses in creative writing, Spanish, music appreciation, world affairs, speech improvement, psychology, literature appreciation and investments.

Graduates will be presented to Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, president and founder of the institute and president and founder of the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons, sponsors of the institute. The organizations have a total membership of one million.

Certificates will be presented by Joe C. Gunn, dean. Dr. Gregor Ziemer, program director will be master of ceremonies.

Dr. Andrus will give a short address.

Queen Contest Attracts Many Lakewood Girls

Choosing a young lady to reign as the Queen of the 20th anniversary of the Lakewood Pan-American Festival—March 1 through April 24 this year—is no easy task, but the job is under way.

Some 35 charming girls from Lakewood and other nearby community high schools and colleges to date have signed up as entries. The selection process will proceed until 20 semi-finalists are chosen. From these the queen will be chosen.

Deadline for entries is Friday. The final briefing session for entrants is set for 3:30 p.m. Tuesday at Lakewood High School.

* * * * *

LATER A TEA will be given in the girls' honor by the Lakewood Junior Women's Club in order that they may be presented to consular officials of foreign nations and local dignitaries.

A dance will be held to introduce the girls to the public and each semi-finalist will be awarded an engraved charm bracelet depicting the honored country.

Final decision as to the winner and her "court" will be made as part of Fiesta festivities.

Typical of the girls who have already entered are Emily Alavos and De Anna Brody.

Emily, 18, lives at 6042 Sugarwood St., Lakewood. She is 5 feet 6½ inches in height, weighs 125 pounds. Her favorite outdoor activities are water sports and hunting. Her main hobby is reading. In foods she says she likes foreign dishes.

Asked what brought her and the family to Lakewood, she replied: "My father felt we should come here and develop with this thriving community."

What foreign country would she most desire to visit? "Brazil, definitely," she said.

* * * * *

What is her preferred outdoor activity? "Flying."

De Anna's hobby is interior decorating. The food she likes to cook or bake? "Cakes and pot roast."

What motivated De Anna and her family in coming to Lakewood? "So we could be close to my father's business," she said.

M'Cone Asks Board Back New Hospital

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

John A. McCone, chairman of the governor's commission which investigated the South Los Angeles riot, will address county supervisors Tuesday on behalf of a county hospital in the Watts-Willowbrook area.

Supervisors have scheduled a special item of business at 10 a.m. to consider proposals that the county build a hospital in the riot area.

L. S. Hollinger, chief county administrative officer, has recommended construction of a $21.4 million, 438-bed hospital on a 30-acre site at 120th Street and Wilmington Avenue, now occupied by the Palm Lane Housing Project.

The basic hospital would cost an estimated $13 million, Hollinger said. Other costs include $4.5 million for site development, shops and maintenance facilities, a powerhouse and a laundry; $2.5 million for hospital equipment, demolition and site clearance; and $1.2 million for architectural and engineering services.

* * * *

STATE AND FEDERAL aid totaling $9.1 million is expected to be available, and Hollinger has recommended that the remaining $12.3 million be raised by a bond issue, to be placed before county voters in the June primary election.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, who has advocated immediate action on hospital construction, announced that McCone would appear at Tuesday's hearing in support of the Watts-Willowbrook facility.

The McCone Commission was critical of hospital facilities in the riot area and recommended that a 700-bed hospital be built.

Hahn attempted last Tuesday to have supervisors appoint an architect for the project, but the majority of the board voted instead to refer the matter to the County Hospital Advisory Commission for a report.

* * * *

THE ADVISORY commission was asked to make its recommendations at this Tuesday's meeting, but commissioners complained they were being rushed into action and said they will request additional time.

Hollinger told supervisors that to qualify for 1966-67 state and federal hospital construction funds, the county would have to file an application to the State Department of Public Health by July 30.

He also is recommending that the proposed hospital be operated in conjunction with a new post-graduate medical school under direction of the Charles R. Drew Medical Society, representing doctors in the area; and the USC and UCLA medical schools.

Livestock Decrease in County

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The continued urbanization of Los Angeles County during 1965 resulted in another drop in both the number of livestock and the value of production, the county veterinarian reported this week.

Total estimated production for the year was $99,342,885, as compared to $101,801,560 during 1964 and $113 million in 1963, according to Dr. Robert J. Schroeder.

Dr. Schroeder explained that the production figure is an estimate of the value to the farmer of such products as milk, beef, chicken and eggs.

* * * *

DURING THE year, he said, about 30 dairies left Los Angeles County, moving to San Bernardino or Riverside counties, or north to the San Joaquin Valley.

As of last Jan. 1, there were an estimated 100,000 dairy cattle and 47,800 beef cattle in Los Angeles County, Dr. Schroeder reported. As of Jan. 1, 1965, the comparable figure were 106,050 dairy cattle and 49,600 beef cattle.

Estimated production value of dairy cattle dropped from $66.5 million in 1964 to $62.4 million last year, but beef cattle production rose from $7.5 million in 1964 to $9.4 million last year.

Poultry dropped in numbers during 1965, but showed an increase in value, Dr. Schroeder said.

UNIQUE GRADUATION

What may be the most unique graduation ceremony in California takes place in Long Beach March 18.

First graduates of the Institute of Lifetime Learning, 501 E. Ocean Blvd., will receive their certificates of completion.

What's so unique about that?

All of the graduates are over 65 years old, and they range up to 95.

The ceremony, marking the end of the second semester, will take place in the Institute auditorium at 10:30 a.m. The students have finished courses in creative writing, Spanish, music appreciation, world affairs, speech improvement, psychology, literature appreciation and investments.

Graduates will be presented to Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, president and founder of the institute and president and founder of the National Retired Teachers Association and the American Association of Retired Persons, sponsors of the institute. The organizations have a total membership of one million.

Certificates will be presented by Joe C. Gunn, dean. Dr. Gregor Ziemer, program director will be master of ceremonies.

Dr. Andrus will give a short address.

THE PIONEERS UNDERSEA, NOT IN AIR

By STEVE LOWELL

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—The Lindbergh pioneering drive seems to be as strong in son Jon as it was in his famed father, Charles, but it's in a different direction.

Instead of searching for new vistas in the air as his father did, Jon is seeking the future in watery depths. He's a commercial diver.

Why didn't he follow the path his father blazed in the sky?

"Aviation is in a different era than it was when my father was in it," Jon explains. "The ocean offers a brand new field in many ways. It hasn't been developed. It contains vast quantities of unexploited resources. Diving is a tool in developing the potentials of the ocean."

Jon Morrow Lindbergh, who is 33, says he's been interested in the ocean as long as he can remember.

* * * *

He is a 1954 graduate of Stanford, where his major study was biology. During school he was in naval reserve officer training, and when he graduated he went on active duty in underwater demolition.

"It seemed like it would be interesting work," he said.

When he and the Navy parted company in 1957, he and three other men set up a firm which was primarily involved in commercial diving. That company, based in San Diego, lasted three years, then "the key personnel moved off to various corners of the world, so we sold out."

* * * *

"I WAS INVOLVED in my own companies the next five years in commercial diving and industrial blasting. We learned the basic techniques in Navy demolition work. Then Union Carbide Corp. bought the diving operations, and I went along with them."

Now he's Seattle manager for Ocean Systems, Inc., an affiliate of Union Carbide. Lindbergh explains the company is "interested in various fields of ocean development work — from research to contracting." His latest venture was helping the underwater search off Spain for a U.S. nuclear bomb lost in a B52 bomber crash.

Lindbergh figures he has spent only about 20% of his time diving in recent years. The balance has been spent on running the company's submersible program, from ordinary diving to the use of diving bells and small submarines on jobs like drilling for oil and inspecting undersea pipelines or cables.

Off the Oregon and California coasts he's worked as a trouble shooter on oil drilling rigs. Recently he was in charge of divers who helped install a pipeline 240 feet under the surface of Puget Sound, and early in the fall he helped repair a power cable which runs across the floor of the sound from Anacortes to the San Juan Islands.

* * * *

ONE OF HIS divers, Joe Staley, a former Navy underwater demolition expert, went along with a University of Washington oceanography team recently to explore the top of Cobb Seamount, a peak submerged in the Pacific off the Washington coast. The university plans to erect a tower on the peak. It will reach above the surface and radio information about the ocean and the weather to shore-based scientists. Staley was along to assist university divers.

Jon likes skiing, fishing and skin diving, and he'd like to be able to spend more time with his wife, Barbara, and their youngsters, Kristina 11, Wendy 9, Lars 7, Lief 5, and Erik 1. Their home is on a secluded inlet on Bainbridge Island, across the sound from Seattle. But "I've been too darned busy for anything but work."

In 1964, Lindbergh and Robert Stenuit spent 49 hours 432 feet down in the Atlantic off the Bahama Islands to prove man can work at that depth. They lived in a large rubber diving bell but swam in and out to take photographs and gather specimens.

As for close calls, Lindbergh says, "I've had narrower scrapes on the highway than in diving."

"In this work you learn to avoid dangerous situations. You don't take wild chances. There is a certain hazard operating underwater, so you have to pay some attention to keeping the element of hazard low."

The incident that sticks most clearly in his mind was a dive in the Pacific off San Diego "quite a few years ago."

* * * *

"WE WERE diving for anchors off an island in about 150 feet of water. I got a case of bends. It bothered me quite a bit — paralyzed one arm and one side of my face. We didn't have any decompression chamber, but it only lasted 15 minutes. Apparently it was a bubble in a nerve. I don't know. Very fortunately it just went away."

As for flying, Lindbergh learned in high school and holds a private license. He once considered going into naval aviation, but instead he chose underwater demolition.

"I still enjoy flying," he says, "but I haven't had enough time to keep my hand in."

DEEP-DIVING LINDBERGH

West Germany in S. Viet Aid Drive

BONN (AP)—West Germany's interior minister Paul Luecke announced a public appeal for welfare aid to South Viet Nam is planned here, particularly for refugee mothers and children. He said 100,000 Vietnamese refugees are living in "unimaginable conditions."

Africa Planes Spray Death on Crop-Eating Finches

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Night-flying planes, skimming trees and bushes by only a few feet, are dealing death to millions of finches in South Africa.

They spray poison on sleeping colonies of the small birds. Within minutes the ground is thick with Finch corpses.

The Finches, found throughout Southern Africa, are natural grass eaters, but if there is insufficient feed for them they damage crops like corn, sorghum, millet, wheat and rice.

They have caused damage estimated at up to $2.8 million a year.

3000 Detained Without Charge

NEW DELHI (AP)—The government told Parliament 3,030 persons are being detained under Defense of India rules established three years ago to permit so-called preventive detention without trial or charge.

HE PIONEERS UNDERSEA, NOT IN AIR

By STEVE LOWELL

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—The Lindbergh pioneering drive seems to be as strong in son Jon as it was in his famed father, Charles, but it's in a different direction.

Instead of searching for new vistas in the air as his father did, Jon is seeking the future in watery depths. He's a commercial diver.

Why didn't he follow the path his father blazed in the sky?

"Aviation is in a different era than it was when my father was in it," Jon explains. "The ocean offers a brand new field in many ways. It hasn't been developed. It contains vast quantities of unexploited resources. Diving is a tool in developing the potentials of the ocean."

Jon Morrow Lindbergh, who is 33, says he's been interested in the ocean as long as he can remember.

* * * *

He is a 1954 graduate of Stanford, where his major study was biology. During school he was in naval reserve officer training, and when he graduated he went on active duty in underwater demolition.

"It seemed like it would be interesting work," he said.

When he and the Navy parted company in 1957, he and three other men set up a firm which was primarily involved in commercial diving. That company, based in San Diego, lasted three years, then "the key personnel moved off to various corners of the world, so we sold out."

* * * *

"I WAS INVOLVED in my own companies the next five years in commercial diving and industrial blasting. We learned the basic techniques in Navy demolition work. Then Union Carbide Corp. bought the diving operations, and I went along with them."

Now he's Seattle manager for Ocean Systems, Inc., an affiliate of Union Carbide. Lindbergh explains the company is "interested in various fields of ocean development work — from research to contracting." His latest venture was helping the underwater search off Spain for a U.S. nuclear bomb lost in a B52 bomber crash.

Lindbergh figures he has spent only about 20% of his time diving in recent years. The balance has been spent on running the company's submersible program, from ordinary diving to the use of diving bells and small submarines on jobs like drilling for oil and inspecting undersea pipelines or cables.

Off the Oregon and California coasts he's worked as a trouble shooter on oil drilling rigs. Recently he was in charge of divers who helped install a pipeline 240 feet under the surface of Puget Sound, and early in the fall he helped repair a power cable which runs across the floor of the sound from Anacortes to the San Juan Islands.

* * * *

ONE OF HIS divers, Joe Staley, a former Navy underwater demolition expert, went along with a University of Washington oceanography team recently to explore the top of Cobb Seamount, a peak submerged in the Pacific off the Washington coast. The university plans to erect a tower on the peak. It will reach above the surface and radio information about the ocean and the weather to shore-based scientists. Staley was along to assist university divers.

Jon likes skiing, fishing and skin diving, and he'd like to be able to spend more time with his wife, Barbara, and their youngsters, Kristina 11, Wendy 9, Lars 7, Lief 5, and Erik 1. Their home is on a secluded inlet on Bainbridge Island, across the sound from Seattle. But "I've been too darned busy for anything but work."

In 1964, Lindbergh and Robert Stenuit spent 49 hours 432 feet down in the Atlantic off the Bahama Islands to prove man can work at that depth. They lived in a large rubber diving bell but swam in and out to take photographs and gather specimens.

As for close calls, Lindbergh says, "I've had narrower scrapes on the highway than in diving."

"In this work you learn to avoid dangerous situations. You don't take wild chances. There is a certain hazard operating underwater, so you have to pay some attention to keeping the element of hazard low."

The incident that sticks most clearly in his mind was a dive in the Pacific off San Diego "quite a few years ago."

* * * *

"WE WERE diving for anchors off an island in about 150 feet of water. I got a case of bends. It bothered me quite a bit — paralyzed one arm and one side of my face. We didn't have any decompression chamber, but it only lasted 15 minutes. Apparently it was a bubble in a nerve. I don't know. Very fortunately it just went away."

As for flying, Lindbergh learned in high school and holds a private license. He once considered going into naval aviation, but instead he chose underwater demolition.

"I still enjoy flying," he says, "but I haven't had enough time to keep my hand in."

DEEP-DIVING LINDBERGH

West Germany in S. Viet Aid Drive

BONN (AP)—West Germany's interior minister Paul Luecke announced a public appeal for welfare aid to South Viet Nam is planned here, particularly for refugee mothers and children. He said 100,000 Vietnamese refugees are living in "unimaginable conditions."

Africa Planes Spray Death on Crop-Eating Finches

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Night-flying planes, skimming trees and bushes by only a few feet, are dealing death to millions of finches in South Africa.

They spray poison on sleeping colonies of the small birds. Within minutes the ground is thick with Finch corpses.

The Finches, found throughout Southern Africa, are natural grass eaters, but if there is insufficient feed for them they damage crops like corn, sorghum, millet, wheat and rice.

They have caused damage estimated at up to $2.8 million a year.

3000 Detained Without Charge

NEW DELHI (AP)—The government told Parliament 3,030 persons are being detained under Defense of India rules established three years ago to permit so-called preventive detention without trial or charge.

Jury Deadlocked in Trial of Candace Mossler

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Mossler murder trial jury reported itself hopelessly deadlocked Saturday, but Circuit Judge George Schulz said he would keep the 12 men in session at least through today in an effort to reach a verdict.

Prospects for an eventual agreement appeared dim in view of the language of a note sent to the judge. The jurors said they were widely split over the guilt or innocence of both Candace Mossler and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers.

The blonde Mrs. Mossler is charged with masterminding and Powers with carrying out the murder of her husband, Jacques, head of a multi-million dollar bank and loan company chain.

After a conference with opposing attorneys in his chambers, Judge Schulz sent a written reply to the jury, instructing it to try again in fairness to both the state and the defendants."

When no progress was reported by 6:30 p.m. he told the jury to come back today and deliberate at least another day.

After the note was received, Harvey St. Jean one of the attorneys for Powers, objected vigorously to a continuation of the jury arguments and asked for a mistrial.

The terms of the jury's report, St. Jean said, indicated no hope for any eventual agreement and he added that the jury should not be "coerced" into further deliberations.

"The court has no intention of attempting to force the jury to reach a verdict or verdicts," Judge Schulz replied. But he said he did not feel that the jury had taken sufficient time.

State Atty. Richard Gerstein was asked, if the deadlock prevailed, whether he would try the defendants a second time. "Very definitely yes, and as quickly as possible," he said.

Mrs. Mossler waited tensely in a downtown hotel apartment for the word of her fate.

Clyde Woody, chief counsel of a banking empire willed to Mrs. Mossler by her husband, and her chief defender in court, said she was hearing up well under the strain.

During the sensational 34-day trial of Mrs. Mossler and her nephew, she had collapsed twice, staggering out of the courtroom with attacks of headache and nausea.

The state charged that Mrs. Mossler conceived and Powers carried out "brutal, unwarranted murder" of her husband. The motives, the prosecution said, were "greed, avarice, lust and money."

The jury retired Thursday night, came back into court Friday for lengthy re-reading of the testimony of several witnesses, and resumed deliberations Saturday morning.

Evidently, the 12 men had not come to a decision in the case of either defendant. The jury could, Woody said, deliver a verdict for one, then go back to continue deliberating the fate of the other.

The defense fought for separate trials. During the joint trial, Judge Schulz told the jury that at least half of the evidence offered by the state could be considered against Powers alone.

This left the jury with a difficult task of sifting the testimony. In his charge, the judge said one defendant could be convicted and another freed, or either could be found guilty or innocent of three degrees of murder or manslaughter.

EXPLOSION ABOARD AIRLINER?

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In 1964, a United Air Lines Viscount approaching Knoxville caught fire, started a descent, and went into a meandering course until it crashed into a hillside.

All 38 aboard were killed. Why they died may be the source of a bitter fight between United and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The CAB has yet to issue its findings on the accident. But in a document filed by United with the board last week, the airline expressed fear that the CAB's Bureau of Safety has made up its mind on the probable cause — an electrical fire that started in the belly and worked its way into the cabin.

United believes the fire started in the cabin. And while it does not state so flatly, it hints broadly that such an innocent act as a woman putting hair spray on her hair next to a man lighting a cigarette could have touched off what amounted to a minor explosion, resulting in a fire sweeping the cabin.

The United document, crammed with highly technical metallurgical and chemical data, still is one of the most intriguing submissions ever made to the CAB during the course of an accident investigation. Without saying so directly, it presents a picture of panic-stricken passengers in an airliner cabin filling with smoke and flames. It even suggests that the passengers may have interfered with the crew's efforts to put out the fire.

* * * *

UNITED BASES its case partially on some solid evidence — the presence of "liquid aliphatic hydrocarbon soot" found on the shirt of a passenger who jumped out of the plane before it crashed.

Liquid aliphatic hydrocarbon is found in such items as hair spray and lighter fluid. It is highly combustible. United noted that the substance was not indigenous to any part of the plane. Therefore, it must have been carried aboard. The passenger who jumped had flash burns on his hands and face.

United thinks the CAB will find that electrical arcing in a through-stud started the fatal fire. A through-stud is a tiny metal conductor which allows electric power to be brought through the fuselage of a pressurized plane without affecting the pressurization itself. If the studs become loose, arcing can spark and ignite either the fuselage skin or nearby hydraulic lines. This was the cause of all Constellations being grounded in 1946.

UAL rejects this theory because:

— The Viscount's manufacturer designed its stud installations to avoid any recurrence of the Constellation's troubles, and in six million flight hours by Viscounts throughout the world there has never been an incident involving the electrical arcing of a stud.

— There were traces of unburned paint in the immediate area of the UAL Viscount's stud installations, thus precluding any chance that the fire actually started here.

* * * *

UNITED further points out there was no evidence that the crew took action against an electrical fire. The airline's Viscount manual calls for specific steps in such cases — such as activating an emergency power switch and turning both the battery master switch and the generators off.

On the contrary, the airline says, there were definite indications that these steps were not followed. The emergency power inverter was found not to be rotating at the time of the crash. Fuel boost pumps were running and so was a generator-operated navigation device, indicating the generators had not been turned off.

There was, however, evidence that the pilots first followed procedures for combatting a cockpit or cabin fire, next smoke removal procedures, and lastly, steps taken against a cargo compartment fire.

The airline believes the CAB is hanging its hat on the latter that fire-extinguishing devices were found to have been activated in the cargo compartment, which in turn would add credence to the theory that the fire started in the belly.

But United says the CAB should first examine definite indications that the crew initially took emergency action for fighting a cockpit or cabin fire, followed by smoke evacuation procedures — and fired the extinguishers into the cargo bin, not because they suspected an electrical fire but as a last resort. This chronology, UAL suggests, is born out by evidence that the steps known to have been taken by the crew would have to involve the use of electrical power.

Jury Deadlocked in Trial of Candace Mossler

MIAMI, Fla (AP) — The Mossler murder trial jury reported itself hopelessly deadlocked Saturday, but Circuit Judge George Schulz said he would keep the 12 men in session at least through today in an effort to reach a verdict.

Prospects for an eventual agreement appeared dim in view of the language of a note sent to the judge. The jurors said they were widely split over the guilt or innocence of both Candace Mossler and her nephew, Melvin Lane Powers.

The blonde Mrs. Mossler is charged with masterminding and Powers with carrying out the murder of her husband, Jacques, head of a multi-million-dollar bank and loan company chain.

After a conference with opposing attorneys in his chambers, Judge Schulz sent a written reply to the jury, instructing it to try again in fairness to both the state and the defendants."

When no progress was reported by 6:30 p.m. he told the jury to come back today and deliberate at least another day.

After the note was received, Harvey St. Jean one of the attorneys for Powers, objected vigorously to a continuation of the jury arguments and asked for a mistrial.

The terms of the jury's report, St. Jean said, indicated no hope for any eventual agreement and he added that the jury should not be "coerced" into further deliberations.

"The court has no intention of attempting to force the jury to reach a verdict or verdicts," Judge Schulz replied. But he said he did not feel that the jury had taken sufficient time.

State Atty. Richard Gerstein was asked, if the deadlock prevailed, whether he would try the defendants a second time. "Very definitely yes, and as quickly as possible," he said.

Mrs. Mossler waited tensely in a downtown hotel apartment for the word of her fate.

Clyde Woody, chief counsel of a banking empire willed to Mrs. Mossler by her husband, and her chief defender in court, said she was bearing up well under the strain.

During the sensational 34-day trial of Mrs. Mossler and her nephew, she had collapsed twice, staggering out of the courtroom with attacks of headache and nausea.

The state charged that Mrs. Mossler conceived and Powers carried out "brutal, unwarranted murder" of her husband. The motives, the prosecution said, were "greed, avarice, lust and money."

The jury retired Thursday night, came back into court Friday for lengthy re-reading of the testimony of several witnesses, and resumed deliberations Saturday morning.

Evidently, the 12 men had not come to a decision in the case of either defendant. The jury could, Woody said, deliver a verdict for one, then go back to continue deliberating the fate of the other.

The defense fought for separate trials. During the joint trial, Judge Schulz told the jury that at least half of the evidence offered by the state could be considered against Powers alone.

This left the jury with a difficult task of sifting the testimony. In his charge, the judge said one defendant could be convicted and another freed, or either could be found guilty or innocent of three degrees of murder or manslaughter.

EXPLOSION ABOARD AIRLINER?

By ROBERT J. SERLING

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In 1964, a United Air Lines Viscount approaching Knoxville caught fire, started a descent, and went into a meandering course until it crashed into a hillside.

All 38 aboard were killed. Why they died may be the source of a bitter fight between United and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The CAB has yet to issue its findings on the accident. But in a document filed by United with the board last week, the airline expressed fear that the CAB's Bureau of Safety has made up its mind on the probable cause — an electrical fire that started in the belly and worked its way into the cabin.

United believes the fire started in the cabin. And while it does not state so flatly, it hints broadly that such an innocent act as a woman putting hair spray on her hair next to a man lighting a cigarette could have touched off what amounted to a minor explosion, resulting in a fire sweeping the cabin.

The United document, crammed with highly technical metallurgical and chemical data, still is one of the most intriguing submissions ever made to the CAB during the course of an accident investigation. Without saying so directly, it presents a picture of panic-stricken passengers in an airliner cabin filling with smoke and flames. It even suggests that the passengers may have interfered with the crew's efforts to put out the fire.

* * * *

UNITED BASES its case partially on some solid evidence — the presence of "liquid aliphatic hydrocarbon soot" found on the shirt of a passenger who jumped out of the plane before it crashed.

Liquid aliphatic hydrocarbon is found in such items as hair spray and lighter fluid. It is highly combustible. United noted that the substance was not indigenous to any part of the plane. Therefore, it must have been carried aboard. The passenger who jumped had flash burns on his hands and face.

United thinks the CAB will find that electrical arcing in a through-stud started the fatal fire. A through-stud is a tiny metal conductor which allows electric power to be brought through the fuselage of a pressurized plane without affecting the pressurization itself. If the studs become loose, arcing can spark and ignite either the fuselage skin or nearby hydraulic lines. This was the cause of all Constellations being grounded in 1946.

UAL rejects this theory because:

— The Viscount's manufacturer designed its stud installations to avoid any recurrence of the Constellation's troubles, and in six million flight hours by Viscounts throughout the world there has never been an incident involving the electrical arcing of a stud.

— There were traces of unburned paint in the immediate area of the UAL Viscount's stud installations, thus precluding any chance that the fire actually started here.

* * * *

UNITED further points out there was no evidence that the crew took action against an electrical fire. The airline's Viscount manual calls for specific steps in such cases — such as activating an emergency power switch and turning both the battery master switch and the generators off.

On the contrary, the airline says, there were definite indications that these steps were not followed. The emergency power inverter was found not to be rotating at the time of the crash. Fuel boost pumps were running and so was a generator-operated navigation device, indicating the generators had not been turned off.

There was, however, evidence that the pilots first followed procedures for combatting a cockpit or cabin fire, next smoke removal procedures, and lastly, steps taken against a cargo compartment fire.

The airline believes the CAB is hanging its hat on the latter—that fire-extinguishing devices were found to have been activated in the cargo compartment, which in turn would add credence to the theory that the fire started in the belly.

But United says the CAB should first examine definite indications that the crew initially took emergency action for fighting a cockpit or cabin fire, followed by smoke evacuation procedures — and fired the extinguishers into the cargo bin, not because they suspected an electrical fire but as a last resort. This chronology, UAL suggests, is born out by evidence that the steps known to have been taken by the crew would have to involve the use of electrical power.

TANGLED THREAD OF FATE AND FINANCE

4 Lives in Wake of Bartholomae Death

By MOLLY BURRELL

A tangled thread of fate and finance interweaves the lives of these four women in the wake of one of the most sensational slayings in Orange County history, the butcher knife stabbing of millionaire William Bartholomae.

Lovely Sarajane, heiress to part of her father' fortune, is striving for seclusion. Her mother, now Sara Bartholomae Launder, is remarried and contesting her late husband's will, although she is already a millionairess.

Carmen Bartholomae, widowed by the death of Charles Bartholomae, William's younger brother, also is suing for her share--and that of her son, Carlos—of the Bartholomae fortune. Her half-sister, Manola, who inflicted the fatal wounds in Bartholomae's abdomen, has married in rural Spain, ending a spinsterhood of poverty, pain and despair.

WILLIAM AND Charles Bartholomae are dead. The women with whom they surrounded themselves are very much alive. Two of them are waging battle in the courts for fortunes; two of them are seeking solitude and a chance to live their own lives. But their fates were bound together when the elder Bartholomae lay dying on the floor of his Newport Beach mansion January 5, 1964.

His brother's wife, Carmen, was unconscious on the floor nearby. Above Bartholomae's body stood Manola, who had fatally wounded the millionaire whom she thought had been threatening her sister.

Dark-eyed Carmen, William's sister-in-law, was imprisoned after the slaying, then released. Manola, now 33, communicating via translators, admitted struggling with Bartholomae, and was also imprisoned, charged with his death. She was subsequently acquitted on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

SARAJANE LATER was named inheritor of half her father's estate which was estimated at $7 million.

Her mother, Sara, 52, already awarded $4.25 million, the second largest settlement ever granted a divorcee in a California court, was not mentioned in the will. Her lawsuit seeks any hitherto unreported community property.

Carmen, 27, a widow since her husband Charles died Nov. 22, 1964, of a heart attack, now lives a day-to-day existence financed by her Hollywood attorney, Paul Caruso. She awaits court hearings on claims to Charles' estate—27% of what remains after Sarajane's allotment.

Under edict of court appointed trustees of the William Bartholomae estate, no money can be alloted from the estate until all claims have been settled or withdrawn.

Thus, Carmen cannot receive any subsistence for herself and her young son Carlos with whom she lives in seclusion in Garden Grove.

"All this is nothing new to me," said Carmen. "I was born poor and I'm used to working hard. . . . It worries me not to be able to pay my bills, but what can I do? It is more important that I stay home and take care of my baby—besides I couldn't make enough to realize any profit after I paid a baby sitter."

FOR CARMEN'S sister Manola, February 1966 marked the beginning of a new life: she and her longtime sweetheart were married in a church ceremony near the family home in Malaga, Spain.

The new life for Manola is but a continuation of plans which were interrupted when she came to California a little more than two years ago to help Carmen after the birth of young Carlos. The experience of that morning in the kitchen and the subsequent lie detector tests and trial came to an end with her acquittal. She returned to her former job in a cotton factory in Malaga.

Sara's honeymoon began in early January of this year, and almost immediately was stalled in Acapulco harbor aboard the Bartholomae yacht, Sea Diamond. She and her new husband, Whittier manufacturer Ernest Launder, were delayed over a hassle with port authorities who claimed they illegally entered the ports of Manzanilla and Puerto Vallarta. The delay halted the cruise which left Newport Harbor Jan. 4, and which occasionally produced rumors of something less than total bliss aboard the $300,000 yacht.

SARAJANE, a part-time student at Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa, now lives the life of a beautiful recluse—much sought, seldom found. Her former frequent appearances as queen of this or that city or festival have been strictly curtailed and she now appears, only on specific requests, as Miss Newport Beach. Although her father's Newport Beach mansion will probably be hers when the estate is settled, she cannot occupy it until then. She shares an apartment with a cousin—and an unlisted phone number.

"You can't blame her," her attorney explains. "She's a lovely, personable, very rich girl, and she has been besieged with demands on her time, and investment advice. She would just like to be left alone to lead what she considers to be a normal life—some college, some friends, some fun, some privacy."

While trustees of the Bartholomae millions ponder dispersal of the estate, Bartholomae's sister-in-law Carmen has resigned herself to the waiting game. Her late husband Charles' estate, estimated at $600,000, is bound by terms of his brother's will which is being contested by Willard D. Miller of Oakland, a son of his first wife, and by Sara, his second wife.

CHARLES' HOSPITAL and funeral bills remain unpaid. "I haven't even been able to pay for the headstone on my husband's grave, but I will, someday," Carmen declares.

She and Carlos share their apartment with her late husband's nurse, and she depends entirely on monthly checks from attorney Caruso, who is also co-executor of Charles' estate.

"If the court settlement does not work out in maybe three years I will have to go to work. I would work now except for Carlos—he is so little and he has been sick," she says.

After the three years when she and her husband Charles ran William's $600,000 mansion and hosted his lavish parties, her present life is stark contrast. "In those days we had many friends," she remembers. "That's the way I guess when people have so much money—they have a lot of people who seem to be friends, but they drift away when there's no more money."

FOR CARMEN, mere subsistence is not new. She remembers her early years working as a fish wrapper, then touring Europe with her own dance troupe at 14, marriage at 18, and continuing to work as singer and dancer right up until the time of Carlos' impending birth. "La Malaguena" was her professional name, and her night club and auditorium shows included programs at Wilshire Ebell, in San Francisco, New York, Mexico City and 2½ years at El Matador in Los Angeles.

One more snarl in the tangled skein of legal actions which lie in the path of any quick allocation of the Bartholomae fortune is the most recent suit filed by attorneys for Charles Bartholomae's daughter by his first marriage. Mrs. Cita Arena, 28, of Lido Isle is seeking to break her father's will on the allegation that he was not in sound mental state when he cut her off with $1 in the Jan. 29, 1964 document. A prior will drawn up Aug. 2, 1963, indicated that she was to receive a third of his estate—an estimated $200,000.

MRS. ARENA'S attorney filed a second suit late last month charging that an agreement existed between the two Bartholomae brothers on a generous inheritance to be earmarked for Charles' daughter, and that Charles broke that agreement when he made out the second will less than a month after his brother died. The suit cites the first will as proof of the agreement.

Untangling the whole snarl of claims and counterclaims on both estates may take as long as five years, attorneys estimate.

The first round in the effort to settle the Charles Bartholomae estate is scheduled for April 8 in Orange County Superior Court. A hearing date on Mrs. Arena's first suit to break her father's will is to be set at that time and will probably be scheduled within 60 days.

WILLIAM Bartholomae's fortune began in oil. It was extended through ranching, real estate, gold mines. He made a fetish of cleanliness and had a passion for yachts. By reputation, he was an irascible, ruthless perfectionist who demanded much of his employes.

But the Bartholomae men are dead. The Bartholomae women either are contesting in the legal arena, or struggling for peace in seclusion. Bartholomae's shadow, large and lasting as is his fortune, remains a thing of substance. It is still a force in the lives of at least four women.

CRACKING at the State Highway Dept. is a popular pastime these days but don't tell me these people are indifferent to suggestions and requests from the public. On my own and behalf of other citizens I've come up with plenty of them, and have always gotten a courteous hearing and, on occasion, some action.

Case in point is the matter of an odd condition on the collector (approach) road between Imperial and Century Blvd. on the San Diego Freeway involving a Long Beach sign. It's a route generally used when driving from International Airport to L.B.

On the suggestion of readers, I wrote the highway dept. a while back pointing out that persons driving south on the collector road see a Long Beach sign right ahead of them which isn't on the collector road—it's on the main freeway. At night or in the rain an LB bound driver has a tendency to follow toward the overhead sign and run into the raised divider between the collector road and the freeway. This sounds complicated but maybe you'll understand it.

As a result of the note from here, the highway people are putting in additional reflectorized guide markers to delineate the collector road more positively. They've planted oleanders in the dividing area that will soon grow up tall enough to obscure the overhead sign from people who shouldn't see it.

It wasn't the world's biggest problem—but the response of the hwy. people is significant.

EVERYBODY'S looking for a good tip, on the horses or something, and it was interesting to watch the audience at the F and M bank forum the other eve when a stock analyst tossed out the names of a few stocks he likes.

A lot of pens and paper came out of pockets when New York Analyst Sid Lurie gave his list. I don't want BC readers to miss out on anything, and for what it's worth, here it is:

Remember, it's just a list that one man in the business likes. No wise man invests anything without investigating and satisfying himself about its merits.

EVER notice this common mistake made by people assigned to lead the Pledge to the Flag?

They say, "Repeat after me" when they mean "repeat with me."

It can be done, but hardly anybody any more gives the Pledge phrase-by-phrase with the audience repeating each phrase. I think it's done that way in some lodge rituals.

PERHAPS there's an indication of one reason for the poor turnout for last week's poverty election in what happened in a south county district heavily populated by Mexican-Americans.

There's a "Teen Post" in this area, staffed by two capable and conscientious women, who were expected to help spread information on the election.

At 3 p.m. on the day before the election a huge quantity of information material was dumped on them. These printed items had to be folded and there was nobody either to do that or to carry them out over the community. Moreover, everything was printed in English, whereas many of the older people of the community who might be interested speak and read only Spanish.

The two women were overwhelmed but did the best they could. But it was obvious that in this particular area, at least, the information activity on the election was badly bungled.

REMEMBER when there was a board walk extending on a level with Pine Ave. to the old auditorium on a pier? The Salvation Army played below the walk and tourists would stand above, throwing silver dollars on a bass drum after the concert and shouting the names of their states as the dollars hit the drum.—Al Fingado.

Note—I'd guess Al's memory on that is pinpointed to about 1913.

Just How Much 'Truth' Is True?

Editor's Note—Today it is called "the credibility gap," but lack of candor in government is nothing new. In recent times Eisenhower was impaled on the U-2, Kennedy on the Bay of Pigs. Now Johnson wrestles with worldwide intrigues and the question is: How much "truth" is true?

By SAUL PETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a town of passing prose favoritees, this year's phrase in Washington so far is the "credibility gap" in government.

Quetion: Does it in fact exist? Answer: It does, or seems to, and seeming to, it exists. Among governments foreign and domestic, is this new in history? No. New or old, at what point is it dangerous for a democratic government to tell less or more than the truth, to squeeze it, sculpt it or withhold it? That is the question no one seems able to answer; every attempt is like nailing jello to the wall.

Here, one is led into a never-never land where morality and necessity clash; where cold wars are more complicated than hot wars and shooting wars are undeclared; where hard-headed men of the world disagree with Boy Scouts who never had to meet a payroll; where the people's right to know is balanced, precariously, with the "people's right not to know"; where diplomacy and political maneuver, like film, can curl up and die from exposure, where the end, always the end, it is hoped, justifies the means.

The moral dilemmas may obscure the point of danger but not the ultimate danger itself. In his book, "Freedom or Secrecy," J. Russell Wiggins, editor of the Washington Post, posed it:

"If a government repeatedly resorts to lies in crises where lies seem to serve its interests best, it will one day be unable to employ the truth effectively when truth would serve its interests best. A government that too readily rationalizes its right to lie in a crisis will never lack for either lies or crises."

THERE HAVE been lies.

In 1960, the government of Dwight D. Eisenhower lied about the U-2 plane shot down over Russia.

In 1961, through its ambassador at the United Nations, the government of John F. Kennedy lied about the Bay of Pigs invasion.

In each case, the deception was exposed in a moment of profound national pain. But in neither did the President nor his administration continue to suffer from a lingering doubt about its word.

The administration of Lyndon B. Johnson has had no single moment as traumatic as the U-2 incident or the Bay of Pigs. It has not been obliged to make public confession of attempted deception. And yet there lingers over Washington today a cloud of doubt—large and gray in the minds of some, small and off-white in the minds of others.

The symptoms are various. In a poll taken late last year by the Opinion Research Corp. for the Columbia Broadcasting System, one of the questions concerned the truthfulness of official U.S. announcements of American casualties and other Vietnamese war information. Of those polled, 67% believed it was "sometimes" truthful; 15%, "always" truthful, and 13% "almost never" truthful.

Last December U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg spoke of a "crisis of confidence" in explaining why Washington disclosed its position on the reputed second peace feeler from Hanoi. Goldberg denied the crisis was justified but did say, "We have a great problem maintaining our credibility with our own people."

Many observers detected another symptom in the spectacular peace offensive launched early in December by the administration with an undiplomatic blaze of pyrotechnics. Few here doubt the first purpose of that effort: Peace in Viet Nam. But the intensive, worldwide effort to convince friend and foe and neutral alike of the United States' sincerity, in which this country seemed to be begging to be believed, reflected an unofficial uneasiness about its reputation for meaning what it says.

Series of Small, Large Incidents

Last February U.N. Secretary General U Thant, in a rare display of undiplomatic language, said there had been a peace feeler from Hanoi and that the American people were not getting all the facts. The White House insisted there were "no meaningful proposals" then before the government. The word "meaningful" was lost. The impression grew that there had been no feelings at all.

Then in November came the magazine article by Eric Sevareid in which he said that during the 1964 presidential campaign U Thant told Adlai Stevenson he had obtained Hanoi's agreement to meet with an American representative in Rangoon. Had there been such a proposal? "Yes," the State Department now said, on Nov. 15. Officials today still insist the offer was "too nebulous" to take seriously. Clearly U Thant disagreed. In any case, was it too nebulous to admit at the time?

Last Aug. 31, the prime minister of Singapore, Lee Kuan Yew, claimed a CIA agent had offered him a $3.3 million bribe five years before. The State Department denied the charge. Then Lee produced a letter from Secretary of State Dean Rusk apologizing for the incident. Then the State Department admitted it. Then and now, the State Department insists the denial was a result of bureaucratic error, that the man issuing the denial hadn't known the facts. Possible? Possible.

LAST SPRING, the government announced that U.S. forces were landing in the Dominican republic to protect "thousands" of Americans and others imperilled by the uprising there. Later, as the U.S. force grew greatly, there was another official reason given for the intervention: To prevent a Communist takeover. Describing the dangers, President Johnson told a news conference June 17 that "some 1,500 innocent people were murdered and shot and their heads cut off."

The government explanations were greeted with rising skepticism. Among others, Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, which heard secret testimony on the subject, flailed the administration for a "lack of candor." He said it had used exaggerated reports of atrocities and the extent of Communist control, had relied on "faulty advice . . . inadequate . . . or false information."

In October, 1963, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara predicted that the bulk of American military forces (then mostly "advisers") would be out of Viet Nam by the end of 1965. Early in the spring of 1965, he predicted that neither U.S. combat troops nor more money would be needed in Viet Nam. Late in 1965, after his last trip to Viet Nam, the secretary said "We have stopped losing the war." And at least one Pentagon reporter

Smog Seen as Peril to World

ANYONE who needs a few extra worries can join Dr. Frederick Sargent II, of the University of Illinois, who fears that smog may envelop the world, making life impossible.

He told a meeting of the American Medical Association in Los Angeles that the capacity of the atmosphere to renew its oxygen is limited. Renewal takes place through photosynthesis of green leaves.

He envisions billions of Asiatics rushing about in autos to outdo America in smog. As populations, autos and industries increase, smog will spread and spread.

Without at all underestimating the evil of air pollution in metropolises, we feel the dire prophecy is based on the unrealistic assumption that history will continue to follow present trends for centuries. This is most unlikely.

First, the population explosion may end, perhaps sooner than most people think. Birth control may become a worldwide custom. Or man's ancient enemies — war and plague — may drastically reduce populations.

The age of petroleum is approaching its end, believe many observers. The individual motor car is wasteful transportation, and the problems it brings, including smog, can become too great for tolerance. Also, fossil fuel will become exhausted, forcing the price so high few can afford it.

Man is still uncommon on this earth. The forests that cover Brazil, Africa and much of Canada and Siberia are busily releasing oxygen. Ships are still rarities on the vast expanses of ocean.

Nature has a way of correcting its excesses. If men and their machines become too numerous and destructive, they will suffer and the wilderness will return. It has happened many times in history.

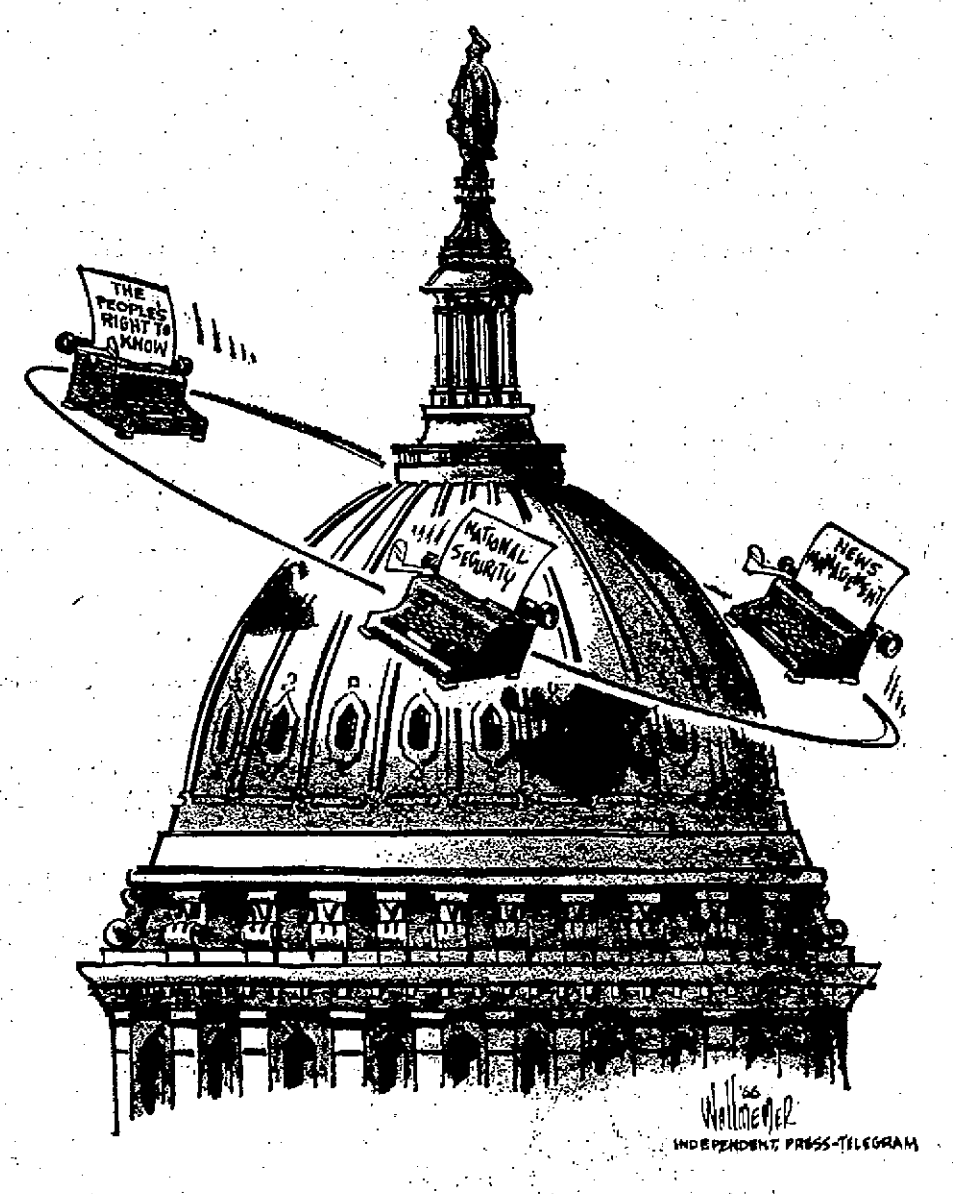
Communist Dialectic Shows Flaws

THE HEART of Communist philosophy is "historical dialectic." It is a complex doctrine, but stated all too simply it is this: Every social action brings a reaction which finally merges characteristics of the two forces into a new force.

For example, the struggle of common people with the aristocracy caused the emergence of the middle class.

The middle class in turn became involved in a struggle with the working class. This, say the orthodox Reds, is the way communism came into being.

Strangely, here the argument ends. The Communist state, say the true believers, is monolithic, one stone. It has no class struggle because there are no classes. All its efforts can be devoted to expansion and self-improvement.



Events do not appear to bear out the idea. Kwame Nkrumah, the Marxist dictator of Ghana, has been toppled from power by an anti-Communist coup d'etat. Not long ago the Indonesian army killed many thousands of Communists in a ferocious blood bath.

Even in the nations where communism is established there are signs that the dialectic is still at work. Russia from time to time makes strange capitalistic sounds, and there are rumors of mounting ideological tensions. The Satellites are Communists because they have to be. Given half a chance, things would change.

It won't work. The monolithic society is incompatible with human nature. Even in the most loving family there is always action and reaction resulting in change.

Many more anti-Communist revolutions are likely in the years ahead.

School Tax Override

EDITOR:

A bond and tax override election seems to bring out a great deal of interest in education from groups that heretofore had, as it would seem, only a dormant interest. The teachers of the Paramount Unified School District for years have been aware of the mounting financial problems in the district. They have been asking for average materials and monies (and) . . . have seen the growing need for services, classrooms and maintenance.

A few years ago the Teachers Association turned down a small salary increase in favor of teaching a better educational day. The association hired an independent research group to study the financial condition of Paramount. In the report it was stated that the district was in dire need of additional funds and was spending the money we had for education wisely. This was a blow to the association, for we were sure there were hidden funds we could use, or a gross misuse of funds. The dream was over and reality was here to stay. During this time we were frozen on our salary schedule.

When we saw that other comparable unified districts were being paid up to $1,000 more year after year it became apparent that those of us that stayed in the district would be subsidizing the educational program with more dollars than our entire tax bill. This year the teachers asked the Board of Education to look into the possibility of providing more money through an election.

Paramount now has the highest elementary class ratio of all Los Angeles County Unified School Districts. For the past few years it has been necessary to keep adding students to the classes. This is one way money can be saved. When it comes time to reduce high class loads by only one student, it will take eleven classrooms and eleven additional teachers. The cost will be roughly $350,000.

It seems strange that some people in industry are opposed to the idea of appropriating sufficient money for education. One of the reasons we find a great deal of industry in California today is because of the large number of well educated people in the area. This is their strength today.

We have asked for a bare minimum amount in this election. If this plea fails because of short sightedness, it is almost a certainty that we will ask again next for the same amount, or more.

GENE W. MYERS
President, Paramount
Teachers Association

(Editor's Note: The Paramount Unified School district will hold an election next Tuesday, March 8, on the question of whether to authorize a tax override of $1 per hundred of assessed valuation for operation of the school system and whether to approve a $5 million bond issue for school construction. Present tax rate is $5.49. There are close to 10,000 students in the district.)

THOUGHTS

THE HIGHEST use of capital is not to make more money, but to make money do more for the betterment of life—Henry Ford, Industrialist.

There are but two powers in the world, the sword and the mind. In the long run the sword is always beaten by the mind.—Napoleon Bonaparte.

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — How reluctant the U.N. Security Council is to handle the Viet Nam war was illustrated by a backstage attempt by the Japanese ambassador to revive the discussion.

Just before he left for London, Ambassador Arthur Goldberg reported this to the President. He said that Ambassador Akira Matsui, with Goldberg's blessing, had circulated a statement to the 10 nonpermanent Security Council members asking them to endorse a peace effort. All he could get was four signatures—the Dutch, Jordan, New Zealand and, of course, the Japanese.

BEHIND THE RELUCTANCE of other council members to take up President Johnson on his offer of U.N. negotiation, arbitration or anything else on Viet Nam are two chief factors:

One is the absence of China from the United Nations. Many members believe it is both unfair and impractical to try to negotiate when China can make political hay out of the fact that the United States has long barred her from U.N. membership.

President Johnson, of course, has made it clear that China would be welcomed in New York for the purpose of Viet Nam talks. This important concession is generally ignored in the backstage U.N. discussion.

Second factor is Soviet Russia's negative attitude. Moscow has made it clear that it would veto Viet Nam peace talks because North Viet Nam is not a member of the U.N.

Various member nations are reluctant to put the Russians on the spot publicly as against a move toward peace.

The President has continued to give Ambassador Goldberg a free hand in New York. Some State Department officials seem not displeased that Arthur has reached an impasse. They regard him as not all kosher when it comes to diplomacy.

However, the indefatigable former labor negotiator, who has hammered out many a wage contract between the United Steelworkers and the U.S. Steel Co., is still plugging away for peace. He has a couple of moves up his sleeve which he intends to bring out after March 29, when the big Russian-Chinese showdown takes place in Moscow.

Alarming reports have come out of Hong Kong that Chinese and Vietnamese refugees are disillusioned over life in the free West and are slipping back behind the Bamboo Curtain to Communist China and North Viet Nam.

This could be a serious blow to the West.

Chinese refugees in Hong Kong complain that though they were forced to work in a Communist state, this was better than not working at all.

As refugees in Hong Kong, they have been forced to sit around idle. In addition, they complain that food is difficult to get in Hong Kong and that their children can't get into Hong Kong schools. At least in Red China their children could learn to read and write—even though in Communist schools.

In South Viet Nam refugees also say they dont have enough aid to live on or a chance to get jobs and a new start in life. What money they are supposed to receive is pocketed by corrupt officials. So they are beginning to drift back to the Viet Cong.

Sen. John Sparkman, the Alabama war horse who ran for Vice President on the Adlai Stevenson ticket and has seen over a quarter of a century of service in Congress, now seems almost certain to remain in Washington.

Up until the time George Wallace decided to run his wife for governor and until the filing date closed March 1, it looked as if John might be in for a battle.

However, only two relatively unknown candidates got into the race against Sparkman, one of them being an old family friend, Mrs. Margaret Stewart, who confides that she filed just to get her name known around the state.

Of course Sparkman faces some Republican opposition in November. Hitherto, the November election hasn't amounted to a hill of beans in Alabama. It was the Democratic primary that counted. But in the last election Republicans capitalized on Gov. Wallace's bolt to Goldwater and elected five congressmen.

THIS TIME it will be the Wallace family which will suffer from Republican opposition, because glib, pleasant Jim Martin, a powerful vote-getter and one of the GOP congressmen elected in 1964, will oppose them for governor.

Sen. Sparkman says he hopes the Republicans will put up candidates for every top office. "It will be good for the state," he says. "They talk about the two-party system. Now let's see them carry it out."

TANGLED THREAD OF FATE AND FINANCE

4 Lives in Wake of Bartholomae Death

By MOLLY BURRELL

A tangled thread of fate and finance interweaves the lives of these four women in the wake of one of the most sensational slayings in Orange County history, the butcher knife stabbing of millionaire William Bartholomae.

Lovely Sarajane, heiress to part of her father' fortune, is striving for seclusion. Her mother, now Sara Bartholomae Launder, is remarried and contesting her late husband's will, although she is already a millionairess.

Carmen Bartholomae, widowed by the death of Charles Bartholomae, William's younger brother, also is suing for her share—and that of her son, Carlos—of the Bartholomae fortune. Her half-sister, Manola, who inflicted the fatal wounds in Bartholomae's abdomen, has married in rural Spain, ending a spinsterhood of poverty, pain and despair.

WILLIAM AND Charles Batholomae are dead. The women with whom they surrounded themselves are very much alive. Two of them are waging battle in the courts for fortunes; two of them are seeking solitude and a chance to live their own lives. But their fates were bound together when the elder Bartholomae lay dying on the floor of his Newport Beach mansion January 5, 1964.

His brother's wife, Carmen, was unconscious on the floor nearby. Above Bartholomae's body stood Manola, who had fatally wounded the millionaire whom she thought had been threatening her sister.

Dark-eyed Carmen, William's sister-in-law, was imprisoned after the slaying, then released. Manola, now 33, communicating via translators, admitted struggling with Bartholomae, and was also imprisoned, charged with his death. She was subsequently acquitted on a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

SARAJANE LATER was named inheritor of half her father's estate which was estimated at $7 million.

Her mother, Sara, 52, already awarded $4.25 million, the second largest settlement ever granted a divorcee in a California court, was not mentioned in the will. Her lawsuit seeks any hitherto unreported community property.

Carmen, 27, a widow since her husband Charles died Nov. 22, 1964, of a heart attack, now lives a day-to-day existence financed by her Hollywood attorney, Paul Caruso. She awaits court hearings on claims to Charles' estate—27% of what remains after Sarajane's allotment.

Under edict of court appointed trustees of the William Bartholomae estate, no money can be alloted from the estate until all claims have been settled or withdrawn.

Thus, Carmen cannot receive any subsistence for herself and her young son Carlos with whom she lives in seclusion in Garden Grove.

"All this is nothing new to me," said Carmen. "I was born poor and I'm used to working hard. . . . It worries me not to be able to pay my bills, but what can I do? It is more important that I stay home and take care of my baby—besides I couldn't make enough to realize any profit after I paid a baby sitter."

FOR CARMEN'S sister Manola, February 1966 marked the beginning of a new life: she and her longtime sweetheart were married in a church ceremony near the family home in Malaga, Spain.

The new life for Manola is but a continuation of plans which were interrupted when she came to California a little more than two years ago to help Carmen after the birth of young Carlos. The experience of that morning in the kitchen and the subsequent lie detector tests and trial came to an end with her acquittal. She returned to her former job in a cotton factory in Malaga.

Sara's honeymoon began in early January of this year, and almost immediately was stalled in Acapulco harbor aboard the Bartholomae yacht, Sea Diamond. She and her new husband, Whittier manufacturer Ernest Launder, were delayed over a hassle with port authorities who claimed they illegally entered the ports of Manzanilla and Puerto Vallarta. The delay halted the cruise which left Newport Harbor Jan. 4, and which occasionally produced rumors of something less than total bliss aboard the $300,000 yacht.

SARAJANE, a part-time student at Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa, now lives the life of a beautiful recluse — much sought, seldom found. Her former frequent appearances as queen of this or that city or festival have been strictly curtailed and she now appears, only on specific requests, as Miss Newport Beach. Although her father's Newport Beach mansion will probably be hers when the estate is settled, she cannot occupy it until then. She shares an apartment with a cousin — and an unlisted phone number.

"You can't blame her," her attorney explains. "She's a lovely, personable, very rich girl, and she has been besieged with demands on her time, and investment advice. She would just like to be left alone to lead what she considers to be a normal life—some college, some friends, some fun, some privacy."

While trustees of the Bartholomae millions ponder dispersal of the estate, Bartholomae's sister-in-law Carmen has resigned herself to the waiting game. Her late husband Charles' estate, estimated at $600,000, is bound by terms of his brother's will which is being contested by Willard D. Miller of Oakland, a son of his first wife, and by Sara, his second wife.

CHARLES' HOSPITAL and funeral bills remain unpaid. "I haven't even been able to pay for the headstone on my husband's grave, but I will, someday," Carmen declares.

She and Carlos share their apartment with her late husband's nurse, and she depends entirely on monthly checks from attorney Caruso, who is also co-executor of Charles' estate.

"If the court settlement does not work out in maybe three years I will have to go to work. I would work now except for Carlos—he is so little and he has been sick," she says.

After the three years when she and her husband Charles ran William's $600,000 mansion and hosted his lavish parties, her present life is stark contrast. "In those days we had many friends," she remembers. "That's the way I guess when people have so much money—they have a lot of people who seem to be friends, but they drift away when there's no more money."

FOR CARMEN, mere subsistence is not new. She remembers her early years working as a fish wrapper, then touring Europe with her own dance troupe at 14, marriage at 18, and continuing to work as singer and dancer right up until the time of Carlos' impending birth. "La Malaguena" was her professional name, and her night club and auditorium shows included programs at Wilshire Ebell, in San Francisco, New York, Mexico City and 2½ years at El Matador in Los Angeles.

One more snarl in the tangled skein of legal actions which lie in the path of any quick allocation of the Bartholomae fortune is the most recent suit filed by attorneys for Charles Bartholomae's daughter by his first marriage. Mrs. Cita Arena, 28, of Lido Isle is seeking to break her father's will on the allegation that he was not in sound mental state when he cut her off with $1 in the Jan. 29, 1964 document. A prior will drawn up Aug. 2, 1963, indicated that she was to receive a third of his estate—an estimated $200,000.

MRS. ARENA'S attorney filed a second suit late last month charging that an agreement existed between the two Bartholomae brothers on a generous inheritance to be earmarked for Charles' daughter, and that Charles broke that agreement when he made out the second will less than a month after his brother died. The suit cites the first will as proof of the agreement.

Untangling the whole snarl of claims and counterclaims on both estates may take as long as five years, attorneys estimate.

The first round in the effort to settle the Charles Bartholomae estate is scheduled for April 8 in Orange County Superior Court. A hearing date on Mrs. Arena's first suit to break her father's will is to be set at that time and will probably be scheduled within 60 days.

WILLIAM Bartholomae's fortune began in oil. It was extended through ranching, real estate, gold mines. He made a fetish of cleanliness and had a passion for yachts. By reputation, he was an irascible, ruthless perfectionist who demanded much of his employes.

But the Bartholomae men are dead. The Bartholomae women either are contesting in the legal arena, or struggling for peace in seclusion. Bartholomae's shadow, large and lasting as is his fortune, remains a thing of substance. It is still a force in the lives of at least four women.

CRACKING at the State Highway Dept. is a popular pastime these days but don't tell me these people are indifferent to suggestions and requests from the public. On my own and behalf of other citizens I've come up with plenty of them, and have always gotten a courteous hearing and, on occasion, some action.

Case in point is the matter of an odd condition on the collector (approach) road between Imperial and Century Blvd. on the San Diego Freeway involving a Long Beach sign. It's a route generally used when driving from International Airport to L.B.

On the suggestion of readers, I wrote the highway dept. a while back pointing out that persons driving south on the collector road see a Long Beach sign right ahead of them which isn't on the collector road—it's on the main freeway. At night or in the rain an LB bound driver has a tendency to follow toward the overhead sign and run into the raised divider between the collector road and the freeway. This sounds complicated but maybe you'll understand it.

As a result of the note from here, the highway people are putting in additional reflectorized guide markers to delineate the collector road more positively. They've planted oleanders in the dividing area that will soon grow up tall enough to obscure the overhead sign from people who shouldn't see it.

It wasn't the world's biggest problem—but the response of the hwy. people is significant.

EVERYBODY'S looking for a good tip, on the horses or something, and it was interesting to watch the audience at the F and M bank forum the other eve when a stock analyst tossed out the names of a few stocks he likes.

A lot of pens and paper came out of pockets when New York Analyst Sid Lurie gave his list. I don't want BC readers to miss out on anything, and for what it's worth, here it is:

Remember, it's just a list that one man in the business likes. No wise man invests anything without investigating and satisfying himself about its merits.

EVER notice this common mistake made by people assigned to lead the Pledge to the Flag?

They say, "Repeat after me" when they mean "repeat with me."

It can be done, but hardly anybody any more gives the Pledge phrase-by-phrase with the audience repeating each phrase. I think it's done that way in some lodge rituals.

PERHAPS there's an indication of one reason for the poor turnout for last week's poverty election in what happened in a south county district heavily populated by Mexican-Americans.

There's a "Teen Post" in this area, staffed by two capable and conscientious women, who were expected to help spread information on the election.

At 3 p.m. on the day before the election a huge quantity of information material was dumped on them. These printed items had to be folded and there was nobody either to do that or to carry them out over the community. Moreover, everything was printed in English, whereas many of the older people of the community who might be interested speak and read only Spanish.

The two women were overwhelmed but did the best they could. But it was obvious that in this particular area, at least, the information activity on the election was badly bungled.

REMEMBER when there was a board walk extending on a level with Pine Ave. to the old auditorium on a pier? The Salvation Army played below the walk and tourists would stand above, throwing silver dollars on a bass drum after the concert and shouting the names of their states as the dollars hit the drum.—Al Fingado.

Note—I'd guess Al's memory on that is pinpointed to about 1913.

Smog Seen as Peril to World

ANYONE who needs a few extra worries can join Dr. Frederick Sargent II, of the University of Illinois, who fears that smog may envelop the world, making life impossible.

He told a meeting of the American Medical Association in Los Angeles that the capacity of the atmosphere to renew its oxygen is limited. Renewal takes place through photosynthesis of green leaves.

He envisions billions of Asiatics rushing about in autos to outdo America in smog. As populations, autos and industries increase, smog will spread and spread.

Without at all underestimating the evil of air pollution in metropolises, we feel the dire prophecy is based on the unrealistic assumption that history will continue to follow present trends for centuries. This is most unlikely.

First, the population explosion may end, perhaps sooner than most people think. Birth control may become a worldwide custom. Or man's ancient enemies — war and plague — may drastically reduce populations.

The age of petroleum is approaching its end, believe many observers. The individual motor car is wasteful transportation, and the problems it brings, including smog, can become too great for tolerance. Also, fossil fuel will become exhausted, forcing the price so high few can afford it.

Man is still uncommon on this earth. The forests that cover Brazil, Africa and much of Canada and Siberia are busily releasing oxygen. Ships are still rarities on the vast expanses of ocean.

Nature has a way of correcting its excesses. If men and their machines become too numerous and destructive, they will suffer and the wilderness will return. It has happened many times in history.

Communist Dialectic Shows Flaws

THE HEART of Communist philosophy is "historical dialectic."

It is a complex doctrine, but stated all too simply it is this: Every social action brings a reaction which finally merges characteristics of the two forces into a new force.

For example, the struggle of common people with the aristocracy caused the emergence of the middle class.

The middle class in turn became involved in a struggle with the working class. This, say the orthodox Reds, is the way communism came into being.

Strangely, here the argument ends. The Communist state, say the true believers, is monolithic, one stone. It has no class struggle because there are no classes. All its efforts can be devoted to expansion and self-improvement.

Events do not appear to bear out the idea. Kwame Nkrumah, the Marxist dictator of Ghana, has been toppled from power by an anti-Communist coup d'etat. Not long ago the Indonesian army killed many thousands of Communists in a ferocious blood bath.

Even in the nations where communism is established there are signs that the dialectic is still at work. Russia from time to time makes strange capitalistic sounds, and there are rumors of mounting ideological tensions. The Satellites are Communists because they have to be. Given half a chance, things would change.

It won't work. The monolithic society is incompatible with human nature. Even in the most loving family there is always action and reaction resulting in change.

Many more anti-Communist revolutions are likely in the years ahead.

Just How Much 'Truth' Is True?

Editor's Note—Today it is called "the credibility gap," but lack of candor in government is nothing new. In recent times Eisenhower was impaled on the U-2, Kennedy on the Bay of Pigs. Now Johnson wrestles with worldwide intrigues and the question is: How much "truth" is true?

By SAUL PETT

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a town of passing prose favoritees, this year's phrase in Washington so far is the "credibility gap" in government.

Quetion: Does it in fact exist? Answer: It does, or seems to, and seeming to, it exists. Among governments foreign and domestic, is this new in history? No. New or old, at what point is it dangerous for a democratic government to tell less or more than the truth, to squeeze it, sculpt it or withhold it? That is the question no one seems able to answer; every attempt is like nailing jello to the wa...

Here, one is led into a never-never land where morality and necessity clash; where cold wars are more complicated than hot wars and shooting wars are undeclared; where hard-headed men of the world disagree with Boy Scouts who never had to meet a payroll; where the people's right to know is balanced, precariously, with the "people's right not to know"; where diplomacy and political maneuver, like film, can curl up and die from exposure, where the end, always the end, it is hoped, justifies the means.

The moral dilemmas may obscure the point of danger but not the ultimate danger itself. In his book, "Freedom or Secrecy," J. Russell Wiggins, editor of the Washington Post, posed it:

"If a government repeatedly resorts to lies in crises where lies seem to serve its interests best, it will one day be unable to employ the truth effectively when truth would serve its interests best. A government that too readily rationalizes its right to lie in a crisis will never lack for either lies or crises."

THERE HAVE been lies.

In 1960, the government of Dwight D. Eisenhower lied about the U-2 plane shot down over Russia.

In 1961, through its ambassador at the United Nations, the government of John F. Kennedy lied about the Bay of Pigs invasion.

In each case, the deception was exposed in a moment of profound national pain. But in neither did the President nor his administration continue to suffer from a lingering doubt about its word.

The administration of Lyndon B. Johnson has had no single moment as traumatic as the U-2 incident or the Bay of Pigs. It has not been obliged to make public confession of attempted deception. And yet there lingers over Washington today a cloud of doubt — large and gray in the minds of some, small and off-white in the minds of others.

The symptoms are various. In a poll taken late last year by the Opinion Research Corp. for the Columbia Broadcasting System, one of the questions concerned the truthfulness of official U.S. announcements of American casualties and other Vietnamese war information. Of those polled, 67% believed it was "sometimes" truthful; 15%, "always" truthful, and 13% "almost never" truthful.

Last December U.N. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg spoke of a "crisis of confidence" in explaining why Washington disclosed its position on the reputed second peace feeler from Hanoi. Goldberg denied the crisis was justified but did say, "We have a great problem maintaining our credibility with our own people."

Many observers detected another symptom in the spectacular peace offensive launched early in December by the administration with an undiplomatic blaze of pyrotechnics. Few here doubt the first purpose of that effort: Peace in Viet Nam. But the intensive, worldwide effort to convince friend and foe and neutral alike of the United States' sincerity, in which this country seemed to be begging to be believed, reflected an unofficial uneasiness about its reputation for meaning what it says.

Series of Small, Large Incidents

Last February U.N. Secretary General U Thant, in a rare display of undiplomatic language, said there had been a peace feeler from Hanoi and that the American people were not getting all the facts. The White House insisted there were "no meaningful proposals" then before the government. The word "meaningful" was lost. The impression grew that there had been no feelings at all.

Then in November came the magazine article by Eric Sevareid in which he said that during the 1964 presidential campaign U Thant told Adlai Stevenson he had obtained Hanoi's agreement to meet with an American representative in Rangoon. Had there been such a proposal? "Yes," the State Department now said, on Nov. 15. Officials today still insist the offer was "too nebulous" to take seriously. Clearly U Thant disagreed. In any case, was it too nebulous to admit at the time?

Last Aug. 31, the prime minister of Singapore, Lee Kuan Yew, claimed a CIA agent had offered him a $3.3 million bribe five years before. The State Department denied the charge. Then Lee produced a letter from Secretary of State Dean Rusk apologizing for the incident. Then the State Department admitted it. Then and now, the State Department insists the denial was a result of bureaucratic error, that the man issuing the denial hadn't known the facts. Possible? Possible.

LAST SPRING, the government announced that U.S. forces were landing in the Dominican republic to protect "thousands" of Americans and others imperilled by the uprising there. Later, as the U.S. force grew greatly, there was another official reason given for the intervention: To prevent a Communist takeover. Describing the dangers, President Johnson told a news conference June 17 that "some 1,500 innocent people were murdered and shot and their heads cut off."

The government explanations were greeted with rising skepticism. Among others, Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, which heard secret testimony on the subject, flailed the administration for a "lack of candor." He said it had used exaggerated reports of atrocities and the extent of Communist control, had relied on "faulty advice . . . inadequate . . . or false information."

In October, 1963, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara predicted that the bulk of American military forces (then mostly "advisers") would be out of Viet Nam by the end of 1965. Early in the spring of 1965, he predicted that neither U.S. combat troops nor more money would be needed in Viet Nam. Late in 1965, after his last trip to Viet Nam, the secretary said "We have stopped losing the war." And at least one Pentagon reporter

EDITOR:

A bond and tax override election seems to bring out a great deal of interest in education from groups that heretofore had, as it would seem, only a dormant interest. The teachers of the Paramount Unified School District for years have been aware of the mounting financial problems in the district. They have been asking for average materials and monies (and) . . . have seen the growing need for services, classrooms and maintenance.

A few years ago the Teachers Association turned down a small salary increase in favor of teaching a better educational day. The association hired an independent research group to study the financial condition of Paramount. In the report it was stated that the district was in dire need of additional funds and was spending the money we had for education wisely. This was a blow to the association, for we were sure there were hidden funds we could use, or a gross misuse of funds. The dream was over and reality was here to stay. During this time we were frozen on our salary schedule.

When we saw that other comparable unified districts were being paid up to $1,000 more year after year it became apparent that those of us that stayed in the district would be subsidizing the educational program with more dollars than our entire tax bill. This year the teachers asked the Board of Education to look into the possibility of providing more money through an election.

Paramount now has the highest elementary class ratio of all Los Angeles County Unified School Districts. For the past few years it has been necessary to keep adding students to the classes. This is one way money can be saved. When it comes time to reduce high class loads by only one student, it will take eleven classrooms and eleven additional teachers. The cost will be roughly $350,000.

It seems strange that some people in industry are opposed to the idea of appropriating sufficient money for education. One of the reasons we find a great deal of industry in California today is because of the large number of well educated people in the area. This is their strength today.

We have asked for a bare minimum amount in this election. If this plea fails because of short sightedness, it is almost a certainty that we will ask again next for the same amount, or more.

GENE W. MYERS
Teachers Association

(Editor's Note: The Paramount Unified School district will hold an election next Tuesday, March 8, on the question of whether to authorize a tax override of $1 per hundred of assessed valuation for operation of the school system and whether to approve a $5 million bond issue for school construction. Present tax rate is $5.49. There are close to 10,000 students in the district.)

THOUGHTS

THE HIGHEST use of capital is not to make more money, but to make money do more for the betterment of life—Henry Ford, industrialist.

DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — How reluctant the U.N. Security Council is to handle the Viet Nam war was illustrated by a backstage attempt by the Japanese ambassador to revive the discussion.

Just before he left for London, Ambassador Arthur Goldberg reported this to the President. He said that Ambassador Akira Matsui, with Goldberg's blessing, had circulated a statement to the 10 nonpermanent Security Council members asking them to endorse a peace effort. All he could get was four signatures—the Dutch, Jordan, New Zealand and, of course, the Japanese.

BEHIND THE RELUCTANCE of other council members to take up President Johnson on his offer of U.N. negotiation, arbitration or anything else on Viet Nam are two chief factors:

One is the absence of China from the United Nations. Many members believe it is both unfair and impractical to try to negotiate when China can make political hay out of the fact that the United States has long barred her from U.N. membership.

President Johnson, of course, has made it clear that China would be welcomed in New York for the purpose of Viet Nam talks. This important concession is generally ignored in the backstage U.N. discussion.

Second factor is Soviet Russia's negative attitude. Moscow has made it clear that it would veto Viet Nam peace talks because North Viet Nam is not a member of the U.N.

Various member nations are reluctant to put the Russians on the spot publicly as against a move toward peace.

The President has continued to give Ambassador Goldberg a free hand in New York. Some State Department officials seem not displeased that Arthur has reached an impasse. They regard him as not all kosher when it comes to diplomacy.

However, the indefatigable former labor negotiator, who has hammered out many a wage contract between the United Steelworkers and the U.S. Steel Co., is still plugging away for peace. He has a couple of moves up his sleeve which he intends to bring out after March 29, when the big Russian-Chinese showdown takes place in Moscow.

Alarming reports have come out of Hong Kong that Chinese and Vietnamese refugees are disillusioned over life in the free West and are slipping back behind the Bamboo Curtain to Communist China and North Viet Nam.

This could be a serious blow to the West.

Chinese refugees in Hong Kong complain that though they were forced to work in a Communist state, this was better than not working at all.

As refugees in Hong Kong, they have been forced to sit around idle. In addition, they complain that food is difficult to get in Hong Kong and that their children can't get into Hong Kong schools. At least in Red China their children could learn to read and write—even though in Communist schools.

In South Viet Nam refugees also say they dont have enough aid to live on or a chance to get jobs and a new start in life. What money they are supposed to receive is pocketed by corrupt officials. So they are beginning to drift back to the Viet Cong.

Sen. John Sparkman, the Alabama war horse who ran for Vice President on the Adlai Stevenson ticket and has seen over a quarter of a century of service in Congress, now seems almost certain to remain in Washington.

Up until the time George Wallace decided to run his wife for governor and until the filing date closed March 1, it looked as if John might be in for a battle.

However, only two relatively unknown candidates got into the race against Sparkman, one of them being an old family friend, Mrs. Margaret Stewart, who confides that she filed just to get her name known around the state.

Of course Sparkman faces some Republican opposition in November. Hitherto, the November election hasn't amounted to a hill of beans in Alabama. It was the Democratic primary that counted. But in the last election Republicans capitalized on Gov. Wallace's bolt to Goldwater and elected five congressmen.

THIS TIME it will be the Wallace family which will suffer from Republican opposition, because glib, pleasant Jim Martin, a powerful vote-getter and one of the GOP congressmen elected in 1964, will oppose them for governor.

Sen. Sparkman says he hopes the Republicans will put up candidates for every top office. "It will be good for the state," he says. "They talk about the two-party system. Now let's see them carry it out."

Credibility Gap--Problem for Government, People

was heard to grumble, "When did he ever say we were losing it?"

Any man can guess wrong, but wrong guesses from McNamara would seem as startling as profanity from an archbishop. McNamara, in this case, is the victim of his own public image—the man with the computer mind into which he feeds only facts, not wishful thinking. And always it is remembered that it was from McNamara's Pentagon that Assistant Secretary Arthur Sylvester once rode forth to proclaim the government's right to lie in emergencies.

Those who know McNamara insist that his predictions were honest, correct as of the moment, wrong as of later. How could he know the Communists would attack American vessels in the Tonkin Gulf, which led to the U.S. escalation. Still other students of the McNamara mind point out that he is a psychological warrior, that all his public utterances are carefully calculated for effect. Thus, the 1963 prediction may have been made in an effort to get the Diem government off the seat of its pants and do more itself in the war.

The Question Goes Round and Round

Among war reporters in Viet Nam, the question is often asked, is the government levelling with us on enemy and American casualties? The government insists it is. How, asks the reporter, can you call our losses "light" when a whole company was wiped out? You can, says the government, when a battalion was involved. But was a battalion involved? asks the reporter. The question goes round and round.

Jim Hagerty has been on both sides of the fence as press secretary for President Eisenhower and now a television news executive.

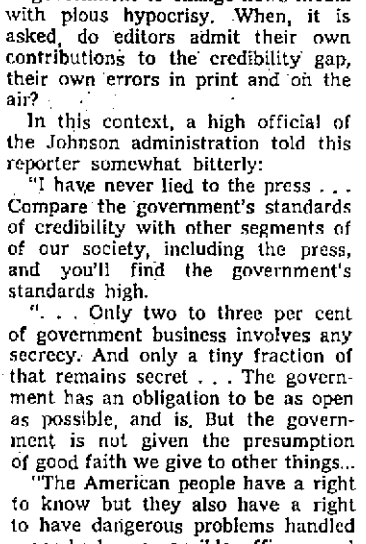
"Are reporters getting the truth in Viet Nam?" he asks. "I don't know. Probably we're not getting the whole story. But should we? I kind of think it's legitimate for a government not to tell the whole story. But then I am forced to remember how White House reporters used to scream at me for more information and sometimes they turned out to be right."

In the eternal war between government and reporters, between the keepers and the seekers of the facts, there is a disposition on the highest levels of government to change news media with pious hypocrisy. When, it is asked, do editors admit their own contributions to the credibility gap, their own errors in print and on the air?

In this context, a high official of the Johnson administration told this reporter somewhat bitterly:

"I have never lied to the press . . . Compare the government's standards of credibility with other segments of of our society, including the press, and you'll find the government's standards high.

". . . Only two to three per cent of government business involves any secrecy. And only a tiny fraction of that remains secret . . . The government has an obligation to be as open as possible, and is. But the government is not given the presumption of good faith we give to other things...



"The American people have a right to know but they also have a right to have dangerous problems handled properly by responsible officers and not by the press. Nobody elected them . . ."

The view from the government foxholes also includes a sensation of contradictory assault. On one hand, it was criticized for saying too little about the first alleged Hanoi peace feeler. On the other, it was criticized for talking too much about the second feeler, one relayed by Italian officials.

In the latter case, the story was broken by a reporter who said Washington had rejected that peace overture. This was not true. "We could not say nothing or make a 'no comment'," said a State Department official. "To do so would have made it appear that we were rejecting the offer. We hadn't."

The Ultimate Agony of Viet Nam Problem

Transcending the battle of press and government in the arena of credibility is the ultimate agony of the Viet Nam problem itself. A war difficult to understand is easy to misunderstand. Ambiguity breeds dissent

ROBERT McNAMARA
A Wrong Guess?

LYNDON B. JOHNSON

The war in Viet Nam has no battle lines, no chartable progress, no easily seen goals. The United States is not fighting the real villains, we are told, but their proxies—the Viet Cong for Hanoi, Hanoi for Red China, with Russia a questionable stockholder. We are not fighting all because we dare not, it is said, risk a large war. We are fighting them on the ground but we dare not risk commitment to a ground war in Asia. We advise, we escalate, we bomb, we pause, we seem to beg the world, anybody, to get us out and to the conference table, we bomb again. We ask the United Nations to do something while we firm up our commitment to Saigon with a hastily called conference in Hawaii.

The complexities of the cold war almost defy understanding, if not hope.

"Old tyrants depart," a sad Harry Truman noted recently. "New ones take their places. Old differences are composed, new differences arise. Old allies become the foe. The recent enemy becomes the friend. It's all very baffling and trying."

"There were hawks and doves arguing loudly in 1941," recalls a State Department official. "But then came Pearl Harbor and we were in it and the arguments stopped. In a declared war, there is less questioning of ourselves.

"NOW WE are in a gray world, fighting dirty little wars without a declaration of war, where the enemy is not a uniformed army, where there is no wartime censorship and none of the regimentation we customarily accept in war. And while we fight, Detroit sells nine million cars to add to the unreality."

And always there is the big bomb to complicate the complications, to quicken the doves and slow the hawks.

"The last three Presidents of the United States," it is pointed out on a penultimate level of government, "have had to think of a full nuclear exchange as a real possibility. Thus, neither President Johnson nor Secretary Rusk ever blasts the other side by name. They have avoided creating a war psychology because it would be too dangerous in the nuclear age. Thus, the dissenters are left more room to create a psychology in the other direction."

Henry Steele Commager is disturbed, he says, by the "increased trend" in Washington to disguise the truth.

"It is due to the heavy role of the military. Countries confronted with military problems act this way. They justify it in terms of national security. I don't think it's justified now. The habits of deception carry the dangers of self-deception; you can begin to believe your own propaganda."

Samuel Eliot Morison is less disturbed. "I think in war or at a time of delicate negotiations you can't hold a government to admit everything. There is no more of a trend now than there has ever been but in recent years events have come so fast and thick there seems to be more of it."

"We are constantly torn between our notions of democracy and what the world today demands," says Henry Grass, Columbia University historian. "But most successful governments maintain some mystery."

Plenty of Example in American History

As it is with all nations, American history abounds not only in examples of official secrecy but also contradictions between government postures and government acts, between the promises of candidates and their deeds after election, between the "inside" attitudes of government and the public positions taken under political pressure.

Thomas Jefferson as a candidate opposed creation of a national bank, and supported it as President. During the Texas revolution against Mexico, the U.S. government pretended to be neutral but wasn't.

In 1939 Franklin Roosevelt, the President, at the start of World War II, said America would be "neutral in fact, if not in spirit," and we the country was neither. In 1952, the Eisenhower administration came in with much talk of "massive retaliation" and the "unleashing" of Kai-shek, and delivered neither.

In all these examples in history, the reader takes his choice, between a suspicion of deliberate deceit or a more gentle consideration, that events can make a lie of the best of promises.

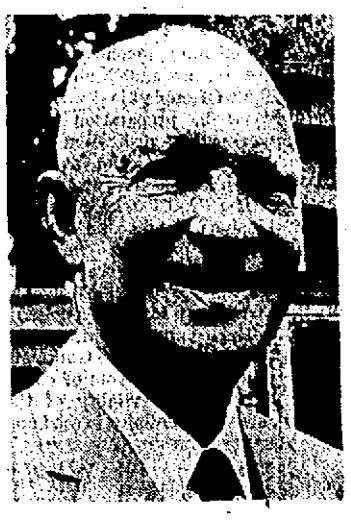
THERE IS in Washington today a man of great experience in government and the world, who has been high in the inner councils of several administrations. He no longer holds office and, in semi-retirement, enjoys a relaxed urbanity about recent world history. All the talk of double-talk in Washington, from the U-2 incident onward, fills him with an amused sense of irony.



"For a people with a supposed sense of humor," he says, "we Americans are so ponderous. In diplomacy and government there are various grades of the truth as there are in private life. When a hostess we detest invites us to dinner, we don't tell the truth. We say, 'Oh, darling, I'm simply devastated but we're tied up.' This makes for grease in our social relationships.

"In foreign affairs we use the same gentle forms of deception, which deceives no one but gets no one mad.

"Where spies are involved, we must decide in advance how we will behave in all contingencies . . . It was ridiculous for Eisenhower to deny that that U-2 plane over Russia was engaged in espionage and then admit it was. In my time, we had planes that strayed off course. We never admitted anything else or used cover stories.

"The government did not lie about its Dominican intervention. But I think there is a grave danger of the government talking too much. It was a confused situation which suddenly became worse . . . The government should have said nothing until it had the situation under control and then issued a white paper . . .

"No, I don't think our relations with Latin America, in government and business, tell me privately they thanked God we intervened. They had to complain publicly or be crucified at home. But they don't believe it for a moment. It was all window dressing."

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

JOHN F. KENNEDY
Their Administrations Were Caught

Lyndon Johnson Proud of Window Dressing

Among students of the Lyndon Johnson school of window dressing, there are those who detect a tendency to be passionately secretive above innocuous details, to become righteously indignant when transparent political motives are suggested.

Before his death, it is said, President Kennedy had committed himself to a budget under $100 billion and the work in that direction was already well advanced when President Johnson was sworn in. Then Washington began to hear about the monumental difficulties involved in keeping the budget under $100 billion.

"The most wonderfully dramatic, superbly audible groans and moans began to be heard from the White House," wrote columnist Joseph Alsop. "They were the battle sounds of a conservative Hercules, fighting the hundred-headed Hydra of left-wing extravagance. Bulletins were issued from time to time to a breathless nation, suggesting that Hydra had Hercules cornered . . .

"Finally, a budget below $100 billion was breathlessly unveiled, as an astonishing triumph of hard work and fiscal responsibility—and naturally in a White House all but deprived of electric light, in order to dramatize the President's penny-pinching principles . . . The flim-flam got results . . . (it) persuaded businessmen that President Johnson was a sound fellow, with his heart in the right place."

AMONG OTHERS, Alsop suspected elaborate stage management in the intensive series of White House conferences last summer that preceded announcement of escalation in Viet Nam.

Lyndon Johnson has been known to have an acute sense of secrecy dating back to his Senate days. An old friend and aide once tried to explain it: "I think it's the gambler or politician in him. He just doesn't like to reveal his next move. He plays things close to the vest."

Thus, there have been occasions when neither the press covering him nor the Secret Service protecting him nor the crew flying him knew precisely where the President was going until they were airborne.

Thus, occasional confusion and incredulity. James Deakin, White House reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, wrote in the New Republic:

"On July 27, at an impromptu press conference in his office, the President said he had not begun to consider an appointment to the Supreme Court to replace Justice Goldberg. The next day he announced the appointment of Abe Fortas as Goldberg's successor. Why mislead when you don't have to? Whatever happened to 'no comment'?"

On Jan. 22, 1965, two days after the inauguration, reporters asked White House Press Secretary George Reedy whether the President had made a disability agreement with Vice President Humphrey. "No," said Reedy. ". . . We just haven't gotten to that yet."

Later that month, when the President went to the hospital with a cold, reporters again asked about the disability agreement. Reedy answered two days later: Johnson and Humphrey had made the agreement "sometime before the inauguration."

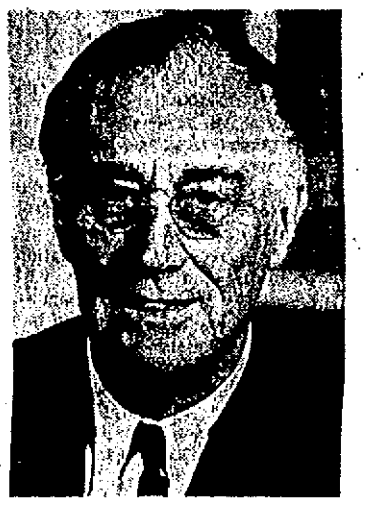
Plenty of Tools for Image-Making

The tools for image-making, a common phenomenon in America, are prodigious in the presidency. He controls the vast machinery of the executive branch and its hundreds of press agents. He can, by the timings of his announcements, achieve maximum effect favorable to him and unfavorable to his opposition. Headlines and TV cameras follow a President everywhere.

Thus, there was nothing un-American in the suggestion that perhaps one of the reasons Johnson hurried to Honolulu for a conference about Viet Nam was to take the play away from a Senate inquiry into his Viet Nam policy.

Under Lyndon Johnson, the White House controls the vast flow of official information from the countless mimeographs of the executive branch.

The President is almost never lacking in announcements. On the last Labor Day weekend, which he spent at his ranch in Texas, there were 42 news releases in four days from the "Pedernales press service."



Finally, no study of government credibility is complete without considering the question of "freedom of information." Periodically, over many years and administrations, reporters and editors have complained fiercely of undue official secrecy under which bureaucratic error or worse might have been hidden under the veil of "national security."

TEN YEARS ago a committee was set up in the House, chaired by Rep. John E. Moss, a California Democrat, to investigate such complaints. It found many, ranging from official reluctance to divulge details on government contracts (where there was no competitive bidding) to the Pentagon's insistence that the Pentagon telephone book was classified, as was the work of the Lincoln Centennial Committee.

The Moss committee, Democratic-controlled, brought many improvements. It appears to have been busiest during the Republican administration of Dwight Eisenhower. It is considerably less busy during the Democratic administration of Lyndon Johnson. Why?

"On the basis of complaints we receive," said Moss, "this administration has a reputation for an almost perfect score in not abusing the handling or withholding of information. We get fewer complaints now. If anyone feels I'm playing politics, let him bring in a complaint."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT
'Tongue in Cheek'

But then there is Sam Archibald, staff director of the committee, who told this reporter: "Yes, there have been improvements. But it is also a fact of life that Democrats are less inclined to clobber a Democratic President."

Sam Archibald, an appointee who can be fired by the committee, authorized the use of his name behind that quote. Either he has a private income or he must be one of the bravest men in this town, where anonymity is fearless and truth a sometime mystery of mirrors.

L. A. C. SAYS

Good Old Days and This April 15th

A LOT OF people are going to be jarred when they find they will owe Uncle Sam money on April 15 for their 1965 income tax. The 14% deducted from their paychecks may not cover the tax owed—as has the withholding tax in most past years. This when added to the increased Social Security and Medicare deductions is quite a shock to millions of taxpayers. But it is probable 1966 will end up as even a greater shocker.

THE YOUNGER people might be interested to know how this income tax system has developed. They may get an idea of what part government spending has done to contribute to inflation. They are receiving annual incomes now several times those enjoyed during the early days of the income tax. But the percentage of incomes taken in taxes is far ahead of income increases—and the dollar purchasing power is worth about 20 cents compared with what it was in 1913.

When the income tax was made lawful in 1913 an income of $3,000 a year was in the upper one-third of all incomes. The family deduction was $1,200 for each dependent compared with $600 today. After that the tax was 1% on the lower income compared with 14% today. On the larger income it ran as high as 6% compared with 77% today. If your income was $20,000 in 1913 the tax to Uncle Sam was a staggering $160. The million-dollar income paid $59,770—today it would be 10 or more times as much.

THE RECENT election to place seven Los Angeles County poverty members on the poverty agency board sets a limit of $4,000 family income for such members or voters. Only 25 years ago that amount of income was in the top one-fourth of all incomes. Today it is considered "poverty." The reason is that inflation has eaten away the buying power of the dollar. It would take more than $10,000 a year to equal what $4,000 would buy in 1940.

Another example of how things have changed is the Great Society Rent Subsidy Plan. It calls for the government to pay the part of a family's rent that exceeds 25% of its income. This is supposed to apply to families with $4,500 or less income a year. But it has been estimated this will be greatly increased when the agencies decide higher incomes should be covered when they have more children or other obligations.

INCOMES HAVE increased faster than inflation has devalued the dollar. For this reason workers today are not greatly concerned over what has happened to the buying power of dollars. But the older people who are trying to live on present dollars received from Social Security or savings they have accumulated, feel it. Anyone who compares the past with present must realize what inflation means. Ours has been mild compared with what has happened in other countries. But it has been steady and has accumulated during wars, depressions and the present great prosperity. But that does not mean we are immune to a real devastating inflation followed by depression. As long as government inflates the economy by higher spending and deficits the erosion of the dollar will continue. As April 15 approaches each of us might well think over how these taxes on incomes have increased.

The above figures apply to federal taxation and deficits. But when the Brown 1966-67 budget of over $4.6 billion is compared with the $2 billion when he took office eight years ago it is apparent the same inflationary spending is also his policy. It is evident that a more realistic approach must be had if we are to escape the contsant eroding of personal income. There is little hope for it under his—or his party—programs. It is evident that "it is time for a change."—L.A.C.

Capital Chatter

A MADISON, WIS., teacher recently asked her fifth-graders to write essays on why they should be quiet in school hallways. The response she got from one of them landed in the Congressional Record, thanks to Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson asked that the essay be printed in the record "for consideration by senators and others.

The fifth grader ticked off all the obvious reasons and ended by writing, "If you're a senator, O. K., but if you're not, be quiet in the halls."

Municipal Band Marks 57 Years

Long Beach's Municipal Band will celebrate its 57th anniversary today by going slightly formal — wearing new uniforms more restrained than the bright red regalia of recent years.

The 36 band members will don the newly purchased black evening-style trousers and gold jackets for a concert at 2 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium.

Guest soloist will be Don Ellis, trumpeter credited by critics with a distinguished performance with Stan Kenton's orchestra in the recent neophonic concert at the Los Angeles Music Hall.

By way of recalling the old days, Art Green also will be featured as soloist on an instrument more prominent in the early days of the century — the tuba. He is the band's regular tuba player.

* * * *

UNDER DIRECTION of Charles J. Payne, the band will also introduce new arrangements of Wagner's "Trauma" and San Miguel's "The Golden Ear," as well as a new suite, "California Kaleidoscope," by the Los Angeles composer, Les Taylor.

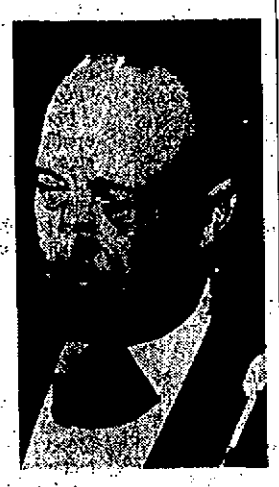
Actually the band's anniversary is March 14, exactly 57 years after it was organized under a new charter amendment authorizing tax funds for the city's pioneer cultural activity.

From its inception the band has enlisted many musicians with outstanding backgrounds in serious or popular music. Among its members are:

Joe Mariani, who played French horn with Victor Young on NBC at the age of 17 and more recently with Stan Kenton and Xavier Cugat.

Edward Foster, oboe and English horn, a veteran who played 11 years at the Metropolitan in New York, 10 years with the Pittsburgh Symphony and made records with the Paul Whiteman Orchestra.

Rudolph Schmitt, principal clarinetist with the San Francisco Symphony and Opera for 18 years and a former member of the Chicago Civic Opera Orchestra.



* * * *

WALTER THALIN, principal clarinetist for the Minneapolis Symphony as early as 1923 and also for 20 years with the Cleveland Symphony.

Gene Conklin, a utility man who plays clarinet, saxophone and flute, a former member of the Harry Owens Hawaiian Orchestra, and later with Fred Waring, Freddie Martin and Buddy Rogers.

Fred Divisek, tympani, accordion and xylophone, who played with the San Francisco Symphony, Chicago Opera and touring group supporting Victor Borge.

CHARLES J. PAYNE
Director of Band

Featured among the women members is Marty Auckerman, a trumpeter, formerly a soloist with the Women's Air Force Band. She also played in the Hormel 75-member all-girl orchestra which did two broadcasts a week over CBS.

Voter Drive Set Monday Night

I, P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The monthly "voter registration night" at nearly 100 public libraries throughout the county will be held Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

In most instances, the registration desks will be staffed by volunteers from the League of Women Voters, who have undergone training as deputy registrars.

The league is conducting a countywide campaign to register voters before the April 14 deadline for registration for the June primary election.

* * * *

AS PART of the campaign, all Los Angeles County Fire Department fire stations also are registering voters. On any day between the hours of 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. that firemen are not actually engaged in their basic fire fighting duties, citizens may register to vote at the county stations.

Libraries in the Long Beach area which will be registering voters Monday night are as follows:

Long Beach — Alamitos Branch, 1836 E. Third St.; Bach Branch, 4055 Bellflower Blvd.; Bay Shore Branch, 195 Bay Shore Ave.; Brewitt Branch, 4063 E. Anaheim St.; Burnett Branch, 560 E. Hill St.; Dana Branch, 3680 Atlantic Ave.; Bret Harte Branch, 1595 W. Willow St.; Los Altos Branch, 5614 Britton Drive, and North Long Beach Branch, 5571 Orange Ave.

Lakewood — Iacoboni County Library, 5100 Clark Ave.

La Mirada — La Mirada County Library, 15030 Luitweiler Ave.

Carson — Carson County Library, 22102 S. Main St.

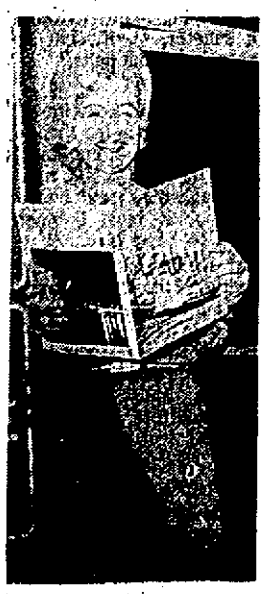
Torrance — Main Library, 1345 Post Ave.; North Torrance County Library, 3604 W. Artesia Blvd.; Isabel Henderson County Library, 4805 Emerald St.; El Retiro County Library, 126 Vista del Parque, and Walter County Library, 3815 W. 242nd St.

Collegians on 3 TV Shows

The Cerritos College Music Department will hold the spotlight on three 7 a.m. television programs Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The Scope program, KABC, features junior college activities throughout the Los Angeles County area, according to Harlan Stamm, dean of the extended day school at Cerritos.

On Wednesday, Jazz in Music Education" will be featured. The Cerritos Day Stage Band, under the direction of Jack Wheaton of Buena Park will present a brief history of jazz.

The second show, Thursday at 7 a.m. will feature the night stage band with Wheaton conducting, and the Cerritos Madrigal Singers with Stanley Porter of Los Alamitos, directing.



"How to Write and Record a Motion Picture Sound Track" is the topic of this show. The sound track from the full-length motion picture, "House on the Sand," was written, recorded and arranged by the Cerritos College Music Department.

The Cerritos Night Stage Band will be featured again in the final program Friday.

52-Page Brochure Describes L.B. Port

A new 52-page brochure, loaded with facts and full-color pictures of the Port of Long Beach, was made available this week by the Harbor Department.

The front section of "Harbor Highlights" is a pictorial guide intended to aid visitors taking the Sea-Lane Tour of the harbor, according to a Harbor Department spokesman.

$250,000 TEMPLE SINAI ADDITION

Dedication Slated for Expanded Synagogue

By LES RODNEY
Religious News Editor

Finishing touches will be put on expanded and redesigned Temple Sinai early this week in preparation for a weekend of dedication starting Friday night at Long Beach's pioneer synagogue.

The $250,000 addition (exclusive of land costs) has doubled the previous area of the 40-year-old Conservative Temple on the corner of Seventh Street and Molino Avenue.

The improvement, said Rabbi Sidney S. Guthman, represents "our vote of confidence in the vitality of the Jewish community in the Long Beach area, and the city itself. Our temple and its activities have become interwoven with the total life of the community in many ways through the years."

Rabbi Guthman, who has been at Temple Sinai seven years, is chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee for Community Improvement, and serves as a chaplain at the Veteran Administration Hospital.

* * * *

THE TEMPLE draws its membership of 1,000, he noted, not only from Long Beach but from Garden Grove, Westminster, Huntington Beach, Los Alamitos, Lakewood, Downey, San Pedro and Wilmington.

The approximately 9,000 square feet of construction adds an educational building with 12 classrooms, kitchen, nursery area, outdoor play space, bridal room, library, youth lounge, and administrative offices. The sanctuary and social hall have been enlarged and redesigned, as has the entire exterior.

During the construction period, Temple Sinai accepted invitations to use the school facilities of Los Altos United Church, at 5500 Atherton St., and Temple Israel, a Reform congregation also marking its 40th year.

The dedication weekend will begin Friday evening with the pulpit occupied by Rabbi Jacob Kohn, rabbi emeritus of Temple Sinai of Los Angeles, and dean of the Graduate School of University of Judaism.

* * * *

SATURDAY MORNING services, highlighted by a reunion of religious alumni, will be addressed by Rabbi Edward Tenebaum, executive director of the United Synagogue, Pacific Southwest Region.

Dr. David Lieber, president of the University of Judaism, will deliver the principal address at a festive community dedication program 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Mar. 19. Among those scheduled to participate in the ceremonies are Long Beach Mayor Edwin J. Wade; Commissioner Milton G. Gordon, representing Gov. Brown; Congressman Craig Hosmer, Supervisor Burton Chace, Assemblyman Joseph Kennick; David Feuer, representing the Jewish community of Long Beach; Rt. Rev. Msgr. James P. Lynch of near-by St. Mattews Church, and Rev. Murray McNeil of Los Altos United Church.

Blind Will Hear Far East Report

A former Los Angeles school teacher, who was blinded 16 years ago by acute glaucoma, will address a group of blind persons Tuesday night on a three-year study on the blind in the Far East.

Dr. Isabel L. D. Grant, who has studied the problems of blind persons in 43 countries, will address the newly formed Long Beach Chapter of the California Council of the Blind at 8 p.m. in the Ruth Back Library, Bellflower Boulevard and Carson Street.

The Council, which is the only organization of blind people, was organized in Fresno in 1934. The Long Beach chapter received its charter last October.

Dr. Grant is a graduate of the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, and received her Ph.D. from the University of Southern California. She also holds degrees from the University of Paris and the University of Madrid.

An accomplished linguist, Dr. Grant made a special study of Urdu, the language of Pakistan, in preparation for studies in the Far East as a Fullbright scholar. She spent two years in Pakistan.

The California Council of the Blind is an almost unique organization: to be a full-fledged member a person must be blind himself.

was heard to grumble, "When did he ever say we were losing it?"

Any man can guess wrong, but wrong guesses from McNamara would seem as startling as profanity from an archbishop. McNamara, in this case, is the victim of his own public image—the man with the computer mind into which he feeds only facts, not wishful thinking. And always it is remembered that it was from McNamara's Pentagon that Assistant Secretary Arthur Sylvester once rode forth to proclaim the government's right to lie in emergencies.

Those who know McNamara insist that his predictions were honest, correct as of the moment, wrong as of later. How could he know the Communists would attack American vessels in the Tonkin Gulf, which led to the U.S. escalation. Still other students of the McNamara mind point out that he is a psychological warrior, that all his public utterances are carefully calculated for effect. Thus, the 1963 prediction may have been made in an effort to get the Diem government off the seat of its pants and do more itself in the war.

The Question Goes Round and Round

Among war reporters in Viet Nam, the question is often asked, is the government levelling with us on enemy and American casualties? The government insists it is. How, asks the reporter, can you call our losses "light" when a whole company was wiped out? You can, says the government, when a battalion was involved. But was a battalion involved? asks the reporter. The question goes round and round.

Jim Hagerty has been on both sides of the fence as press secretary for President Eisenhower and now a television news executive.

"Are reporters getting the truth in Viet Nam?" he asks. "I don't know. Probably we're not getting the whole story. But should we? I kind of think it's legitimate for a government not to tell the whole story. But then I am forced to remember how White House reporters used to scream at me for more information and sometimes they turned out to be right."

In the eternal war between government and reporters, between the keepers and the seekers of the facts, there is a disposition on the highest levels of government to change news media with pious hypocrisy. When, it is asked, do editors admit their own contributions to the credibility gap, their own errors in print and on the air?

In this context, a high official of the Johnson administration told this reporter somewhat bitterly:

"I have never lied to the press . . . Compare the government's standards of credibility with other segments of of our society, including the press, and you'll find the government's standards high.

". . . Only two to three per cent of government business involves any secrecy. And only a tiny fraction of that remains secret . . . The government has an obligation to be as open as possible, and is. But the government is not given the presumption of good faith we give to other things...

"The American people have a right to know but they also have a right to have dangerous problems handled properly by responsible officers and not by the press. Nobody elected them . . ."

The view from the government foxholes also includes a sensation of contradictory assault. On one hand, it was criticized for saying too little about the first alleged Hanoi peace feeler. On the other, it was criticized for talking too much about the second feeler, one relayed by Italian officials.

In the latter case, the story was broken by a reporter who said Washington had rejected that peace overture. This was not true. "We could not say nothing or make a 'no comment'," said a State Department official. "To do so would have made it appear that we were rejecting the offer. We hadn't."

The Ultimate Agony of Viet Nam Problem

Transcending the battle of press and government in the arena of credibility is the ultimate agony of the Viet Nam problem itself. A war difficult to understand is easy to misunderstand. Ambiguity breeds dissent

ROBERT McNAMARA
A Wrong Guess?

LYNDON B. JOHNSON

The war in Viet Nam has no battle lines, no chartable progress, no easily seen goals. The United States is not fighting the real villains, we are told, but their proxies—the Viet Cong for Hanoi, Hanoi for Red China, with Russia a questionable stockholder. We are not fighting all because we dare not, it is said, risk a large war. We are fighting them on the ground but we dare not risk commitment to a ground war in Asia. We advise, we escalate, we bomb, we pause, we seem to beg the world, anybody, to get us out and to the conference table, we bomb again. We ask the United Nations to do something while we firm up our commitment to Saigon with a hastily called conference in Hawaii.

The complexities of the cold war almost defy understanding, if not hope.

"Old tyrants depart," a sad Harry Truman noted recently. "New ones take their places. Old differences are composed, new differences arise. Old allies become the foe. The recent enemy becomes the friend. It's all very baffling and trying."

"There were hawks and doves arguing loudly in 1941," recalls a State Department official. "But then came Pearl Harbor and we were in it and the arguments stopped. In a declared war, there is less questioning of ourselves.

"NOW WE are in a gray world, fighting dirty little wars without a declaration of war, where the enemy is not a uniformed army, where there is no wartime censorship and none of the regimentation we customarily accept in war. And while we fight, Detroit sells nine million cars to add to the unreality."

And always there is the big bomb to complicate the complications, to quicken the doves and slow the hawks.

"The last three Presidents of the United States," it is pointed out on a penultimate level of government, "have had to think of a full nuclear exchange as a real possibility. Thus, neither President Johnson nor Secretary Rusk ever blasts the other side by name. They have avoided creating a war psychology because it would be too dangerous in the nuclear age. Thus, the dissenters are left more room to create a psychology in the other direction."

Among historians, the whole question of government credibility is viewed with varying degrees of concern.

Henry Steele Commager is disturbed, he says, by the "increased trend" in Washington to disguise the truth.

"It is due to the heavy role of the military. Countries confronted with military problems act this way. They justify it in terms of national security. I don't think it's justified now. The habits of deception carry the dangers of self-deception; you can begin to believe your own propaganda."

Samuel Eliot Morison is less disturbed. "I think in war or at a time of delicate negotiations you can't hold a government to admit everything. There is no more of a trend now than there has ever been but in recent years events have come so fast and thick there seems to be more of it."

"We are constantly torn between our notions of democracy and what the world today demands," says Henry Grass, Columbia University historian. "But most successful governments maintain some mystery."

Plenty of Example in American History

As it is with all nations, American history abounds not only in examples of official secrecy but also contradictions between government postures and government acts, between the promises of candidates and their deeds after election, between the "inside" attitudes of government and the public positions taken under political pressure.

Thomas Jefferson as a candidate opposed creation of a national bank, and supported it as President. During the Texas revolution against Mexico, the U.S. government pretended to be neutral but wasn't.

In 1939 Franklin Roosevelt, the President, at the start of World War II, said America would be "neutral in fact, if not in spirit," and we the country was neither. In 1952, the Eisenhower administration came in with much talk of "massive retaliation" and the "unleashing" of Kaishek, and delivered neither.

In all these examples in history, the reader takes his choice, between a suspicion of deliberate deceit or a more gentle consideration, that events can make a lie of the best of promises.

THERE IS in Washington today a man of great experience in government and the world, who has been high in the inner councils of several administrations. He no longer holds office and, in semi-retirement, enjoys a relaxed urbanity about recent world history. All the talk of double-talk in Washington, from the U-2 incident onward, fills him with an amused sense of irony.

"For a people with a supposed sense of humor," he says, "we Americans are so ponderous. In diplomacy and government there are various grades of the truth as there are in private life. When a hostess we detest invites us to dinner, we don't tell the truth. We say, 'Oh, darling, I'm simply devastated but we're tied up.' This makes for grease in our social relationships.

"In foreign affairs we use the same gentle forms of deception, which deceives no one but gets no one mad.

"Where spies are involved, we must decide in advance how we will behave in all contingencies . . . It was ridiculous for Eisenhower to deny that that U-2 plane over Russia was engaged in espionage and then admit it was. In my time, we had planes that strayed off course. We never admitted anything else or used cover stories.

"The government did not lie about its Dominican intervention. But I think there is a grave danger of the government talking too much. It was a confused situation which suddenly became worse . . . The government should have said nothing until it had the situation under control and then issued a white paper . . .

"No, I don't think our relations with Latin America, in government and business, tell me privately they thanked God we intervened. They had to complain publicly or be crucified at home. But they don't believe it for a moment. It was all window dressing."

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

JOHN F. KENNEDY
Their Administrations Were Caught

Lyndon Johnson Proud of Window Dressing

Among students of the Lyndon Johnson school of window dressing, there are those who detect a tendency to be passionately secretive above innocuous details, to become righteously indignant when transparent political motives are suggested.

Before his death, it is said, President Kennedy had committed himself to a budget under $100 billion and the work in that direction was already well advanced when President Johnson was sworn in. Then Washington began to hear about the monumental difficulties involved in keeping the budget under $100 billion.

"The most wonderfully dramatic, superbly audible groans and moans began to be heard from the White House," wrote columnist Joseph Alsop. "They were the battle sounds of a conservative Hercules, fighting the hundred-headed Hydra of left-wing extravagance. Bulletins were issued from time to time to a breathless nation, suggesting that Hydra had Hercules cornered . . .

"Finally, a budget below $100 billion was breathlessly unveiled, as an astonishing triumph of hard work and fiscal responsibility—and naturally in a White House all but deprived of electric light, in order to dramatize the President's penny-pinching principles . . . The flim-flam got results . . . (it) persuaded businessmen that President Johnson was a sound fellow, with his heart in the right place."

AMONG OTHERS, Alsop suspected elaborate stage management in the intensive series of White House conferences last summer that preceded announcement of escalation in Viet Nam.

Lyndon Johnson has been known to have an acute sense of secrecy dating back to his Senate days. An old friend and aide once tried to explain it: "I think it's the gambler or politician in him. He just doesn't like to reveal his next move. He plays things close to the vest."

Thus, there have been occasions when neither the press covering him nor the Secret Service protecting him nor the crew flying him knew precisely where the President was going until they were airborne.

Thus, occasional confusion and incredulity. James Deakin, White House reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, wrote in the New Republic:

"On July 27, at an impromptu press conference in his office, the President said he had not begun to consider an appointment to the Supreme Court to replace Justice Goldberg. The next day he announced the appointment of Abe Fortas as Goldberg's successor. Why mislead when you don't have to? Whatever happened to 'no comment'?"

On Jan. 22, 1965, two days after the inauguration, reporters asked White House Press Secretary George Reedy whether the President had made a disability agreement with Vice President Humphrey. "No," said Reedy. ". . . We just haven't gotten to that yet."

Later that month, when the President went to the hospital with a cold, reporters again asked about the disability agreement. Reedy answered two days later: Johnson and Humphrey had made the agreement "sometime before the inauguration."

Plenty of Tools for Image-Making

The tools for image-making, a common phenomenon in America, are prodigious in the presidency. He controls the vast machinery of the executive branch and its hundreds of press agents. He can, by the timings of his announcements, achieve maximum effect favorable to him and unfavorable to his opposition. Headlines and TV cameras follow a President everywhere.

Thus, there was nothing un-American in the suggestion that perhaps one of the reasons Johnson hurried to Honolulu for a conference about Viet Nam was to take the play away from a Senatae inquiry into his Viet Nam policy.

Under Lyndon Johnson, the White House controls the vast flow of official information from the countless mimeographs of the executive branch.

The President is almost never lacking in announcements. On the last Labor Day weekend, which he spent at his ranch in Texas, there were 42 news releases in four days from the "Pedernales press service."

Finally, no study of government credibility is complete without considering the question of "freedom of information." Periodically, over many years and administrations, reporters and editors have complained fiercely of undue official secrecy under which bureaucratic error or worse might have been hidden under the veil of "national security."

TEN YEARS ago a committee was set up in the House, chaired by Rep. John E. Moss, a California Democrat, to investigate such complaints. It found many, ranging from official reluctance to divulge details on government contracts (where there was no competitive bidding) to the Pentagon's insistence that the Pentagon telephone book was classified, as was the work of the Lincoln Centennial Committee.

The Moss committee, Democratic-controlled, brought many improvements. It appears to have been busiest during the Republican administration of Dwight Eisenhower. It is considerably less busy during the Democratic administration of Lyndon Johnson. Why?

"On the basis of complaints we receive," said Moss, "this administration has a reputation for an almost perfect score in not abusing the handling or withholding of information. We get fewer complaints now. If anyone feels I'm playing politics, let him bring in a complaint."

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT
'Tongue in Cheek'

But then there is Sam Archibald, staff director of the committee, who told this reporter: "Yes, there have been improvements. But it is also a fact of life that Democrats are less inclined to clobber a Democratic President."

Sam Archibald, an appointee who can be fired by the committee, authorized the use of his name behind that quote. Either he has a private income or he must be one of the bravest men in this town, where anonymity is fearless and truth, a sometime mystery of mirrors.

L. A. C. SAYS

Good Old Days and This April 15th

A LOT OF people are going to be jarred when they find they will owe Uncle Sam money on April 15 for their 1965 income tax. The 14% deducted from their paychecks may not cover the tax owed —as has the withholding tax in most past years. This when added to the increased Social Security and Medicare deductions is quite a shock to millions of taxpayers. But it is probable 1966 will end up as even a greater shocker.

THE YOUNGER people might be interested to know how this income tax system has developed. They may get an idea of what part government spending has done to contribute to inflation. They are receiving annual incomes now several times those enjoyed during the early days of the income tax. But the percentage of incomes taken in taxes is far ahead of income increases—and the dollar purchasing power is worth about 20 cents compared with what it was in 1913.

When the income tax was made lawful in 1913 an income of $3,000 a year was in the upper one-third of all incomes. The family deduction was $1,200 for each dependent compared with $600 today. After that the tax was 1% on the lower income compared with 14% today. On the larger income it ran as high as 6% compared with 77% today. If your income was $20,000 in 1913 the tax to Uncle Sam was a staggering $160. The million-dollar income paid $59,770—today it would be 10 or more times as much.

THE RECENT election to place seven Los Angeles County poverty members on the poverty agency board sets a limit of $4,000 family income for such members or voters. Only 25 years ago that amount of income was in the top one-fourth of all incomes. Today it is considered "poverty." The reason is that inflation has eaten away the buying power of the dollar. It would take more than $10,000 a year to equal what $4,000 would buy in 1940.

Another example of how things have changed is the Great Society Rent Subsidy Plan. It calls for the government to pay the part of a family's rent that exceeds 25% of its income. This is supposed to apply to families with $4,500 or less income a year. But it has been estimated this will be greatly increased when the agencies decide higher incomes should be covered when they have more children or other obligations.

INCOMES HAVE increased faster than inflation has devalued the dollar. For this reason workers today are not greatly concerned over what has happened to the buying power of dollars. But the older people who are trying to live on present dollars received from Social Security or savings they have accumulated, feel it. Anyone who compares the past with present must realize what inflation means. Ours has been mild compared with what has happened in other countries. But it has been steady and has accumulated during wars, depressions and the present great prosperity. But that does not mean we are immune to a real devastating inflation followed by depression. As long as government inflates the economy by higher spending and deficits the erosion of the dollar will continue. As April 15 approaches each of us might well think over how these taxes on incomes have increased.

The above figures apply to federal taxation and deficits. But when the Brown 1966-67 budget of over $4.6 billion is compared with the $2 billion when he took office eight years ago it is apparent the same inflationary spending is also his policy. It is evident that a more realistic approach must be had if we are to escape the contsant eroding of personal income. There is little hope for it under his—or his party—programs. It is evident that "it is time for a change."—L.A.C.

Capital Chatter

A MADISON, WIS., teacher recently asked her fifth-graders to write essays on why they should be quiet in school hallways. The response she got from one of them landed in the Congressional Record, thanks to Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson asked that the essay be printed in the record "for consideration by senators and others."

The fifth grader ticked off all the obvious reasons and ended by writing, "If you're a senator, O. K., but if you're not, be quiet in the halls."

ONE OF THE FRINGE benefits of being a Cabinet member is the limousine that goes with the job; and each year the cabinet member gets a new limousine. Although they may choose any color automobile, most Cabinet secretaries stick to basic black.

Secretary of the Interior Steward Udall broke with tradition last month and ordered his limousine in "forest green," leaving quipsters to wonder if the secretary of the treasury will order his in "mint green," the secretary of defense in "bullet gray," the secretary of agriculture in "wheat yellow" and so on.

Municipal Band Marks 57 Years

Long Beach's Municipal Band will celebrate its 57th anniversary today by going slightly formal — wearing new uniforms more restrained than the bright red regalia of recent years.

The 36 band members will don the newly purchased black evening-style trousers and gold jackets for a concert at 2 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium.

Guest soloist will be Don Ellis, trumpeter credited by critics with a distinguished performance with Stan Kenton's orchestra in the recent neophonic concert at the Los Angeles Music Hall.

By way of recalling the old days, Art Green also will be featured as soloist on an instrument more prominent in the early days of the century — the tuba. He is the band's regular tuba player.

CHARLES J. PAYNE

* * * *

UNDER DIRECTION of Charles J. Payne, the band will also introduce new arrangements of Wagner's "Trauma" and San Miguel's "The Golden Ear," as well as a new suite, "California Kaleidoscope," by the Los Angeles composer, Les Taylor.

Actually the band's anniversary is March 14, exactly 57 years after it was organized under a new charter amendment authorizing tax funds for the city's pioneer cultural activity.

From its inception the band has enlisted many musicians with outstanding backgrounds in serious or popular music. Among its members are:

Joe Mariani, who played French horn with Victor Young on NBC at the age of 17 and more recently with Stan Kenton and Xavier Cugat.

Edward Foster, oboe and English horn, a veteran who played 11 years at the Metropolitan in New York, 10 years with the Pittsburgh Symphony and made records with the Paul Whiteman Orchestra.

Rudolph Schmitt, principal clarinetist with the San Francisco Symphony and Opera for 18 years and a former member of the Chicago Civic Opera Orchestra.

* * * *

WALTER THALIN, principal clarinetist for the Minneapolis Symphony as early as 1923 and also for 20 years with the Cleveland Symphony.

Gene Conklin, a utility man who plays clarinet, saxophone and flute, a former member of the Harry Owens Hawaiian Orchestra, and later with Fred Waring, Freddie Martin and Buddy Rogers.

Fred Divisek, tympani, accordion and xylophone, who played with the San Francisco Symphony, Chicago Opera and touring group supporting Victor Borge.

Featured among the women members is Marty Auckerman, a trumpeter, formerly a soloist with the Women's Air Force Band. She also played in the Hormel 75-member all-girl orchestra which did two broadcasts a week over CBS.

Voter Drive Set Monday Night

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

The monthly "voter registration night" at nearly 100 public libraries throughout the county will be held Monday from 7 to 9 p.m.

In most instances, the registration desks will be staffed by volunteers from the League of Women Voters, who have undergone training as deputy registrars.

The league is conducting a countywide campaign to register voters before the April 14 deadline for registration for the June primary election.

* * * *

AS PART of the campaign, all Los Angeles County Fire Department fire stations also are registering voters. On any day between the hours of 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. that firemen are not actually engaged in their basic fire fighting duties, citizens may register to vote at the county stations.

Libraries in the Long Beach area which will be registering voters Monday night are as follows:

Long Beach — Alamitos Branch, 1836 E. Third St.; Bach Branch, 4055 Bellflower Blvd.; Bay Shore Branch, 195 Bay Shore Ave.; Brewitt Branch, 4063 E. Anaheim St.; Burnett Branch, 560 E. Hill St.; Dana Branch, 3680 Atlantic Ave.; Bret Harte Branch, 1595 W. Willow St.; Los Altos Branch, 5614 Britton Drive, and North Long Beach Branch, 5571 Orange Ave.

Lakewood — Iacoboni County Library, 5100 Clark Ave.

La Mirada — La Mirada County Library, 15030 Luitweiler Ave.

Carson — Carson County Library, 22102 S. Main St.

Collegians on 3 TV Shows

The Cerritos College Music Department will hold the spotlight on three 7 a.m. television programs Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The Scope program, KABC, features junior college activities throughout the Los Angeles County area, according to Harlan Stamm, dean of the extended day school at Cerritos.

On Wednesday, Jazz in Music Education" will be featured. The Cerritos Day Stage Band, under the direction of Jack Wheaton of Buena Park will present a brief history of jazz.

The second show, Thursday at 7 a.m. will feature the night stage band with Wheaton conducting, and the Cerritos Madrigal Singers with Stanley Porter of Los Alamitos, directing.

"How to Write and Record a Motion Picture Sound Track" is the topic of this show. The sound track from the full-length motion picture, "House on the Sand," was written, recorded and arranged by the Cerritos College Music Department.

The Cerritos Night Stage Band will be featured again in the final program Friday.

52-Page Brochure Describes L.B. Port

A new 52-page brochure, loaded with facts and full-color pictures of the Port of Long Beach, was made available this week by the Harbor Department.

The front section of "Harbor Highlights" is a pictorial guide intended to aid visitors taking the Sea-Lane Tour of the harbor, according to a Harbor Department spokesman.

SYLVIA BURNETT

Dedication Slated for Expanded Synagogue

By LES RODNEY
Religious News Editor

Finishing touches will be put on expanded and redesigned Temple Sinai early this week in preparation for a weekend of dedication starting Friday night at Long Beach's pioneer synagogue.

The $250,000 addition (exclusive of land costs) has doubled the previous area of the 40-year-old Conservative Temple on the corner of Seventh Street and Molino Avenue.

The improvement, said Rabbi Sidney S. Guthman, represents "our vote of confidence in the vitality of the Jewish community in the Long Beach area, and the city itself. Our temple and its activities have become interwoven with the total life of the community in many ways through the years."

Rabbi Guthman, who has been at Temple Sinai seven years, is chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee for Community Improvement, and serves as a chaplain at the Veteran Administration Hospital.

* * * *

THE TEMPLE draws its membership of 1,000, he noted, not only from Long Beach but from Garden Grove, Westminster, Huntington Beach, Los Alamitos, Lakewood, Downey, San Pedro and Wilmington.

The approximately 9,000 square feet of construction adds an educational building with 12 classrooms, kitchen, nursery area, outdoor play space, bridal room, library, youth lounge, and administrative offices. The sanctuary and social hall have been enlarged and redesigned, as has the entire exterior.

During the construction period, Temple Sinai accepted invitations to use the school facilities of Los Altos United Church, at 5500 Atherton St., and Temple Israel, a Reform congregation also marking its 40th year.

The dedication weekend will begin Friday evening with the pulpit occupied by Rabbi Jacob Kohn, rabbi emeritus of Temple Sinai of Los Angeles, and dean of the Graduate School of University of Judaism.

* * * *

SATURDAY MORNING services, highlighted by a reunion of religious alumni, will be addressed by Rabbi Edward Tenebaum, executive director of the United Synagogue, Pacific Southwest Region.

Dr. David Lieber, president of the University of Judaism, will deliver the principal address at a festive community dedication program 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Mar. 19. Among those scheduled to participate in the ceremonies are Long Beach Mayor Edwin J. Wade; Commissioner Milton G. Gordon, representing Gov. Brown; Congressman Craig Hosmer, Supervisor Burton Chace, Assemblyman Joseph Kennick; David Feuer, representing the Jewish community of Long Beach; Rt. Rev. Msgr. James P. Lynch of nearby St. Matthews Church, and Rev. Murray McNeil of Los Altos United Church.

Blind Will Hear Far East Report

A former Los Angeles school teacher, who was blinded 16 years ago by acute glaucoma, will address a group of blind persons Tuesday night on a three-year study on the blind in the Far East.

Dr. Isabel L. D. Grant, who has studied the problems of blind persons in 43 countries, will address the newly formed Long Beach Chapter of the California Council of the Blind at 8 p.m. in the Ruth Back Library, Bellflower Boulevard and Carson Street.

The Council, which is the only organization of blind people, was organized in Fresno in 1934. The Long Beach chapter received its charter last October.

Dr. Grant is a graduate of the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, and received her Ph.D. from the University of Southern California. She also holds degrees from the University of Paris and the University of Madrid.

An accomplished linguist, Dr. Grant made a special study of Urdu, the language of Pakistan, in preparation for studies in the Far East as a Fullbright scholar. She spent two years in Pakistan.

The California Council of the Blind is an almost unique organization: to be a full-fledged member a person must be blind himself.

'Gardens' Plans Are Vitalized by Ullman Report

By EARL GRISWOLD

A 50-page report on the poverty problems of Hawaiian Gardens has sparked the first stages of a program to give the community a new life.

City Administrator Noyes Alexander said the report by Dr. Paul Ullman of Long Beach State College was the basis for a $12,000 federal grant for a Teen Post started in rented quarters at 12360 E. Carson St.

The enthusiastic response to the Teen Post has encouraged city officials to move ahead with planning more community programs to aid the underprivileged, Alexander said.

The Ullman report, made public this week, sets forth "information about social and economic problems of Hawaiian Gardens." No conclusions are drawn, and no recommendations are made.

Dr. Ullman, sociology professor at LBSC and research consultant for the Long Beach Community Welfare Council, ranks Hawaiian Gardens as one of the lowest income areas in the county.

He points out that 99.4% of the population of Hawaiian Gardens is white, and includes 13.8% with Latin surnames. Only .1% of the population is Negro, and .5% is lumped into a classification as "other."

* * * *

IN preliminary reviews of the Ullman report, councilmen have expressed mixed and sometimes guarded feelings about its findings.

Mayor C. Robert Lee says the study is "a little mixed up in pinpointing what is inside the city and what's outside. The boundaries—and so some of the findings—aren't clearly defined."

Councilman Robert Leach, in a more outspoken observation, said "I think he (Dr. Ullman) did a real good job. In fact, it's so factual, it hurts."

A council study session is slated later this month to explore further programs that can be developed from the report.

While awaiting the study session, the council has given Alexander an informal go-ahead signal to seek engineering plans for construction of a 3,200-square-foot building to serve as a permanent Teen Post and Community Center as a second step in implementing findings of the Ullman report.

The building is to be erected on a fenced-off corner of the Bloomfield Elementary School property on 219th Street just off Norwalk Boulevard, Alexander said. Tentative approval for use of the site has been given by the ABC Unified School District.

Community programs planned for the building include a health clinic and special programs for persons from preschool age to senior citizens.

* * * *

COUNCILMAN Lee Ware has proposed a community-wide campaign for donations of materials and labor in the construction to "give all of us a feeling of joint effort in this project."

* * * *

The Ullman report shows 7.6% of the male civilian labor force in Hawaiian Gardens is unemployed, as compared with 4.5% countywide. And 24.5% of the families have yearly incomes under $4,000, as compared with 19.1% countywide.

Half the population is under 18 years old, and the under-5-years population is 19.1%, highest in the county.

"Thus there are relatively fewer adults in the working age category to support relatively more and younger dependent children," the report states. With their larger families, "Hawaiian Gardens residents with low incomes probably are in considerably worse condition than the low-income residents in the rest of the county."

* * * *

THE CITY, however, is "characterized by a relatively higher proportion of married persons," and "further, the marriages are relatively stable," with only 4.9% of its population either divorced or separated, as compared with 7.1% countywide.

While a shifting population is frequently correlated with other social problems, the report notes, movement of families in Hawaiian Gardens is largely local.

The area "does not stand out in terms of crime," and in fact doesn't generaly present patrol problems significantly different from other areas.

Problems are cited in low education levels, unemployment and lack of job skills, substandard housing and absentee landlords, and inadequate public transportation.

Among "perceived solutions" cited in Dr. Ullman's interviews with social workers were improved public transporation, child care facilities, health center, consumer education, teen post, Project Headstart, and retraining programs for adults.

CORE Set to Picket Dockmen

A Congress of Racial Equality picket line will be thrown up Tuesday night at a stop-work meeting of the Longshoremen's union in Wilmington as the first overt move in a campaign against what the civil rights group calls discrimination in membership of Local 13.

Lewis Smith, CORE regional director, said the picket line will be composed basically of Negro longshore "casuals," those workers who do not have union certification.

Smith said CORE was objecting to so-called "grandfather" practices in which the membership is limited by the requirement that new members be related to a present member. Since Negro membership is limited, it restricts gains in membership, Smith said.

* * * *

DAVID Courtmarche, Local 13 secretary, declined comment on the meeting, which Smith said would be attended by longshore boss Harry Bridges, and Courtemarche said he knew nothing of any picket plans.

Both Courtmarche and spokesmen for the Pacific Maritime Association, which represents employers in collective bargaining, pointed out that contracts permit stop work meetings as often as once a month.

PMA spokesmen also pointed out that the contract with the ILWU has a nondiscrimination clause and said they could not provide figures on the number of Negro members in the 3,000-member local because employe records do not refer to race.

Smith said the picket line would be established at the union hall at 231 W. "C" St. at least one-half hour before the meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Reactivated LSTs Join Fleet Soon

Two reactivated Pacific Reserve Fleet tank-landing ships will be recommissioned in the Long Beach Naval Shipyard April 16.

They are the USS Sedgwick County and Pitkin County.

On April 23 another LST, the USS Hampshire County will be recommissioned at Todd Shipyard in San Pedro.

Boston Newspapers Facing Strike Today

BOSTON (UPI)—A seven-hour mediation session aimed at heading off a strike that could plunge Boston into a near newspaper blackout ended Saturday night without an agreement.

Representatives of two unions said a strike vote would be taken today at 2 p.m. unless the publishers of three Boston newspaper companies met union contract demands.

Lomitan Dies From Wounds of Viet Action

Medics had attempted to save the life of Lance Cpl. Chester O'Brien, 27, through use of an artificial kidney.

O'Brien is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester O'Brien, of 2020 Lomita Blvd., Lomita, and a sister, Mrs. Edith Wolfe, of Taft.

Funeral service will be announced later.

Flu Waning, Litwack Says

The flu hasn't flown, by any means, but the epidemic definitely is on the wane in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area.

This was the good word reported Saturday by Dr. I. D. Litwack, Long Beach city health officer, who said the local incidence of influenza had dwindled to approximately the "seasonal norm."

"Undoubtedly," he added, "many people are currently sick with the Asian Type A-2 flue virus here — and many more likely will catch it before the period of widespread contagion is over.

"But the closer we get to spring, the less likely will be the chances of continued spreading of the disease, which usually thrives on cold weather."

Besides plenty of statistical evidence, he has a couple of personal reasons for his cheerful prognosis:

Item 1 — His favorite patient, Mrs. Litwack, has made a rapid recovery at home from her bout with the flu.

52 Rebels Killed

LISBON, Portugual (UPI) — Fifty-two rebels were killed by Portuguese armed forces in the West African territory of Guinea in the last week of February, a Portuguest communique said Saturday. One Portuguese soldier was reported killed in the same period.

'Gardens' Plans Are Vitalized by Ullman Report

By EARL GRISWOLD

A 50-page report on the poverty problems of Hawaiian Gardens has sparked the first stages of a program to give the community a new life.

City Administrator Noyes Alexander said the report by Dr. Paul Ullman of Long Beach State College was the basis for a $12,000 federal grant for a Teen Post started in rented quarters at 12360 E. Carson St.

The enthusiastic response to the Teen Post has encouraged city officials to move ahead with planning more community programs to aid the underprivileged, Alexander said.

The Ullman report, made public this week, sets forth "information about social and economic problems of Hawaiian Gardens." No conclusions are drawn, and no recommendations are made.

Dr. Ullman, sociology professor at LBSC and research consultant for the Long Beach Community Welfare Council, ranks Hawaiian Gardens as one of the lowest income areas in the county.

He points out that 99.4% of the population of Hawaiian Gardens is white, and includes 13.8% with Latin surnames. Only .1% of the population is Negro, and .5% is lumped into a classification as "other."

* * * *

IN preliminary reviews of the Ullman report, councilmen have expressed mixed and sometimes guarded feelings about its findings.

Mayor C. Robert Lee says the study is "a little mixed up in pinpointing what is inside the city and what's outside. The boundaries—and so some of the findings—aren't clearly defined."

Councilman Robert Leach, in a more outspoken observation, said "I think he (Dr. Ullman) did a real good job. In fact, it's so factual, it hurts."

A council study session is slated later this month to explore further programs that can be developed from the report.

While awaiting the study session, the council has given Alexander an informal go-ahead signal to seek engineering plans for construction of a 3,200-square-foot building to serve as a permanent Teen Post and Community Center as a second step in implementing findings of the Ullman report.

The building is to be erected on a fenced-off corner of the Bloomfield Elementary School property on 219th Street just off Norwalk Boulevard, Alexander said. Tentative approval for use of the site has been given by the ABC Unified School District.

Community programs planned for the building include a health clinic and special programs for persons from preschool age to senior citizens.

* * * *

COUNCILMAN Lee Ware has proposed a community-wide campaign for donations of materials and labor in the construction to "give all of us a feeling of joint effort in this project."

* * * *

The Ullman report shows 7.6% of the male civilian labor force in Hawaiian Gardens is unemployed, as compared with 4.5% countywide. And 24.5% of the families have yearly incomes under $4,000, as compared with 19.1% countywide.

Half the population is under 18 years old, and the under-5-years population is 19.1%, highest in the county.

"Thus there are relatively fewer adults in the working age category to support relatively more and younger dependent children," the report states. With their larger families, "Hawaiian Gardens residents with low incomes probably are in considerably worse condition than the low-income residents in the rest of the county."

* * * *

THE CITY, however, is "characterized by a relatively higher proportion of married persons," and "further, the marriages are relatively stable," with only 4.9% of its population either divorced or separated, as compared with 7.1% countywide.

While a shifting population is frequently correlated with other social problems, the report notes, movement of families in Hawaiian Gardens is largely local.

The area "does not stand out in terms of crime," and in fact doesn't generaly present patrol problems significantly different from other areas.

Problems are cited in low education levels, unemployment and lack of job skills, substandard housing and absentee landlords, and inadequate public transportation.

Among "perceived solutions" cited in Dr. Ullman's interviews with social workers were improved public transporation, child care facilities, health center, consumer education, teen post, Project Headstart, and retraining programs for adults.

CORE Set to Picket Dockmen

A Congress of Racial Equality picket line will be thrown up Tuesday night at a stop-work meeting of the Longshoremen's union in Wilmington as the first overt move in a campaign against what the civil rights group calls discrimination in membership of Local 13.

Lewis Smith, CORE regional director, said the picket line will be composed basically of Negro longshore "casuals," those workers who do not have union certification.

Smith said CORE was objecting to so-called "grandfather" practices in which the membership is limited by the requirement that new members be related to a present member. Since Negro membership is limited, it restricts gains in membership, Smith said.

* * * *

DAVID Courtmarche, Local 13 secretary, declined comment on the meeting, which Smith said would be attended by longshore boss Harry Bridges, and Courtemarche said he knew nothing of any picket plans.

Both Courtmarche and spokesmen for the Pacific Maritime Association, which represents employers in collective bargaining, pointed out that contracts permit stop work meetings as often as once a month.

PMA spokesmen also pointed out that the contract with the ILWU has a nondiscrimination clause and said they could not provide figures on the number of Negro members in the 3,000-member local because employe records do not refer to race.

Smith said the picket line would be established at the union hall at 231 W. "C" St. at least one-half hour before the meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Reactivated LSTs Join Fleet Soon

Two reactivated Pacific Reserve Fleet tank-landing ships will be recommissioned in the Long Beach Naval Shipyard April 16.

They are the USS Sedgwick County and Pitkin County.

On April 23 another LST, the USS Hampshire County will be recommissioned at Todd Shipyard in San Pedro.

Boston Newspapers Facing Strike Today

BOSTON (UPI)—A seven-hour mediation session aimed at heading off a strike that could plunge Boston into a near newspaper blackout ended Saturday night without an agreement.

Representatives of two unions said a strike vote would be taken today at 2 p.m. unless the publishers of three Boston newspaper companies met union contract demands.

Lomitan Dies From Wounds of Viet Action

Medics had attempted to save the life of Lance Cpl. Chester O'Brien, 27, through use of an artificial kidney.

O'Brien is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester O'Brien, of 2020 Lomita Blvd., Lomita, and a sister, Mrs. Edith Wolfe, of Taft.

Funeral service will be announced later.

Flu Waning, Litwack Says

The flu hasn't flown, by any means, but the epidemic definitely is on the wane in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area.

This was the good word reported Saturday by Dr. I. D. Litwack, Long Beach city health officer, who said the local incidence of influenza had dwindled to approximately the "seasonal norm."

"Undoubtedly," he added, "many people are currently sick with the Asian Type A-2 flue virus here — and many more likely will catch it before the period of widespread contagion is over.

"But the closer we get to spring, the less likely will be the chances of continued spreading of the disease, which usually thrives on cold weather."

Besides plenty of statistical evidence, he has a couple of personal reasons for his cheerful prognosis:

Item 1 — His favorite patient, Mrs. Litwack, has made a rapid recovery at home from her bout with the flu.

52 Rebels Killed

LISBON, Portugual (AP) — Fifty-two rebels were killed by Portuguese armed forces in the West African territory of Guinea in the last week of February, a Portuguest communique said Saturday. One Portuguese soldier was reported killed in the same period.

TORRANCE 'PUEBLO' FOLK SEE HEALTH PERIL

By DON KIRKLAND

Homeowners in Torrance's tiny Mexican-American community have agreed informally to a temporary truce in their battle against a 250,000-ton "mountain" of industrial residue.

They emphasized "temporary."

"We'll meet again on the first Wednesday of April," said resident member Ruben Ordaz, "and then we'll vote officially. That will give us a month to think things over."

The 200 homeowners of Torrance's so-called "pueblo" district, made up primarily of Mexican-American families, have launched a campaign to rid their area of the pile, which occupies a 2-acre site on the nearby property of American Gypsum Co.

The company, which has stockpiled its by-product for more than 2 years, claims removing the pile would cost $500,000.

The residents met last week with city administrative spokesmen and John Ebbinghouse, resident manager of the firm which manufactures insulating materials. At that meeting the company said it would not remove the pile, but would try to cooperate with the residents to correct whatever problems exist. These, say the homeowners, include unsightliness and hazard from airborne "lint," which contains what they describe as glasslike particles that could be injurious to health.

The residents also say rainwater runs off the "mountain" and into neighboring yards, where it deadens the grass and shrubbery. It is dangerous for the children in the area and emits "a mildew odor," the homeowners charge.

Ebbinghouse said he would recommend to the firm's headquarters in Chicago that between $12,000 and $15,000 be authorized to build a fence around the pile, and agreed to meet with Don Walker, chairman of the Torrance Beautiful Commission, to determine what steps might be taken to eliminate the "eyesore" aspect.

Ordaz, however, said the residents are not entirely satisfied. Although Ordaz did not attend Tuesday's meeting, he said the attitude of some homeowners at Wednesday night's meeting showed "they were very disappointed."

* * * *

ABOUT A DOZEN residents "didn't seem quite happy with the situation," Ordaz reported, and already had begun mapping plans for remedying the situation if the company does not take action by next month.

One member already had contacted the office of Rep. Cecil King, and another said a petition might be presented to the Torrance City Council to gain action. One woman said the help of Lady Bird Johnson's nationwide beautification campaign could be enlisted.

With 8 Ripe Fish as Models an Artist Must Paint Swiftly

By VINT MADER

A bartender turned artist, Vincent Farrell set to work with eight limp fish and various other articles from around his Costa Mesa studio, planning the creation of a major painting.

Not only was progress slow: it became bad in more ways than one.

Farrell, 38, who finds art "not as lucrative, I think, as bartending," became so dissatisfied with the 60-by 40-inch oil's progress that he destroyed it.

* * * *

BY THEN, he says, his mess of fish was beyond being eligible as food for the family and their studio home was replete with less than fresh smell from the fish for which he had paid "about $8" of their scarce funds to a doryman.

"I had to get a painting from them," reaclled this father of three who has struggeld full-time with his art for about a year. Farrell culled the decaying still life down to three and regrouped his subjects for a 24 by 30 canvas and brushed on.

* * * *

TITLED simply "Rock Cod," it is prominent among more than a score of his works hung in the art exhibit of the Long Beach Arena Home-O-Rama show.

The soft-spoken, affable artist, who lives and works at 2130 Continental St., observed as he stood among his all-oil show that the year since his crucial decision to be an artist has been "either feast or famine" for him, wife Cecilia, 37, and their daughters, Lee Ray, 13, and Vanessa, 2, and son, Dion, 1.

Although his barkeeping did better in the lucre department, of painting he says "I love the work and I think you should do what you like best." He has resisted commercial blandishments and turned down some decorators who offered him such commissions.

VINCENT FARRELL . . . Bartending More Lucrative

"I'm a very dark painter," says Farrell, who aspires to the somber-toned genius of the 17th century Dutch master Rembrandt van Rijn, and who brushed into "Rock Cod" a strong element of deep green and gray, described as among features of the master's early years.

"I have a great admiration for Rembrandt," the Los Angeles-born Farrell said. "He's my favorite painter . . . so I think that probably explains everything, there."

Anti-Red ILA Pickets Pier

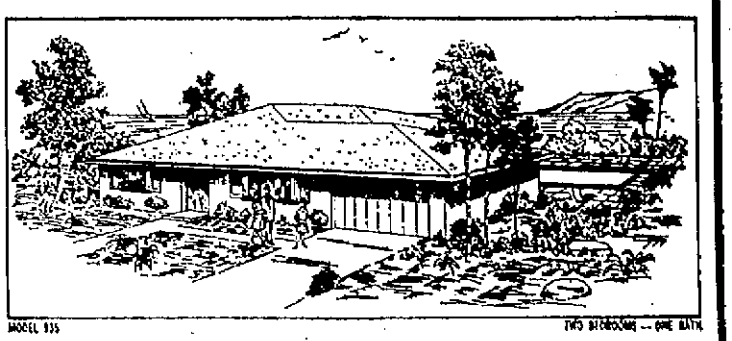
NEW YORK (AP)—One hundred longshoremen, in a protest against trade with Communist North Viet Nam, picketed the French Line pier Saturday for 90 minutes.

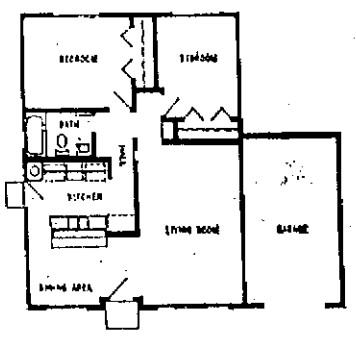
The longshoremen ended the demonstration after receiving assurance that the line does not trade with Communist countries. A spokesman for the International Longshoremen's Association said the protest was aimed at getting such assurance.

The demonstrators, who formed a picket line before the sailing of the liner France, returned to their jobs afterwards. They removed signs that read, "French Ships Help Kill American Boys in Viet Nam."

MONDAY, AT LAFAYETTE

Five Bands Tuning Up





Blaring trombones and many other instruments of a sort to make the rafters ring will be heard in Lafayette Hotel's Grand Ballroom Monday night as the Long Beach Musicians' Association presents its fifth annual Parade of Bands.

Five bands, with a total of 70 professional musicians will perform, all donating their talents for the benefit of sick and disabled members of the association and their families. Tickets will be sold at the ballroom door for a donation of $1.50.

The bands in order of appearance, starting at 9 p.m., are:

Ansel Hill—18 bandsmen.
Galen McReynolds—10 musicians.
Stan Seckler—18 members.
Charles Payne—9 bandsmen.
Madge Wilson—15 players.

RUBEN ORDAZ WOULD LIKE TO LEVEL THIS MOUNTAIN

By DON KIRKLAND

Homeowners in Torrance's tiny Mexican-American community have agreed informally to a temporary truce in their battle against a 250,000-ton "mountain" of industrial residue.

They emphasized "temporary."

"We'll meet again on the first Wednesday of April," said resident member Ruben Ordaz, "and then we'll vote officially. That will give us a month to think things over."

The 200 homeowners of Torrance's so-called "pueblo" district, made up primarily of Mexican-American families, have launched a campaign to rid their area of the pile, which occupies a 2-acre site on the nearby property of American Gypsum Co.

The company, which has stockpiled its by-product for more than 2 years, claims removing the pile would cost $500,000.

The residents met last week with city administrative spokesmen and John Ebbinghouse, resident manager of the firm which manufactures insulating materials. At that meeting the company said it would not remove the pile, but would try to cooperate with the residents to correct whatever problems exist. These, say the homeowners, include unsightliness and hazard from airborne "lint," which contains what they describe as glasslike particles that could be injurious to health.

The residents also say rainwater runs off the "mountain" and into neighboring yards, where it deadens the grass and shrubbery. It is dangerous for the children in the area and emits "a mildew odor," the homeowners charge.

Ebbinghouse said he would recommend to the firm's headquarters in Chicago that between $12,000 and $15,000 be authorized to build a fence around the pile, and agreed to meet with Don Walker, chairman of the Torrance Beautiful Commission, to determine what steps might be taken to eliminate the "eyesore" aspect.

Ordaz, however, said the residents are not entirely satisfied. Although Ordaz did not attend Tuesday's meeting, he said the attitude of some homeowners at Wednesday night's meeting showed "they were very disappointed."

* * * *

ABOUT A DOZEN residents "didn't seem quite happy with the situation," Ordaz reported, and already had begun mapping plans for remedying the situation if the company does not take action by next month.

One member already had contacted the office of Rep. Cecil King, and another said a petition might be presented to the Torrance City Council to gain action. One woman said the help of Lady Bird Johnson's nationwide beautification campaign could be enlisted.

With 8 Ripe Fish as Models an Artist Must Paint Swiftly

By VINT MADER

A bartender turned artist, Vincent Farrell set to work with eight limp fish and various other articles from around his Costa Mesa studio, planning the creation of a major painting.

Not only was progress slow: it became bad in more ways than one.

Farrell, 38, who finds art "not as lucrative, I think, as bartending," became so dissatisfied with the 60-by 40-inch oil's progress that he destroyed it.

* * * *

BY THEN, he says, his mess of fish was beyond being ellgible as food for the family and their studio home was replete with less than fresh smell from the fish for which he had paid "about $8" of their scarce funds to a doryman.

"I had to get a painting from them," reaclled this father of three who has struggeld full-time with his art for about a year. Farrell culled the decaying still life down to three and regrouped his subjects for a 24 by 30 canvas and brushed on.

* * * *

TITLED simply "Rock Cod," it is prominent among more than a score of his works hung in the art exhibit of the Long Beach Arena Home-O-Rama show.

The soft-spoken, affable artist, who lives and works at 2130 Continental St., observed as he stood among his all-oil show that the year since his crucial decision to be an artist has been "either feast or famine" for him, wife Cecilia, 37, and their daughters, Lee Ray, 13, and Vanessa, 2, and son, Dion, 1.

Although his barkeeping did better in the lucre department, of painting he says "I love the work and I think you should do what you like best." He has resisted commercial blandishments and turned down some decorators who offered him such commissions.

VINCENT FARRELL . . . Bartending More Lucrative

"I'm a very dark painter," says Farrell, who aspires to the sumber-toned genius of the 17th century Dutch master Rembrandt van Rijn, and who brushed into "Rock Cod" a strong element of deep green and gray, described as among features of the master's early years.

"I have a great admiration for Rembrandt," the Los Angeles-born Farrell said. "He's my favorite painter . . . so I think that probably explains everything, there."

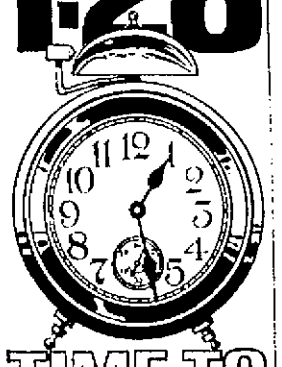
Anti-Red ILA Pickets Pier

NEW YORK (AP)—One hundred longshoremen, in a protest against trade with Communist North Viet Nam, picketed the French Line pier Saturday for 90 minutes.

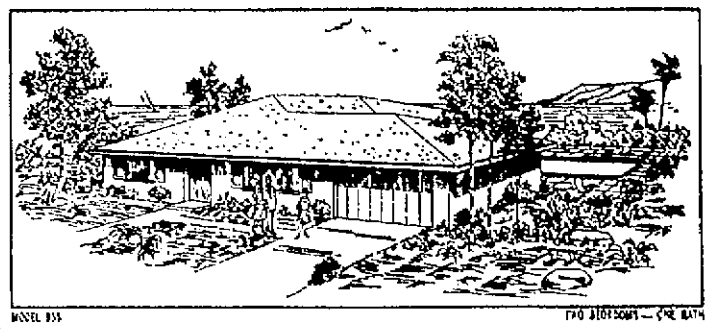
The longshoremen ended the demonstration after receiving assurance that the line does not trade with Communist countries. A spokesman for the International Longshoremen's Association said the protest was aimed at getting such assurance.

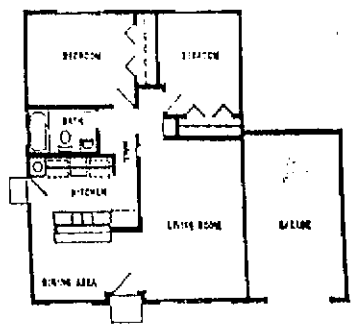
The demonstrators, who formed a picket line before the sailing of the liner France, returned to their jobs afterwards. They removed signs that read, "French Ships Help Kill American Boys in Viet Nam."

MONDAY, AT LAFAYETTE



Five Bands Tuning Up





Blaring trombones and many other instruments of a sort to make the rafters ring will be heard in Lafayette Hotel's Grand Ballroom Monday night as the Long Beach Musicians' Association presents its fifth annual Parade of Bands.

Five bands, with a total of 70 professional musicians will perform, all donating their talents for the benefit of sick and disabled members of the association and their families. Tickets will be sold at the ballroom door for a donation of $1.50.

The bands in order of appearance, starting at 9 p.m., are:

Ansel Hill—18 bandsmen.
Galen McReynolds—10 musicians.
Stan Seckler—18 members.
Charles Payne—9 bandsmen.
Madge Wilson—15 players.

REPLACING WHITE LINES

Botts Dots Saving Lots--From Death

By JERRY RANKIN

SACRAMENTO (AP)—"Botts' dots" are making the familiar white line obsolete on California highways. Backers claim they are also making life safer for millions of motorists.

Experimental versions have come and gone on California roads for more than 10 years in a search for better lane dividers than the usual white lines, which tend to vanish in rain, fog and snow.

* * * *

THE END RESULT, now being planted along major freeways, is a dome-shaped gadget four inches wide and three-quarters of an inch high. So pleased is State Highway Engineer J. C. Womack with the little dots' work that he asserts:

"The white line on California highways is obsolete. Our new type lane marking is not only more visible and cheaper, but will also make driving in California safer."

The plan mixes use of plain white and reflectorized markers, the plain ones showing better in daytime, the reflectors better at night.

Groups of four plain dots, three feet apart, are used instead of the nine-foot-long white strips previously dividing lanes. On straight sections, a reflective marker is placed every 48 feet, and every 24 feet on curves.

Carrying out the state's war against wrong-way drivers on freeways, who take a heavy toll each year, the reflective markers on roads with dividing medians show white to a driver headed the correct way.

A MOTORIST zipping along into oncoming traffic is confronted with a string of bright red "lights" ahead of him—the reverse side of the dot.

Raised markers are slated for all future freeways, expressways and two-lane rural highways in non-snowy areas. Tests are under way in the Sierra Nevada on markers implanted level with the highway, to survive assault by snow-removal equipment and abrasive sand.

One main effect of the markers is psychological. The rumble effect when a vehicle hits the markers cuts down lane changing by about 40%, tests show. That reduces the number of accidents —waking a dozing driver, for example.

* * * *

ENGINEERS SELECTED a nine-mile section of six-lane U.S. 99 freeway south of Fresno, and checked the "Botts dots" for two years. They also kept watch on a control strip of the same road, virtually identical but without dots.

In the two years, the stretch with the dots showed 27% fewer accidents than the mileage without, both in the thick ground fog common in winter and the 100-degree sun scorching the central valley in summer.

Even more, Womack reports, the rate of severe accidents on the dots stretch was one-third that on the other strip, since less lane changing reduced the number of rear-end wrecks.

"Better delineation by the newly adopted lane markers will certainly result in such satisfactory results in some cases," remarks Womack. "In most cases, however, driving will be less spectacularly safer, but will certainly be easier, and marking and maintenance will be at less cost to the taxpayer."

Public Power Group for Proposed Dams

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The proposed $500 million Bridge Canyon Dam, which would back water 13 miles into the Grand Canyon National Park, was endorsed Saturday by the American Public Power Association.

The APPA, which represents 1,400 public power agencies, also endorsed plans to build the $228 million Marble Canyon Dam in the Colorado River Gorge above the national park.

The endorsement was announced by APPA General Manager Alex Radin, who said power to be produced by the two huge hydroelectric dams would be needed to meet the growth of the west.

The two dams — especially Bridge Canyon — are bitterly opposed by conservationists, who say they would injure the national park.

Construction of the dams would be authorized under legislation pending in Congress for a multi-billion dollar lower Colorado River Basin project to meet water needs in the lower basin states. The key feature would be the billion-dollar Central Arizona project to carry water from the Colorado to the Phoenix and Tucson areas.

* * * *

THOUGH BOTH dams are called for in the authorizing legislation, the Bureau of the Budget has recommended that construction of Bridge Canyon Dam be deferred.

Radin said the dams would add 2 million killowatts of power to help meet growing demands in the west and would thus be "a very welcome and valuable help to the local and national economies."

Radin said the 93-mile long reservoir, which would extend all the way through the Grand Canyon National Monument, would rise to a maximum of 7% of the height of the canyon walls.

"At the cliff top, the country here is so forbidding that only a handful of campers ever penetrate the area to discover that the river can not even be seen from the brink," he said.

Radin also cited National Park Service reports that only about 1,300 "adventurers" had run the river rapids between 1955 and 1963.

"The Park Service estimates that 500,000 persons per year would be expected to enjoy the scenery from boats safely afloat on the calm waters of Bridge Canyon reservoir," he added.

* * * *

RADIN SAID "over 99%" of the Grand Canyon National Park would remain in its natural condition and that the remaining 1% "would be improved because the Colorado River would become clear instead of muddy, and safe instead of menacing."

Conservationists who oppose proposals to build the two huge dams say they would destroy natural conditions in the Grand Canyon, set a dangerous precedent by invading the national park, waste water and cost more than alternative plans.

Although part of a plan to meet a critical water shortage in the arid Southwest, neither dam would directly provide water for irrigation or municipal use. The Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation looks upon them as "cash registers" to provide revenues for financing the huge water plan.

Radin's announcement supporting construction of the dams was released by "Water for the West," an information service established by the Colorado River Association, the Central Arizona Project Association and other groups backing the project.

THE FINANCIAL WEEK

Stock Market Sharply Lower in Heavy Selloff

By C. J. FARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anti-inflation fears and technical problems sent the Stock Market sharply lower in active trading this week.

Fears over the possibility of increased income taxes and administration and federal reserve moves to counter the inflamationary tendencies in the economy were considered largely responsible for the selloff and the technical worries raised by the slide added to the selling.

Prices were easier on Monday but the selling was not too heavy and the widely watched Dow-Jones industrial average lost only 1.11. However, the indicator plunged 13.70 on Tuesday and 6.18 on Wednesday.

* * * *

ANOTHER decline was in the cards Thursday but a late rally turned the tide and pushed the indicator up 4.34 before the close. The rally was accompanied by such an influx of orders the tickers finished 12 minutes behind floor transactions.

Prices started higher Friday morning but turned mixed then slumped.

Blue chips, as reflected by the declines in the Dow-Jones average, were pretty badly hit by selloffs, but the secondary and speculative shares suffered even worse falls in most cases.

* * * *

THE ANALYSTS said they felt Thursday's upswing was an indication that the decline was coming to an end but they were reluctant to predict a sustained new advance and were apparently proven right on Friday. The outlook now calls for a test of the market's lows and perhaps some further backtracking before a new advance can begin.

Dow-Jones industrials sank 20.66 on the week to 932.34 and rails gave up 4.33 at 259.90. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slid 1.90 to 89.24.

Trading swelled to 50,367,230 shares from 32,623,520 shares in the four sessions the week before and 31,532,090 shares in the same week last year.

OF THE 1,563 issues traded, 1,092 declined, 274 to new 1965-66 lows, while 376 advanced, 148 to new highs.

Transitron and Raytheon took the first two places in the active list. There have been rumors of merger negotiations between the two firms. On Thursday, Raytheon, following its established pattern, declined to comment on the reports, Transitron said Friday it knew of no reason for the gain or activity in its stock.

It soared 10¼ to 79⅝ on 783,800 shares in third place in the active list. The stock has been on the uptrack since reporting sharply higher sales and profits for 1965 [illegible] substantial backlog of [illegible].

* * * *

AMERICAN Telephone represented the blue chips [illegible] up echelons of the action list with a loss of 1¼ at 58¾ on 634,600 shares in fourth place. American Motors was high with a gain of 1⅝ at 11¼. The stock was one of the few issues in the list to find consistent support during the decline.

Chrysler, General Motors and Ford were also in the active list with loss of 2⅛, 1¼ and 1⅛ respectively. Studebaker advanced 1¼.

Electronics were the leaders in both the decline and the rally on Thursday but sustained heavy losses on the week. Fairchild Camera sank 33¼, Motorola 9, Admiral 5½, Zenith 5¼, Magnavox 5⅛ and Texas Instruments 3. IBM tumbled 7½. Honeywell bucked the downtrend with a gain of 3¼.

Nobody expects to be an accident victim. But you can't escape the fact that one person in every third family will be a victim of some kind of an accident before another year rolls around.

And with every accident comes greater expense than ever before —bigger bills for doctors, and often for X-ray, hospitalization, etc. Here's low-cost insurance that will bring a check directly to you when you need it most. Pays the benefits shown in the "Outline of Coverage" for common everyday accidents at home, at work, at school, while on vacation, etc. Pays extra benefits for auto and pedestrian accidents. And pays in addition to any other insurance you may have. Thousands have already taken advantage of this Reader Service. We invite you to do the same.

REPLACING WHITE LINES

Botts Dots Saving Lots--From Death

By JERRY RANKIN

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—"Botts' dots" are making the familiar white line obsolete on California highways. Backers claim they are also making life safer for millions of motorists.

State engineers predict that eventually the bright, bumpy little round markers will dot highways throughout the nation, at substantial savings in lives and money.

Highway men hung the "Botts dots" tag on the markers because they're primarily the brainchild of the late Dr. E. D. Botts of the California Division of Highways.

Experimental versions have come and gone on California roads for more than 10 years in a search for better lane dividers than the usual white lines, which tend to vanish in rain, fog and snow.

* * * *

THE END RESULT, now being planted along major freeways, is a dome-shaped gadget four inches wide and three-quarters of an inch high. So pleased is State Highway Engineer J. C. Womack with the little dots' work that he asserts:

"The white line on California highways is obsolete. Our new type lane marking is not only more visible and cheaper, but will also make driving in California safer."

The plan mixes use of plain white and reflectorized markers, the plain ones showing better in daytime, the reflectors better at night.

Groups of four plain dots, three feet apart, are used instead of the nine-foot-long white strips previously dividing lanes. On straight sections, a reflective marker is placed every 48 feet, and every 24 feet on curves.

Carrying out the state's war against wrong-way drivers on freeways, who take a heavy toll each year, the reflective markers on roads with dividing medians show white to a driver headed the correct way.

A MOTORIST zipping along into oncoming traffic is confronted with a string of bright red "lights" ahead of him—the reverse side of the dot.

Raised markers are slated for all future freeways, expressways and two-lane rural highways in non-snowy areas. Tests are under way in the Sierra Nevada on markers implanted level with the highway, to survive assault by snow-removal equipment and abrasive sand.

The raised markers are held to the pavement by a high-strength epoxy glue that made their introduction possible.

One main effect of the markers is psychological. The rumble effect when a vehicle hits the markers cuts down lane changing by about 40%, tests show. That reduces the number of accidents —waking a dozing driver, for example.

* * * *

ENGINEERS SELECTED a nine-mile section of six-lane U.S. 99 freeway south of Fresno, and checked the "Botts dots" for two years. They also kept watch on a control strip of the same road, virtually identical but without dots.

In the two years, the stretch with the dots showed 27% fewer accidents than the mileage without, both in the thick ground fog common in winter and the 100-degree sun scorching the central valley in summer.

Even more, Womack reports, the rate of severe accidents on the dots stretch was one-third that on the other strip, since less lane changing reduced the number of rear-end wrecks.

"Better delineation by the newly adopted lane markers will certainly result in such satisfactory results in some cases," remarks Womack. "In most cases, however, driving will be less spectacularly safer, but will certainly be easier, and marking and maintenance will be at less cost to the taxpayer."

Public Power Group for Proposed Dams

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The proposed $500 million Bridge Canyon Dam, which would back water 13 miles into the Grand Canyon National Park, was endorsed Saturday by the American Public Power Association.

The APPA, which represents 1,400 public power agencies, also endorsed plans to build the $228 million Marble Canyon Dam in the Colorado River Gorge above the national park.

The endorsement was announced by APPA General Manager Alex Radin, who said power to be produced by the two huge hydroelectric dams would be needed to meet the growth of the west.

The two dams — especially Bridge Canyon — are bitterly opposed by conservationists, who say they would injure the national park.

Construction of the dams would be authorized under legislation pending in Congress for a multi-billion dollar lower Colorado River Basin project to meet water needs in the lower basin states. The key feature would be the billion-dollar Central Arizona project to carry water from the Colorado to the Phoenix and Tucson areas.

* * * *

THOUGH BOTH dams are called for in the authorizing legislation, the Bureau of the Budget has recommended that construction of Bridge Canyon Dam be deferred.

Radin said the dams would add 2 million killowatts of power to help meet growing demands in the west and would thus be "a very welcome and valuable help to the local and national economies."

The public power spokesman scoffed at charges by what he termed "wilderness fans" that the dams would do irreparable damage to the Grand Canyon National Park.

Radin said the 93-mile long reservoir, which would extend all the way through the Grand Canyon National Monument, would rise to a maximum of 7% of the height of the canyon walls.

"At the cliff top, the country here is so forbidding that only a handful of campers ever penetrate the area to discover that the river can not even be seen from the brink," he said.

Radin also cited National Park Service reports that only about 1,300 "adventurers" had run the river rapids between 1955 and 1963.

"The Park Service estimates that 500,000 persons per year would be expected to enjoy the scenery from boats safely afloat on the calm waters of Bridge Canyon reservoir," he added.

* * * *

RADIN SAID "over 99%" of the Grand Canyon National Park would remain in its natural condition and that the remaining 1% "would be improved because the Colorado River would become clear instead of muddy, and safe instead of menacing."

Conservationists who oppose proposals to build the two huge dams say they would destroy natural conditions in the Grand Canyon, set a dangerous precedent by invading the national park, waste water and cost more than alternative plans.

Although part of a plan to meet a critical water shortage in the arid Southwest, neither dam would directly provide water for irrigation or municipal use. The Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation looks upon them as "cash registers" to provide revenues for financing the huge water plan.

Radin's announcement supporting construction of the dams was released by "Water for the West," an information service established by the Colorado River Association, the Central Arizona Project Association and other groups backing the project.

THE FINANCIAL WEEK

Stock Market Sharply Lower in Heavy Selloff

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anti-inflation fears and technical problems sent the Stock Market sharply lower in active trading this week.

Fears over the possibility of increased income taxes and administration and federal reserve moves to counter the inflamationary tendencies in the economy were considered largely responsible for the selloff and the technical worries raised by the slide added to the selling.

Prices were easier on Monday but the selling was not too heavy and the widely watched Dow-Jones industrial average lost only 1.11. However, the indicator plunged 13.70 on Tuesday and 6.18 on Wednesday.

* * * *

ANOTHER decline was in the cards Thursday but a late rally turned the tide and pushed the indicator up 4.34 before the close. The rally was accompanied by such an influx of orders the tickers finished 12 minutes behind floor transactions.

Prices started higher Friday morning but turned mixed then slumped.

Blue chips, as reflected by the declines in the Dow-Jones average, were pretty badly hit by selloffs, but the secondary and speculative shares suffered even worse falls in most cases.

* * * *

THE ANALYSTS said they felt Thursday's upswing was an indication that the decline was coming to an end but they were reluctant to predict a sustained new advance and were apparently proven right on Friday. The outlook now calls for a test of the market's lows and perhaps some further backtracking before a new advance can begin.

Dow-Jones industrials sank 20.66 on the week to 932.34 and rails gave up 4.33 at 259.90. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index slid 1.90 to 89.24.

Trading swelled to 50,367,230 shares from 32,623,520 shares in the four sessions the week before and 31,532,090 shares in the same week last year.

OF THE 1,563 issues traded, 1,092 declined, 274 to new 1965-66 lows, while 376 advanced, 148 to new highs.

Transitron and Raytheon took the first two places in the active list. There have been rumors of merger negotiations between the two firms. On Thursday, Raytheon, following its established pattern, declined to comment on the reports, Transitron said Friday it knew of no reason for the gain or activity in its stock.

Transitron advanced 3 to 16¾ on 1,064,100 shares at the top of the list. Raytheon followed with a king-sized gain of 7⅛ at 48¾ on 960,800 shares.

It soared 10¼ to 79⅝ on 783,800 shares in third place in the active list. The stock has been on the uptrack since reporting sharply higher sales and profits for 1965 and a substantial backlog of orders.

* * * *

AMERICAN Telephone represented the blue chips in the up echelons of the active list with a loss of 1¼ at 58¾ on 634,600 shares in fourth spot. American Motors was fifth with a gain of 1⅝ at 41¼. The stock was one of the few issues in the list to find consistent support during the decline.

Chrysler, General Motors and Ford were also in the active list with loss of 2⅞, 1¼ and 1⅛ respectively. Studebaker advanced 1¼.

Electronics were the leaders in both the decline and the rally on Thursday but sustained heavy losses on the week. Fairchild Camera sank 33¼, Motorola 9, Admiral 5½, Zenith 5¼, Magnavox 5⅛ and Texas Instruments 3. IBM tumbled 7½. Honeywell bucked the downtrend with a gain of 3¼.

Nobody expects to be an accident victim. But you can't escape the fact that one person in every third family will be a victim of some kind of an accident before another year rolls around.

And with every accident comes greater expense than ever before —bigger bills for doctors, and often for X-ray, hospitalization, etc. Here's low-cost insurance that will bring a check directly to you when you need it most. Pays the benefits shown in the "Outline of Coverage" for common everyday accidents at home, at work, at school, while on vacation, etc. Pays extra benefits for auto and pedestrian accidents. And pays in addition to any other insurance you may have. Thousands have already taken advantage of this Reader Service. We invite you to do the same.

ALSO INCLUDES $5,000.00 FREEWAY—TOLL RD. Death and Dismemberment Benefits

IN 'LOVE AND KISSES'

Lyle Talbot Opens at Magnolia Thurs.

Lyle Talbot, stage, television and motion picture actor, returns to Magnolia Theater Thursday night, starring in "Love and Kisses" with Pat Brown, in Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave.

The work by Anita Rowe Block is a family comedy dealing with relations between parents and teen-agers. The movie version starred Ric and Kris Nelson.

Talbot, a regular on the TV "Ozzie and Harriet" show, recently toured in the play "Never Too Late" in which Penney Singleton co-starred.

Ed Rice, who has played various roles at Magnolia, is the son and Peggy Boucher, the girl friend. Peggy, who has been launched on a professional singing career, has played at Virginia Country Club theater and Community Playhouse.

LYLE TALBOT

The cast also includes Jimmie Carol, folk-singer who with her husband has appeared at The Embers; Richard Rossomme, who was in Magnolia's "The Little Foxes;" and Eldon and Bernadette Sly. Dan Baurac directs.

"Love and Kisses" will play at 8 p.m. Thursdays and Sundays and 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through April 3.

Devine in 'Never Too Late'

Andy Devine plays the flabbergasted father-to-be getting his pulse read by Henry Hunter in a scene from "Never Too Late" opening a two-week engagement at Melodyland Theater Tuesday. Joan Bennett plays the expectant mother. "Born Yesterday," current play, closes with performances at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. today.

WARING'S MAGIC MUSIC

Pennsylvanians Here Thursday

"The Magic Music of Fred Waring," a musical show starring the Pennsylvanians, will play Thursday in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

The show, set within the frame of Waring's familiar "Sleep," which has been his theme song on radio, recordings, concerts, films and television, will feature soloists, skits, choral comedy and orchestral numbers.

Nearly 50 young and veteran performers comprise the orchestra and choral ensemble of this musical show. Featured as soloists are soprano Karen Kopsend, Miss North Dakota of 1965; singing comedy team Linda Wicker and Jim Wheeler; Cordovox virtuoso Donna Dee Anderson; deep-voiced Leonard Kranendock and banjo-humorist Bobby Day; and comedian-drummer Poley McClintock, original member of the four-man band that started Waring's dazzling career in Tyrone, Pa., a half-century ago.

'MADAME D'ARBLAY'

Welcome Change From Superficial

By SAMUEL BOYEA
I. P-T Drama Critic

Michael Sheridan Nolan's "Madame D'Arblay," Saint Anthony High's original play presentation, which closes tonight in Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall, is a "Dear Diary" of historical delight and literary grace. "D'Arblay" premiered Friday night before a near-capacity house.

If you can endure the the rather dragging, over-leisurely, and under-dramatized opening scenes of this 23-scenes, four-act play, you too will find it a rewarding and welcome change from the superficial has and re-hash which make up most of the moron menu of Broadway-inspired theater.

Prize-winning author—Thomas Hardy Memorial Award in Letters—Nolan has undertaken and accomplished with impressive, though not total technical success, the most ornery of theatrical art form—historical drama.

* * * *

THAT THIS 74-year span play about the slow-to-fall-in-love, pioneer woman novelist ("Evelina") and London diarist, Madame D'Arblay, confronts history on the modern stage so interestingly can be traced to its local author's authentic authority in handling the period. Nolan is at home with literary history—loves it even to the fault of over-saturating his production with "leading" expositionary scenes. Time and again, in order to elicit information—which should really grow out of the play, not imposed on it, one character "milks" another character by asking repeatedly: how-do-you-know-how-do-you-know-how-do-you-know??? Or why? why? why? why

Well, they stopped writing that way since the other Sheridan was around.

However, once the instructor author-director stops asking loaded questions and gives his star, Joy Dunleavy something of character substance and situation to nibble on, the play moves. And with it Nolan's direction — so far, ordinary with everybody grabbing stage-center to make his speech and then sitting down.

* * * *

THE LINE which sends the play and its star sailing on simple sentence:

"Mademoiselle," says General Alexandre D'Arblay (Robert Plutte) handsome young refugee from the French Revolution, "I am Alexandre D'Arblay."

He kneels and kisses Fanny's hands. That's all. But the moment is full of magic because the playwright for the first time involves his heroine more deeply and directly in the action Nolan also finally discovers that even in a historical play the shortest link between play and title character is that straight plank on which boy walks to meet girl.

And waiting for just such a moment was our "Fanny" who had just pushed thirty and "found nothing happened to me" in her dedicated-to-dear daddy life, buried in her libraray frequently by literary lions like Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith, and theater greats like David Garrick.

This play which shapes up as excellent movie fare make may well make a star of its Joy Dunleavy.

This tall, lovely girl with the face of striking bone structure and the voice and diction of equally alluring quality is consistently graceful and spirited in her execution of old world feminine loveliness and moral indignation. Her theatrical savvy through which she ages with deepening voice and spiritual intensity is remarkable for any young actress — double stunning for a high school trainee.

* * * *

THERE ARE other standouts in the large cast of 30 plus. Plutte as D'Arblay is fine in the witty love scene with Miss Dunleavy. She chides him for being a fast worker and then in one of the playwright's wittiest romantic lines asked: What is time? Henry Powell is "tops" as the father, Dr. Charles Burney and Terence Caulfield moving as her devoted brother, Charles. Albert Crawford delightfully hams it up as David Garrick, the renowned actor. John Mallon (Sir Joshua Reynolds), William Case (Dr. Samuel Johnson), William Cox (Oliver Goldsmith), John Tyo (Talleyrand) were also at home on the cinemascopic stage.

But the extras who stole it all were Jonna Hynes as the sexy Charlotte, Queen of England (wife of George III) and Roberta Doheny as Madame Schwellenberg, Queen's tyrannical keeper of their robes. As a Malapropish character who referred to the French guillotine as "gelatin," Pamela Leech was "campy" and hilarious as a woman of the world. Ian McCarthy made a Sir Walter Scott well kilted and good to the last burr in a moving closing scene with the aging heroine, grown tired of the world of letters.

Costumes and quick changing scenery were "eye-deal."

Childrens Theater Tryouts Thursday

Long Beach Childrens Theater will hold open tryouts for the May production of "Pinnocchio" at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Long Beach Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St.

Kathy Davis will direct an all-women cast of 16.

AT COMMUNITY PLAYHOUSE

'Lovers' Spirited, Dashing

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
I. P-T Staff Writer

"Elan" is a solid, French adjective for spirited, dashing, sparkling—and it's the best one-word description of both cast and show in Community Playhouse's latest opening Friday night.

It's particularly appropriate since two of five scenes in "Holiday for Lovers" are set in a Parisian hotel room. In fact, all five are in one hotel room or another from New York to Rome.

"Holiday," really, more nearly resembles a TV "family situation comedy" than a traditional drama complete with plot and conflict. But Mother and Dad Dean from Minneapolis, Minn., are far removed from the tube's stereotyped stupid hubby and domineering wife.

Dean, a prosperous insurance man portrayed by Marvin Cloyd ("enry 'iggins" in Civic Light Opera's "My Fair Lady"), his wife and youngest daughter are setting out on their Grand Tour of Europe as the play opens.

Wife Mary — Betty Motsinger in real life—and hubby are stuffing their bags which more than incidentally, provides a delightful series of sharply-timed sight-and-sound gags.

Enter youngest daughter, Betsy, who couldn't at that stage care less about Europe. Her down-keyed, "My friends are in the East—that's Wisconsin," is typical of the play's refreshingly low pitched humor.

Wilson High School senior Gayle Shadduck as Betsy, came on perhaps a bit too slow, but quickly rose to the part, and carried it off beautifully. That hammy old show biz clinche which says nothing, but nothing, stops the show never was more clearly evident than on opening night when Betsy slipped and turned an ankle between scenes.

She manfully—or girlfully—carried on, artfully concealing what must have been a very painful leg. A long line of troupers would have approved.

Enter now in quick succession Dean's sister and brother-in-law, Connie and Joe McDougal—Barbara Crooker and Thomas Petrulas. Technically their parts would be considered "supporting," but the quality both showed throughout gives a new and finer meaning to the term.

Hilarious, in fact, was the up-staging bouts between Mary Dean and Connie—exactly as playwright Ronald Alexander visualized it, of course.

The plot thickens rapidly when the Deans arrive in Paris. Elder daughter Margaret, studying piano there at the Sorbonne, joins the happy family and introduces a suave, gallic piano teacher of distinguished, and middle-aged, mien. A romantic interest, eh bien?

The last principal finally enters — Betsy's new-found beau, Paul Gattalin, an American art student from the Southwest. Ron Boussom in the role matches Gayle Shadduck's Betsy in believable, low-key intensity.

Special kudos to guest director J. L. White, who, although working with a strong cast, must be credited for the smooth, professional patina that covers "Holiday for Lovers."

IN 'LOVE AND KISSES'

Lyle Talbot Opens at Magnolia Thurs.

LYLE TALBOT

Lyle Talbot, stage, television and motion picture actor, returns to Magnolia Theater Thursday night, starring in "Love and Kisses" with Pat Brown, in Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave.

The work by Anita Rowe Block is a family comedy dealing with relations between parents and teen-agers. The movie version starred Ric and Kris Nelson.

Talbot, a regular on the TV "Ozzie and Harriet" show, recently toured in the play "Never Too Late" in which Penney Singleton co-starred.

Ed Rice, who has played various roles at Magnolia, is the son and Peggy Boucher, the girl friend. Peggy, who has been launched on a professional singing career, has played at Virginia Country Club theater and Community Playhouse.

The cast also includes Jimmie Carol, folk-singer who with her husband has appeared at The Embers; Richard Rossomme, who was in Magnolia's "The Little Foxes;" and Eldon and Bernadette Sly. Dan Baurac directs.

"Love and Kisses" will play at 8 p.m. Thursdays and Sundays and 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through April 3.

Devine in 'Never Too Late'

Andy Devine plays the flabbergasted father-to-be getting his pulse read by Henry Hunter in a scene from "Never Too Late" opening a two-week engagement at Melodyland Theater Tuesday. Joan Bennett plays the expectant mother. "Born Yesterday," current play, closes with performances at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. today.

WARING'S MAGIC MUSIC

Pennsylvanians Here Thursday

"The Magic Music of Fred Waring," a musical show starring the Pennsylvanians, will play Thursday in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium.

The show, set within the frame of Waring's familiar "Sleep," which has been his theme song on radio, recordings, concerts, films and television, will feature soloists, skits, choral comedy and orchestral numbers.

Nearly 50 young and veteran performers comprise the orchestra and choral ensemble of this musical show. Featured as soloists are soprano Karen Kopsend, Miss North Dakota of 1965; singing comedy team Linda Wicker and Jim Wheeler; Cordovox virtuoso Donna Dee Anderson; deep-voiced Leonard Kranendock and banjo-humorist Bobby Day; and comedian-drummer Poley McClintock, original member of the four-man band that started Waring's dazzling career in Tyrone, Pa., a half-century ago.

'MADAME D'ARBLAY'

Welcome Change From Superficial

By SAMUEL BOYEA
I, P-T Drama Critic

Michael Sheridan Nolan's "Madame D'Arblay," Saint Anthony High's original play presentation, which closes tonight in Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall, is a "Dear Diary" of historical delight and literary grace. "D'Arblay" premiered Friday night before a near-capacity house.

If you can endure the the rather dragging, over-leisurely, and under-dramatized opening scenes of this 23-scenes, four-act play, you too will find it a rewarding and welcome change from the superficial has and re-hash which make up most of the moron menu of Broadway-inspired theater.

Prize-winning author—Thomas Hardy Memorial Award in Letters—Nolan has undertaken and accomplished with impressive, though not total technical success, the most ornery of theatrical art form—historical drama.

* * * *

THAT THIS 74-year span play about the slow-to-fall-in-love, pioneer woman novelist ("Evelina") and London diarist, Madame D'Arblay, confronts history on the modern stage so interestingly can be traced to its local author's authentic authority in handling the period. Nolan is at home with literary history—loves it even to the fault of over-saturating his production with "leading" expositionary scenes. Time and again, in order to elicit information—which should really grow out of the play, not imposed on it, one character "milks" another character by asking repeatedly: how-do-you-know-how-do-you-know-how-do-you-know??? Or why? why? why? why

Well, they stopped writing that way since the other Sheridan was around.

However, once the instructor author-director stops asking loaded questions and gives his star, Joy Dunleavy something of character substance and situation to nibble on, the play moves. And with it Nolan's direction — so far, ordinary with everybody grabbing stage-center to make his speech and then sitting down.

* * * *

THE LINE which sends the play and its star sailing on simple sentence:

"Mademoiselle," says General Alexandre D'Arblay (Robert Plutte) handsome young refugee from the French Revolution, "I am Alexandre D'Arblay."

He kneels and kisses Fanny's hands. That's all. But the moment is full of magic because the playwright for the first time involves his heroine more deeply and directly in the action Nolan also finally discovers that even in a historical play the shortest link between play and title character is that straight plank on which boy walks to meet girl.

And waiting for just such a moment was our "Fanny" who had just pushed thirty and "found nothing happened to me" in her dedicated-to-dear daddy life, buried in her libraray frequently by literary lions like Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith and theater greats like David Garrick.

This play which shapes up as excellent movie fare make may well make a star of its Joy Dunleavy.

This tall, lovely girl with the face of striking bone structure and the voice and diction of equally alluring quality is consistently graceful and spirited in her execution of old world feminine loveliness and moral indignation. Her theatrical savvy through which she ages with deepening voice and spiritual intensity is remarkable for any young actress — double stunning for a high school trainee.

* * * *

THERE ARE other standouts in the large cast of 30 plus. Plutte as D'Arblay is fine in the witty love scene with Miss Dunleavy. She chides him for being a fast worker and then in one of the playwright's wittiest romantic lines asked: What is time? Henry Powell is "tops" as the father, Dr. Charles Burney and Terence Caulfield moving as her devoted brother, Charles. Albert Crawford delightfully hams it up as David Garrick, the renowned actor. John Mallon (Sir Joshua Reynolds), William Case (Dr. Samuel Johnson), William Cox (Oliver Goldsmith), John Tyo (Talleyrand) were also at home on the cinemascopic stage.

But the extras who stole it all were Jonna Hynes as the sexy Charlotte, Queen of England (wife of George III) and Roberta Doheny as Madame Schwellenberg, Queen's tyrannical keeper of their robes. As a Malapropish character who referred to the French guillotine as "gelatin," Pamela Leech was "campy" and hilarious as a woman of the world. Ian McCarthy made a Sir Walter Scott well kilted and good to the last burr in a moving closing scene with the aging heroine, grown tired of the world of letters.

Costumes and quick changing scenery were "eye-deal."

Brother William Dooling produced this six-months-in-rehearsal play and Brother Dennis Doose was alert on lights.

AT COMMUNITY PLAYHOUSE

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
I, P-T Staff Writer

"Elan" is a solid, French adjective for spirited, dashing, sparkling—and it's the best one-word description of both cast and show in Community Playhouse's latest opening Friday night.

It's particularly appropriate since two of five scenes in "Holiday for Lovers" are set in a Parisian hotel room. In fact, all five are in one hotel room or another from New York to Rome.

"Holiday," really, more nearly resembles a TV "family situation comedy" than a traditional drama complete with plot and conflict. But Mother and Dad Dean from Minneapolis, Minn., are far removed from the tube's stereotyped stupid hubby and domineering wife.

Dean, a prosperous insurance man portrayed by Marvin Cloyd ("'enry 'iggins" in Civic Light Opera's "My Fair Lady"), his wife and youngest daughter are setting out on their Grand Tour of Europe as the play opens.

Wife Mary — Betty Motsinger in real life—and hubby are stuffing their bags which more than incidentally, provides a delightful series of sharply-timed sight-and-sound gags.

Enter youngest daughter, Betsy, who couldn't at that stage care less about Europe. Her down-keyed, "My friends are in the East—that's Wisconsin," is typical of the play's refreshingly low pitched humor.

Wilson High School senior Gayle Shadduck as Betsy, came on perhaps a bit too slow, but quickly rose to the part, and carried it off beautifully. That hammy old show biz clinche which says nothing, but nothing, stops the show never was more clearly evident than on opening night when Betsy slipped and turned an ankle between scenes.

She manfully—or girlfully—carried on, artfully concealing what must have been a very painful leg. A long line of troupers would have approved.

Enter now in quick succession Dean's sister and brother-in-law, Connie and Joe McDougal—Barbara Crooker and Thomas Petrulas. Technically their parts would be considered "supporting," but the quality both showed throughout gives a new and finer meaning to the term.

Hilarious, in fact, was the up-staging bouts between Mary Dean and Connie—exactly as playwright Ronald Alexander visualized it, of course.

The plot thickens rapidly when the Deans arrive in Paris. Elder daughter Margaret, studying piano there at the Sorbonne, joins the happy family and introduces a suave, gallic piano teacher of distinguished, and middle-aged, mien. A romantic interest, eh bien?

The last principal finally enters — Betsy's new-found beau, Paul Gattalin, an American art student from the Southwest. Ron Boussom in the role matches Gayle Shadduck's Betsy in believable, low-key intensity.

Special kudos to guest director J. L. White, who, although working with a strong cast, must be credited for the smooth, professional patina that covers "Holiday for Lovers."

STAGE WAR

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — The theater is more and more a place of nightmare violence, baffling obscurity.

Just a passing phase—or a revolution?

In London, a baby is beaten to death as the climax of a drama. On Broadway, an actor climbs stark naked across a stage of chalky terror. And everywhere, four-letter words in profusion.

Such raw turmoil lumps collectively as "Total Theater," a phrase that embraces a wide variety of techniques, happenings and events, all designed to shake up audiences, turn spectators into participants and preach fresh — if not refreshing — attitudes about human existence.

* * * *

AFTER SEVERAL famer skirmishes with offbeat plays, Broadway showgoers have been examining a major chunk of lurid eccentricity, with a deliberately long-winded title:

"The Persecution and Assassination of Jean Paul Marat as performed by the Inmates of the Asylum of Clarenton under the direction of the Marquis de Sade."

The drama by Germany's

PETER BROOK

Peter Weiss was staged by Peter Brook with members of The Royal Shakespeare Company, who performed it previously in England.

* * * *

"The theater of grace and beauty of the Victorian past is still sometimes nostalgically yearned for by some of the audience. But that's all gone and dead and they should realize it. Now there is a new strong, violent, militant, experimental theater emerging."

Although "Marat - Sade" goes in for a good deal of raw life in the raw, Brook considers such matters necessary for enhanced honesty.

"Evrything is designed to crack the spectator on the jaw, then douse him with ice-cold water, then force him to assess intelligently what has happened to him," Bronk wrote in a preface to the printed "Marat/Sade."

A good many voices have protested the subject matter of much of the new drama—the pessimism of existential pieces by Beckett and Ionesco, the black comedy of Genet, the perverse mysticism of Albee, to cite a few.

Replies Brook: "Facing up to bad news can compensate the spectator with an exhilaration that you can never feel if you are told good news that you really know is spurious.

"The man who says life is black and can affirm it with all teh intensity of is being, is not negative, for such affirmation is an optimism."

* * * *

ABE BURROWS, an eminent Broadway writer-director who has been closely observing stage trends since 1950, clearly takes issue with many of the basic tenets of anti-establishment forces.

That matter of raw language and anything-goes stage behavior, for example.

"You can call me a sissy if you want to," Burrows says, "but I don't like dirty words or behavior that wouldn't be proper in the family living room. My teachers in that department were my parents. In most cases, dirty words take the place of a joke that a writer felt he needed but couldn't think of.

"Profanity is something else—with it a point can sometimes be made, and I think the commandment in the Bible refers to false swearing, not just the use of a word."

* * * *

MUCH OF recent experimental drama, on Broadway or Off Broadway or abroad, broods on downbeat themes. Comments Burrows:

"Musicals and comedies exist because they are something people want. That isn't pandering to lack of taste—it is sharing—and don't forget that the theater was originally a kind of religious ritual, a sharing.

"If so-called serious plays would bring people in, fine. What we do in comedy is give people something they want to see and make them feel better when they come out.

"I don't think the theater is meant to make you feel lousy. I'm not talking about fun and games. But they don't want a brace of questions thrown at them with no solution.

"A fellow can write on any subject and, depending on his taste, use any words. But he has to send the audience out feeling better, or ennobled or seeing some king of ray of hope in life."

* * * *

WHAT ABOUT that "total theater" technique of figuratively socking spectators in the jaw and then dousing them with cold water as means of arresting attention?

Burrows recalls the advice given him by George Kaufman, who directed "Guys and Dolls," the first show he wrote.

" 'Take it easy,' Kaufman said. 'They paid to get in and they'll sit and listen. You don't have to kill them'."

Mehta in Top Form on Podium

By DANIEL CARIAGA
L.P-T Music Critic

Zubin Mehta returned to the podium of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra this week to lead the first of the final seven pairs of concerts in the season. As expected, he was in top form, as was his orchestra, and full houses greeted him at both the Thursday evening and Friday afternoon performances.

How many of the patrons came to hear Isaac Stern, who played the Mendelssohn Concerto and the First Rhapsody of Bartok, is impossible to judge, though at the matinee a good many did not hesitate to leave after the Rhapsody, thereby missing Mehta's very exciting account of the same composer's Concerto for Orchestra.

Stern's Mendelssohn remains the song-filled and tasteful model of virtue we have admired so long. His tone is still vibrant and controlled, his fingers fleet, firm, and unerring. We rejoice in his ever-growing articulation, which gives breadth and meaning to the fastest and most articulate passagework.

* * * *

THE RHAPSODY provided a pleasant novelty, especially since it received such a loving and unconstrained performance from all concerned. It is the sort of piece one likes very much if one does not hear it too often.

In the Mendelssohn, Mehta was a devoted, even solicitous, accompanist, though not entirely sensitive to Stern's nuances of timing. That is not surprising, since Stern undoubtedly was playing this work in public before Mehta was born.

The program opened with the Five Pieces, Opus 16, of Arnold Schoenberg, the fourth instalment of Mehta's season-long survey of Schoenberg's orchestral output.

The opportunity to hear these works, especially in relation to each other during one and the same season, is a rare and felicitous one. We hope only that future seasons will see the acceptance of this music in the permanent repertory of the orchestra; there is no doubt it belongs there.

* * * *

WE PROPOSE that Mehta, in taking these works into the catalog, displace, not Mozart and Haydn, of whom we can get not enough, but Richard Strauss and Prokofiev, of whom we have had quite enough.

And, since we are making proposals, why should this orchestra not record all these Schoenberg works as they are performed? Certainly no one can challenge either the greatness of the music or the definitiveness of the readings.

Swarowsky's projection of Schoenberg's "Pelleas," and Mehta's dynamic and expressive account of the Five Pieces — these are not only high points of the current season; they should be markers for the future of the orchestra.

Museum Shows 'Savage Eye'

"The Savage Eye," story of a divorcee's odyssey, with Barbara Baxley and Gary Merrill, will be shown at 3 and at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 Ocean Blvd.

The free screenings are co-sponsored by the Museum and the Long Beach Public Library Film service.

Tryouts Tonight

Actor's Circle, 29 39th Pl., will continue tryouts for Jean Giraudoux's "The Enchanted," at 7 tonight in the theater.

NATALIE WOOD

Glad She Was Child Actress, Not Star

Natalie Wood is thankful she was only a child actress and not a child star. There is a world of difference, she holds.

Having started her motion picture career at age four and successfully made the transition to adult stardom, Miss Wood is eminently qualified to differentiate. In her current film, "Inside Daisy Clover," opening in the area Wednesday, she portrays a teen-age rebel who becomes a movie star but refuses to fit the Hollywood mold. The role enables her to etch a memorable screen portrait.

"As a youngster, I never had to carry a film, like Shirley Temple or Jane Withers did," Miss Wood explains. "Instead, I played supporting parts with such actors as Margaret Sullivan, Orson Welles and Claudette Colbert. They carried the acting load.

NATALIE WOOD

"Since the public had no set 'image' of me, I could play almost any type of role, and did. I was sad, bad, plain, pretty. When I grew up, the public didn't resent me, not having a pre-conceived idea of what a grown-up Natalie Wood with increased acting skill, should look and act like."

Miss Wood went from gamin to glamour girl without passing through an awkward stage, acquiring depth with maturity, along with a haunting resemblance remains to the little girl who appeared in such films as "No Sad Songs for Me." She is decidedly a big girl, however, as the star of Warner Bros.' "Gypsy," "Sex and the Single Girl" and "The Great Race."

"Inside Daisy Clover" also stars Christopher Plummer, Robert Redford, Roddy McDowall, Ruth Gordon and Katharine Bard.

L.A. PHILHARMONIC

By DANIEL CARIAGA
I.P-T Music Critic

Zubin Mehta returned to the podium of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra this week to lead the first of the final seven pairs of concerts in the season. As expected, he was in top form, as was his orchestra, and full houses greeted him at both the Thursday evening and Friday afternoon performances.

How many of the patrons came to hear Isaac Stern, who played the Mendelssohn Concerto and the First Rhapsody of Bartok, is impossible to judge, though at the matinee a good many did not hesitate to leave after the Rhapsody, thereby missing Mehta's very exciting account of the same composer's Concerto for Orchestra.

Stern's Mendelssohn remains the song-filled and tasteful model of virtue we have admired so long. His tone is still vibrant and controlled, his fingers fleet, firm and unerring. We rejoice in his ever-growing articulation, which gives breadth and meaning to the fastest and most articulate passagework.

* * * *

THE RHAPSODY provided a pleasant novelty, especially since it received such a loving and unconstrained performance from all concerned. It is the sort of piece one likes very much if one does not hear it too often.

In the Mendelssohn, Mehta was a devoted, even solicitous, accompanist, though not entirely sensitive to Stern's nuances of timing. That is not surprising, since Stern undoubtedly was playing this work in public before Mehta was born.

The program opened with the Five Pieces, Opus 16, of Arnold Schoenberg, the fourth instalment of Mehta's season-long survey of Schoenberg's orchestral output.

The opportunity to hear these works, especially in relation to each other during one and the same season, is a rare and felicitous one. We hope only that future seasons will see the acceptance of this music in the permanent repertory of the orchestra; there is no doubt it belongs there.

* * * *

WE PROPOSE that Mehta, in taking these works into the catalog, displace, not Mozart and Haydn, of whom we can get not enough, but Richard Strauss and Prokofiev, of whom we have had quite enough.

And, since we are making proposals, why should this orchestra not record all these Schoenberg works as they are performed? Certainly no one can challenge either the greatness of the music or the definitiveness of the readings.

Swarowsky's projection of Schoenberg's "Pelleas," and Mehta's dynamic and expressive account of the Five Pieces — these are not only high points of the current season; they should be markers for the future of the orchestra.

Museum Shows 'Savage Eye'

"The Savage Eye," story of a divorcee's odyssey, with Barbara Baxley and Gary Merrill, will be shown at 3 and at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 Ocean Blvd.

The free screenings are co-sponsored by the Museum and the Long Beach Public Library Film service.

Tryouts Tonight

Actor's Circle, 29 39th Pl., will continue tryouts for Jean Giraudoux's "The Enchanted," at 7 tonight in the theater.

NATALIE WOOD

Glad She Was Child Actress, Not Star

Natalie Wood is thankful she was only a child actress and not a child star. There is a world of difference, she holds.

Having started her motion picture career at age four and successfully made the transition to adult stardom, Miss Wood is eminently qualified to differentiate. In her current film, "Inside Daisy Clover," opening in the area Wednesday, she portrays a teen-age rebel who becomes a movie star but refuses to fit the Hollywood mold. The role enables her to etch a memorable screen portrait.

"As a youngster, I never had to carry a film, like Shirley Temple or Jane Withers did," Miss Wood explains. "Instead, I played supporting parts with such actors as Margaret Sullivan, Orson Welles and Claudette Colbert. They carried the acting load.

NATALIE WOOD

"Since the public had no set 'image' of me, I could play almost any type of role, and did. I was sad, bad, plain, pretty. When I grew up, the public didn't resent me, not having a pre-conceived idea of what a grown-up Natalie Wood with increased acting skill, should look and act like."

Miss Wood went from gamin to glamour girl without passing through an awkward stage, acquiring depth with maturity, along

Yet, a haunting resemblance remains to the little girl who appeared in such films as "No Sad Songs for Me." She is decidedly a big girl, however, as the star of Warner Bros.' "Gypsy," "Sex and the Single Girl" and "The Great Race."

Chevy's 'Sphere to Open FRIDAY

Hours for the show, which runs through March 13, are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The Cinesphere is a movie theater that ballcoons in 10 minutes from a four-by-four foot package to a giant dome accommodating 200 people. The show is being sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Division, the Rossmoor Shopping Center, and Harbor Chevrolet, 3770 Cherry Ave., Long Beach.

The unit, which cost approximately $1 million, was shown at the New York World's Fair. There are only three such exhibits in the country. The camera in the show was used during World War II to assist in training Navy pilots to land on an aircraft carrier. The cost of the lens alone was in excess of $10,000.

Harbor Chevrolet has been negotiating for almost 18 months to bring the show to Rossmoor.

The film moves to many of the most exciting attractions in the country and is projected on a dome-shaped screen which puts the viewer right into the center of action.

Visually, the spectator zooms under Utah's Rainbow Bridge in a helicopter, rides a mule train down into the Grand Canyon, gets a close-up view of sharks and other underwater life as a Scuba diver, drives a stunt car in the Joey Chilwood Show and takes a ride on a child's swing.

Also, through the magic of the full color camera, the viewer slides behind the wheel of a Corvette Sting Ray for a whirl around the proving ground track, he skims over the snow as a skier, rides through the swamps in an unusual air-boat and tours Cypress Gardens at the end of a water ski tow rope.

The vinyl-coted theater is supported entirely by interior air pressure maintained by automatic blowers, inside the image is thrown by one projector onto a screen that completely surrounds the normal range of vision—a full 180-degree picture. It gives the spectacular, realistic effect of putting the viewer at the heart of the activity. It takes 16 men three days to erect the Cinesphere, and two days to dismantle the unit.

There will be no admission charge to the show. In addition sponsors of the show will award three Monza Junior Go-Karts at a drawing to be held at the close of the event.

Chevy's 'Sphere to Open FRIDAY

Hours for the show, which runs through March 13, are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The Cinesphere is a movie theater that balloons in 10 minutes from a four-by-four foot package to a giant dome accommodating 200 people. The show is being sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Division, the Rossmoor Shopping Center, and Harbor Chevrolet, 3770 Cherry Ave., Long Beach.

The unit, which cost approximately $1 million, was shown at the New York World's Fair. There are only three such exhibits in the country. The camera in the show was used during World War II to assist in training Navy pilots to land on an aircraft carrier. The cost of the lens alone was in excess of $10,000.

Harbor Chevrolet has been negotiating for almost 18 months to bring the show to Rossmoor.

The film moves to many of the most exciting attractions in the country and is projected on a dome-shaped screen which puts the viewer right into the center of action.

Visually, the spectator zooms under Utah's Rainbow Bridge in a helicopter, rides a mule train down into the Grand Canyon, gets a close-up view of sharks and other underwater life as a Scuba diver, drives a stunt car in the Joey Chitwood Show and takes a ride on a child's swing.

Also, through the magic of the full color camera, the viewer slides behind the wheel of a Corvette Sting Ray for a whirl around the proving ground track, he skims over the snow as a skier, rides through the swamps in an unusual air-boat and tours Cypress Gardens at the end of a water ski tow rope.

The vinyl-coated theater is supported entirely by interior air pressure maintained by automatic blowers. Inside the image is thrown by one projector onto a screen that completely surrounds the normal range of vision—a full 180-degree picture. It gives the spectacular, realistic effect of putting the viewer at the heart of the activity. It takes 16 men three days to erect the Cinesphere, and two days to dismantle the unit.

There will be no admission charge to the show. In addition sponsors of the show will award three Monza Junior Go-Karts at a drawing to be held at the close of the event.

ENGINEERS
SEAPOWER
Outstanding Career Opportunities in the Federal Service
Electronic, electrical, marine, structural, mechanical and industrial engineers and naval architects needed to fill positions in programs of national and world importance.
Creating tomorrow's Naval Fleet today the Long Beach Naval Shipyard is responsible for the continued repair and modernization of Naval vessels, their machinery and equipment including weapon systems.
Engineering problems aboard aircraft carriers, guided missile cruisers, destroyers, mine craft, amphibious assault ships and support ships make for challenging assignments, from design through fabrication and work methods evaluation to actual testing and evaluation of the final product.
Minimum requirements: BS degree in engineering from an accredited college or university (or the equivalent). U.S. citizenship also required. Starting salaries: $6207 to $9267 per annum.
Excellent fringe benefits equal to approximately 28% of basic pay include group health insurance, life insurance, a retirement program, 13 to 26 days vacation leave per year, 13 days sick leave per year, 8 paid holidays and leave with pay for reservists. Draft deferments requested.
Qualified applicants are invited to send a Federal application form SF-57, available at our Employment Office at Gate No. 5 on Terminal Island. Post Offices and other Federal activities, to:

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS
Before you buy or sell that lot, investigate its potentials. If it is zoned for apartments or not, we will make a survey without obligation to you, to determine if it is advisable for you to build or to sell. We check your lot size, zoning, vacancy factor & rent schedules in your area; we advise as to what is best suited to the neighborhood, what we think belongs on your lot and what it costs to build. We show you how it can be financed, what your income & expenses will be and how much cash income is yours each month. If it makes 3 cents ¢ to build, we can provide 100% financing for the entire project.

ATTENTION
PROPERTY OWNERS
Before you buy or sell that lot, investigate its potentials. If it is zoned for apartments or not, we will make a survey without obligation to you, to determine if it is advisable for you to build or to sell. We check your lot size, zoning, vacancy factor & rent schedules in your area; we advise as to what is best suited to the neighborhood, what we think belongs on your lot and what it costs to build. We show you how it can be financed, what your income & expenses will be and how much cash income is yours each month. If it makes $ cents $ to build, we can provide 100% financing for the entire project.

WHICH DO YOU NEED?
PROPERTY No. 1 . . . 12 nearly new deluxe units on East Third Street in the best Belmont Heights location—all two bedrooms in this three-story building. Luxurious indoor swimming pool for year 'round enjoyment, silent efficient passenger elevator and indoor parking on first floor under the building. This could be one of the smartest addresses in the Heights and yet priced so very low at 6½ times the scheduled gross income.
ASK MR. ROWLAND
PROPERTY No. 2 . . . 6 unit motel plus owner or manager apartment almost 15 years old brings in over $400.00 per month. Just right for elder, retired couple. Excellent location on Pine Ave. south of Pacific Coast Highway on a 50x150 lot to a paved public alley. This is beautiful property and can be purchased for a modest investment, perhaps as modest as 10% down . . . $42,500.00 FULL PRICE.
ASK MR. ROWLAND
Will consider exchange of equities, property or trust deeds on all the above investments.
